Davie Development Group Organized, Prizes Planned

The Davie County Community Development Association was organized in Mocksville Monday night, upon request of Mr. Leo Williams, county agent, and with the co-operation of the County Commissioners.

Representatives of 11 community sections of the county attended the meeting. The merchants and businesses of the county have donated $1,000 to foster the association and to use as prize money. Each community section will compete in development and improvement projects.

A representative was selected to represent each section of the county. They are: Advance — I.H. Jones; Center — Duke Tutterow; Clarksville — Bill Merrell; Cooleemee — Denny Creason; Cornatzer-Dulin — Luther Potts; Davie Academy — Mrs. Oscar Cope; Farmington — Joe White; Fork — Tom Rice; Jerusalem — Richard Beck; Mocksville — James McBride; Smith Grove — Robert Handlin.

The officers were elected to serve as follows: President—Jim McBride; Vice-president — Tom Rice; Secretary, Treasurer — Duke Tutterow and Reporter — Mrs. William Long.

The $1,000 donation will be used for a development contest among the community sections. The winner of the contest will compete in the Northwest North Carolina Community Development Contest.

Cooleemee and Mocksville sections will be in the same category and all the rural in the non-form category. The judging will be done by county and home agents from other counties. This will be held in October, followed by an Awards Banquet for the county.

The forty members present discussed several problems such as the dumping of trash and littering the community. Each community will select their own project for the contest.

Candidate Needs Help!

Herman Miller was giving Marlene a bad time the other day because The Journal left his name out of the candidates for office. He's running for constable.

"It's your own fault because you didn't let us know," replied Marlene, who is never at a loss for words.

"Besides," someone added, "you don't have any opposition so you can't get beat."

"Don't be too sure," commented Harold Foster. "Ol' Tom Shoaf was running for constable a while back. We figured since he didn't have any opposition, we might as well let him count his own ballots.

"Tom went over to the desk and started counting. A few minutes later, he came back and said, 'You'd better send somebody over there to help me count. Dick Everhart's about to beat me on write-ins.'"

"So," said Harold, "we send two Democrats and two Republicans over to count. Tom won, but barely. So you see, Herman needs all the help he can get."

"Maybe so," interrupted Hayden Stiller. "But don't run his picture. That'd hurt him more'n it'd help."
