MISER SAVER BIG SUM BUT ONLY TO LOSE IT

Man Did Not Follow Principles of Thrift—Sole Idea Was to Hoard His Money, Spending Nothing.

A modern Midas of Chicago, who had accumulated $300,000 by never spending anything, recently was declared incapable of handling his affairs. He became incapable not because he amassed $300,000 but because of the way he accumulated it. He estranged his family, went to bed with the chickens to avoid spending money on lights and lived on $55 a year.

Then he ran afoul of the puzzling income tax law and now his children are to handle his beloved savings. This modern Midas was not a thrifty man. He was a miser. True thrift enhances and increases the wealth of the world. Hoarding money benefits neither the miser nor his fellows. Wise spending is as essential as wise saving, and wise investment is as important as either; wise spending for the comforts and pleasures of life as well as the necessities makes for the thriftiest life and stimulates production. Wise investment makes possible the creation of new wealth.

The miser saves but spends nothing. He secures only the meager satisfaction of watching his pile of money grow. The wise exponent of thrift and sound investment has the comforts and pleasures of life and saves at the same time. The foolish man spends his money for what he neither needs nor really wants; does not attain the comforts and lasting pleasures of life and saves nothing.

If the modern miser of Chicago had spent wisely he would have had years of comfort and happiness instead of years of equalor and want. If he had saved wisely he would have had the love and respect of his family and associates. If he had invested wisely he would have been competent to handle his own affairs.

"Waste not—want not" is still the modern axiom of thrift, but "want not" must not be interpreted to mean not wanting the things that make life worth the living. Don't be a modern Midas.

PICKING UP THAT PIN

A story of E. H. Harriman, who died leaving an estate of $75,000,000, credited him with one day picking up a small steel letter clip dropped on the floor by a careless employee.

"I'd like to have as my annual income," said Mr. Harriman, "the value of material thrown away every year by indifferent workers in the offices and factories of America. In a few years I'd be the richest man in the world."

"LIKE UM" and "LICK UM"

From faraway Tulsa, Okla., comes the story that War Savings Stamps are tremendously popular among the Indians who have grown rich from oil wells discovered on their properties.

"Stick-on" competitions are popular among the Indian Rockefellers, who buy the $5 stamps in sheets, arrange their cards neatly and start licking and sticking at a prearranged signal.

After all the stamps had been stuck on during a recent contest the Indians called the "held meet" by lining up and racing to the post-office to get the stamps entered. Blue Nose Simons, No. 1, won the race and had his stamps registered first. He had posted on $455 worth of War Savings Stamps in six minutes and "blue nose" seconds. His time to the post-office was 34 seconds flat.

Money saved is what counts. It counts in War Savings Stamps.

FIVE DEPARTMENTS ARE AIDING THRIFT

Government Bureaus Are Co-operating to Promote Widespread Savings Among All Classes of People.

Co-operation and co-ordination of government departments in aid of the national movement to promote regular saving, wise buying, sound investment and reinvestment are shown in a recent report to the Treasury Department.

Five departments—Treasury, Labor, Commerce, Agriculture and the Interior—are always carrying out plans characteristic of their special domains of work designed to accomplish the general aim—thrift. Not only are the same principles held in common, but ideas and material are interchanged and employed to further the particular lines of each department's work.

In the Treasury Department the Savings Division is endeavoring to bring home the value of sensible economy as a principle of living; to interpret thrift, not as miserliness, but as the wise management of one's affairs, taking heed of present and future needs and steadily saving for worthwhile purchases, to take advantage of an opportunity or against a rainy day. The Savings Division offers the Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps—a practical inducement to acquiring the power of a financial reserve.

Realizing that saving is greatly stimulated by having a definite object in view, the Department of Labor has launched an OWN YOUR HOME movement.

The Department of Commerce, in conjunction with the Council of National Defense, is engaged in a BUY NOW, BUT ONLY WHAT YOU NEED, campaign.

The Department of Agriculture has undertaken to have its county agents and home demonstration agents, numbering several thousand men and women, include the message of thrift in all their work.

In the Department of the Interior the Bureau of Education is making thrift an important part of its Americanization program and of its schools and library work. The Indian Bureau has issued material and called on all agents to assist in bringing home the value of intelligent saving and safe investment to the Indian service.

INTEREST

Here is what one man did. If you don't know him you know some one just like him in your community.

Twenty years ago he owned a clothes he stood in and that was about all.

He saved fifty dollars the first year; the next year, with a little better wages, seventy-five.

One thing with another—a wife and family included—he has saved an average of five dollars a week for twenty years.

What he saved in twenty years was about five thousand dollars. What he has is twice five thousand—like the man in the parable.

His dollars working for him now bring him more than his yearly saving.

Put your money where it will do double duty for you—in War Savings Stamps.
