MORALITY AND HAPPINESS

Some people say there is not a fullness of happiness in the land these days. They may be right, though it is probably a pessimistic view.

Some others say there is not as much morality in the country as there once was. We believe this is also the cry of the pessimist.

If both claims should be proved true, the state of Bishop Mouzon in a recent address that "the true foundation of all happiness is morality, and all morality is founded upon religion."

If the germ of immorality has grown to such an extent that it has undermined our faith in each other, then we may expect unhappiness. Certainly it is necessary that we should have faith in each other to make us believe in each other. It is an unhappy people that reaches that point where they have no confidence. It is quite often that the fellow that has no confidence in others is carrying around a very odd type of character himself.—Ex.

SCHOOL DAYS ALMOST HERE

For three months hundreds of thousands of school children have gone here and there spending their vacations in many ways; some at work; some at play; all forgetful of the duties and responsibilities of life.

With the tokens of fall presenting themselves in the very winds and clouds, and the shortening of the days; and the next calendar sheet, September, in full view, reminds us that vacation days are nearly over. The schools are announcing their opening dates. It is also close at hand that we have only a few more days of vacation occupation and then off to study for the next year's race in life.

We find the mothers all preparing the school dresses and other things necessary for their children to stand in the modern row of school society, whether it be the high school at home or the college abroad, they all do every thing possible to make their children the equal of others.

It has become necessary to spend a large sum of money to educate a girl or a boy these days.

The four year college course in the average North Carolina college is costing more today than all of the property of the average North Carolina family was worth twenty-five years ago. Yet the educated man can pay it all back with interest in a very short time, because the opportunities for educated people are so much greater than for the uneducated.

The country is perhaps paying enough cash for educating the youth of today, but we are failing to get behind the great educational movement and impress the great student body of the greatness of the opportunities which lie before them. They should know that the school bell is always calling "Come up higher."

If we have used our vacation in a profitable way we should rejoice, but we should remember the duties we have to face during the coming school year.

If we could only know what a short time there is allotted for us to get an education and how badly we will need it in later life we would be more energetic in our school days and our school vacations.—Williamston Enterprise.

A HOT TIME IN TOWN

The weather for the past week or more has been unprecedentedly warm over the most of the United States. We say, "unprecedentedly warm," but we doubt if that is correct. The facilities for recording the state of the weather are so much improved, and the practice of publishing broadcast the records given by the thermometers is so general that the people have been led to make more to do over the weather than ever before. So we suppose that the psychological is to bring the conclusion that the year is unprecedentedly warm, with the result that more suffering and prostrations are noticeable. The prostrations and deaths are numerous. In Chicago, Boston, New York, Washington, Baltimore, where tall buildings shade the streets, the comparatively narrow streets, the circulation is bad, and the suffering people, weakened during the day, do not recover sufficient strength at night to withstand the heat as they do in the open country. The wide open spaces is a better place to be in during such a season.

HALF MONEY GO TO ROADS

Schools Second in Amount of Expenditure By State Last Year

More than half of the state's expenditures last year went to highways according to a report issued last week by State Auditor Baxter Durham. The sum spent for state highways, including construction and maintenance was $22,659,204, which represented 53.33 per cent of the state's expenditures.

Money for such an expenditure was derived from gasoline and automobile taxes, $8,288,620, of which was used in the highway program. The remainder used on the highways came from $15,370,584 in the highway bonds.

Education was the second greatest item of state expense, this item totaling $9,950,422 for the fiscal year almost 15 cents of every dollar spent by the state. Charities correction and welfare received $2,812,972 from the state, 6.33 per cent of the state's income.

Interest, dividend and premiums other than special revenue bond interest amounted to $5,537,000, while pensions claimed $31,107,000, and general administration $4,415,000.

The state's $40,000,713 expenditures were financed from highway bonds, general taxes, special taxes, special highway bonds, and miscellaneous Federal aid.

"How you gonna keep 'em down on the farm?" Make an arrangement with the weather man for a term of unprecedentedly hot days and nights and you can keep 'em down on the farm till the cows come home, and even then many of the farm boys will be willing to milk the cows rather than go back to the hot, depressing cities.—Fayetteville Observer.

