

FARMVILLE OIL AND FERTILIZER CO.

A Valuable and Successfully Operated Industrial Plant Consuming Raw Product of This Section. Great Help To Farmville and Surrounding Territory.

The financial standing and the commercial progress of Farmville is largely indebted to the industrial operations in our midst that contribute a most valuable share to its growth, and to the business activities in mercantile traffic. The receipts for their manufactured products, the greater volume of which is sold at distant parts, reach this community, and add much to the general circulation of money through all branches of business.

The supreme importance of the enterprising industrial features cannot be better illustrated than in the present large and flourishing plant of the Farmville Oil and Fertilizer Company, located immediately on the tracts of the Norfolk Southern Rail Road, near the intersection of the East Carolina Rail Road, a situation that gives them admirable facilities for the prompt and economical transportation of their products to all part of this State and the United States.

This thriving enterprise manufactures crude cotton seed oil, meal, linters and hulls, making a specialty of the highest grade commercial fertilizers, principally those used on the growth of cotton and tobacco, the South's greatest crops. These cotton seed oil products are pure and are sold throughout the United States and of tons of fertilizer per season, and in Canada.

They crush thousands of tons of cotton seed, manufacture thousands of tons of fertilizer per season, and in connection with the plant, they operate two of the largest ginning systems in this section, containing ten separate gins, placing facilities in easy reach of the farmers for prompt and economical marketing of their crops, and gin an average of 3,500 bales of cotton per season.

The Company is composed of business men of the highest commercial and industrial successes, real community builders who have established an honorable reputation for commercial integrity and square dealing.

Mr. J. I. Morgan, the secretary and manager of this large concern, whose long and valuable experience in the operation of cotton oil mill enterprises and having been one of the organizers and the active manager of this enterprise since its inception more than 13 years ago, has been largely instrumental in making the Farmville Oil and Fertilizer Company one of the most successful and representative industrial enterprises in Eastern North Carolina. In addition to being one of the busiest men in Farmville Mr. Morgan is one of the most aggressive, progressive, and public-spirited elements of the community, who is regarded by his fellow citizens as one of our greatest assets.

THE N. CANNON BARGAIN STORE

A New Firm Recently Located in Farmville

N. Cannon Bargain Store is the name of the new mercantile firm which has recently thrown its doors open to the buying public of this section, carrying a general line of ladies and gents ready to wear, dry goods, notions, shoes, hats, etc.

Having cast their lot among some of the best business men of the State, whose outstanding character and business methods are beyond reproach, one would naturally suspect that this firm will advertise what it will do in the way of bargains and then line up to its advertisements. See their advertisement elsewhere in this issue, in which they invite you to buy and sell in Farmville.

Their place of business is said to be the coolest place in town and is located next door to the Hub Hardware Company on Main street.

"Insurance and Fertilizer"

At this season of the year naturally the farmer who has labored hard to produce and house his crop should turn his thoughts toward the protection of same until disposed of.

Mr. James R. Moore in an advertisement appearing elsewhere in this issue offers you that protection and will take pleasure in calling on you and drawing up a contract to suit your requirements in full. A card or a phone call will bring him to your farm within a few minutes. See his advertisement for further particulars.

T. L. & W. J. TURNAGE COMPANY

In an agricultural section such as that which Farmville is the chief business center it is essential that there should be a clearing house capable of taking care of the needs of the leading farmers.

Farmville has a business establishment which during the last twenty-five years has done much for the welfare of not only the immediate community but of those whose farms place them at some distance from away. This establishment is that of Messrs. T. L. and W. J. Turnage Co., and it is one of the largest and finest in eastern North Carolina.

While an important phase of this business house's activities is the buying of cotton, the more generally patronized phase perhaps is the mercantile end.

Mr. W. J. Turnage, whose dealings as a buyer of cotton are characterized by a spirit of fairness, has made great reputation for him. Both he and Mr. T. C. Turnage are active managers of the business, and Mr. T. C. Turnage is also president of the Farmville Insurance and Realty Company, and vice-president of the Citizens Bank, and Mr. B. O. Turnage is in charge of the dry goods department of the business. All three are broad-gauged, public spirited citizens who are always to be found among the leading spirits in various movements looking to the advancement of the community and its people.
