A Card of Thanks.
 I take this method of thanking every one who assisted me in any way during the death and burial of my husband. My husband had been afflicted two years, and the people have been so kind to us, I cannot find words to express to them my thankfulness. I can only point them to the one above who said, "Whoever helpeth the poor and needy, lendeth unto the Lord."

Upon These Arguments We Rest Our Case

YOU, the buyer, are the real builder of wagons. You put the final Okey upon the use of certain materials and construction when you buy a wagon containing them—and refuse to buy a wagon that does not. We want to show you how the Thornhill Wagon is built. Upon a plain statement of facts we are willing to rest our case. We believe the Thornhill way would be your way if you should build a wagon.

THORNHILL WAGONS

Full Circle Iron
 Multi-plate Front Houn Flats

Trussed Bolsters and Gears
 Backs Flats of Multi-plate Iron

Long Wear Beds

In making and backing up, with the only very close iron, which is only a half circle, rollers run off the end of the track and keep it. It is difficult to make short turns and back up. The Thornhill full circle iron gives a continuous track on which the bed stays on turn.
 The front of Thornhill wagons stay in line for the reason of the usual loose bound plates, a bound line of multi-plate iron is used. It is a great labor saving device, and gives the wagon more strength and life.

On the front bolsters of Thornhill wagons are heavy iron plates running along top and bottom—connected by struts that run clear through the bolsters. Strength and lightness are combined. Rear gears are strongly trussed. There are braces on both top and bottom, that extend the full length of the bolsters.
 Solid iron bars extend the full length of the beds giving them double strength.

If you examine the back of Thornhill Wagon closely you will see at once the superiority of the construction. The bottoms are reinforced over front and rear bolsters.
 Come in and examine the wagon for yourself. We will take pleasure and pride in showing you a Thornhill. The wagon made of high grade oak and heavy iron bolsters, all metal bed, and rollers.
