An Ideal Citizen.

There is a gentleman in this town, known to us all, who is just about our ideal of a good citizen.

He is making his money here, he is raising and educating his family here, and he expects to live and die here.

When he has any money to spend he first looks carefully over the advertisements in this paper. If he finds what he wants he goes there and gives that merchant the first opportunity.

In everything he buys he gives the home merchant the preference.

He occasionally buys articles from abroad, but they are cases wherein he cannot find that which he seeks in his own community.

He believes in his home town, and because he does believe in it and intends to continue to live in it he grasps every possible means of advancing its interests by keeping his money in circulation at home.

He, to our mind, is the ideal citizen.

Would that he were multiplied a thousand fold.

For we need more of him.

A Thought for the Week

We must regard agriculture as an industry, a business, and a life, into the industry we must introduce the teachings of modern science; into the business must be introduced modern commercial methods; and into the life must be introduced those elements of modern civilization which will enable agriculture to resist the lure of the modern city. The first part of the program—the scientific improvement of agriculture as an industry—is the duty of the public authorities. The second part—the improvement of the business—is the province of voluntary effort, and the way of making voluntary effort effective is through the principle of cooperation. When we come to the social life the duty is divided between the state and voluntary effort, but 95 per cent of the work belongs to the region of voluntary effort. The Irish formula is that the rural problem must be solved by better farming, better business, and better living.—Sir Horace Plunkett, in Progressive Farmer.

Why can't some local genius achieve lasting fame by inventing the autoplane—a car that will glide swiftly along smooth roads and rise gracefully in the air when approaching the bumps or taking a hill? Buck up, fellows—it's your inning.

An Austrian princess is in this country painting portraits of distinguished people at $25,000.00 a paint. And if our delinquent subscribers will just loosen up and shell out the ducats we may be able to accept her invitation to "sit for ours."

After a year's wandering a Chicago man returned to his home and didn't know his own family. But that isn't half as sad a fate as the local bald headed "old batch" who has no family to know.

So many men have been killed in Europe we wonder there are any left to censor the reports.

Invigorating to the Pale and Sickly. The Old Standard general strengthening family BROWN'S TARTLETS and TONIC, drives out malaria, enriches the blood, builds up the system. A true Tonic for adults and children. 25c.

Grand Duke Nicholas, of Russia, is six feet seven inches tall and commands an army of seven million men, the largest fighting force ever assembled under one flag. And we are five feet ten inches tall, and edit a country newspaper, and have to satisfy an army of the most enlightened, most energetic and most critical people on earth. And we wouldn't swap jobs with G. D. Nick for a plugged nickel to boot.
