That is a fact-all of it. The call has gone out for this leadership in every walk of life, and the call is not being answered as it should. It is possible that in our every-day flurry to reconstruct the world systematically and modernly we have forgotten that true leadership means the dedication of our lives to our task? And dedication means prayer-means a getting back to simple old time ideal about religion, to the Now-I-lay-me days of yester year, to the time when a fellow wasn't ashamed to admit to the Lord that he couldn't do anything worth while until the Lord took possession of his life. The Methodin Episcopal Church, South, which is celebrating the year 1919 as the anniversary of one hundred years of its missionary endeavor, is now issuing a delinate call to its members everywhere to line up in a league of prayer, in a constoration of their lives in a dedication of themselves to the gigantic task of reerganning a world.
