Cooleemee Runner-Up In County Community Development Judging

Cooleemee was runner-up to Mocksville in the small town division of the Davie County Community Development competition which awarded prizes over the weekend.

Eleven communities in the county were judged Oct. 28-29 by a panel including Dwight Williamson, county extension chairman of Wilkes County, and Miss Irene Brown, home economics extension agent of Yadkin County.

Communities judged were: Davie Academy, Mocksville, Cooleemee, Jerusalem, Advance-Mock, Center, Clarksville, Pino-Farmington, Smith Grove, Cornatzer-Dulin, and Fork.

Winners and prizes were: Rural category: Advance Mock, $175; Center, $125; and Clarksville, $100.

Towns-Villages: Mocksville, $200; Cooleemee, $100.

The awards were the result of an early Spring meeting of Davie community leaders who decided to organize the communities with the goal of cleaning up the communities and coordinating activities.

Business enterprises within the county donated $1.00 in prize money to be distributed among the winners.

First Voter - Mrs. Margaret Brinegar cast the first ballot in the Cooleemee precinct as the polls opened yesterday morning at 6:30.

Over 100 persons voted within the first hour. Better than 95 per cent, of the 1182 persons registered, were expected to vote in this election.