Negro Firemen Hold Successful Session Here

Entertained by the Colored Hose Reel Company of This City. E. Spencer Won the Championship Race and Was Awarded the Silver Belt.

After a busy and largely attended three-day session, the N. C. Colored Volunteer Firemen's Association ended its thirty-sixth annual convention in this city Thursday night with a big dance.

The convention was formally opened Tuesday morning with music and prayer, after which Mayor M. V. Horton extended the visiting firemen a cordial welcome, which was responded to by one of their race in words most appropriate. Following this several other selections of music, readings and talks by the members of the association were enjoyed, after which the association went into its business session.

Wednesday morning the firemen staged a most creditable parade, in which were decorated floats, led by the local colored company on Farmville's American-LaFrance fire truck, a brass band and mounted marshals. Other features of the parade were the various companies with their hose reels all decorated, intermingled with decorated automobiles bearing members and visitors attending the convention.

Ball games in the afternoons and dances each night were among the features of entertainment.

Editor's Note—The North Carolina Colored Volunteer Firemen's Association is to be congratulated for the manner in which they conduct their conventions. Not a sober convention was ever held than the one held by them here this week, and Farmville and its citizens were agreeably surprised at their actions while here.

Mr. Sherrod Brockwell, Chief Fire Marshall of North Carolina, was in Farmville Thursday attending the convention held here by the N. C. Colored Volunteer Firemen's Association.

Twenty-Five Thousand and More Autos

Raleigh, Aug. 24.—Twenty-five thousand more automobile licenses have been sold by the state department of revenue's automobile license bureau than had been sold by the corresponding date last year, according to Sprague Silver, chief of the bureau.

Mr. Silver stated that the new filing and addressing system which has been installed in the bureau has saved much work this year.

He stated that the bureau will start moving into its new quarters in the new revenue building on Wednesday.

NELSON-WOMBLE

On Wednesday afternoon, August 25th, the Christian church was the scene of a quiet wedding, when Miss Gladys Nelson became the bride of Mr. T. S. Womble. Rev. D. C. Gordon officiated, using the impressive ring ceremony.

The bride was very attractive, gowned in a black satin traveling dress, with hat to match.

Miss Nelson is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Nelson, of Greenville, having taught in Winston-Salem for several years.

Mr. Womble is a promising young business man, holding the position of assistant cashier in a Winston-Salem bank.

STOLEN—HUDSON COACH

Stolen from in front of the Christian church Thursday night about 8:00 o'clock, my Hudson Coach, License No. 32-798, Motor No. 304218. There was a round hole in the left running board and the coal dash was slightly crushed between the ventilator and the windshield. Any information leading to the recovery of same will be rewarded.

CERTIFICATE OF DISSOLUTION

State of North Carolina, Department of State.

To All to Whom These Presents May Come—Greeting:

Whereas, it appears to my satisfaction, by duly authenticated record of the proceedings for the voluntary dissolution thereof by the unanimous consent of all the stockholders, deposited in my office, that the Knob-Bell Warehouse Company, a corporation of this state, whose principal office is situated on Wilson street, in the town of Farmville, county of Pitt, State of North Carolina (L. R. Bell, secretary, being the agent therein and in charge thereof, upon whom process may be served), has complied with the requirements of chapter 22, consolidated statutes, entitled "Corporations," preliminary to the issuing of this Certificate of Dissolution;

Now, Therefore, I, W. N. Everett, secretary of state of the State of North Carolina, do hereby certify that the said corporation did, on the 16th day of August, 1926, file in my office a duly executed and attested consent in writing to the dissolution of said corporation, executed by all the stockholders thereof, which said consent and the record of the proceedings aforesaid are now on file in my said office as provided by law.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal at Raleigh, this 16th day of August, A. D. 1926.

W. N. EVERETT,
 Secretary of State.

Pains disappeared

"SEVERAL years ago I was badly run-down," says Mrs. John Bunch, R. F. D. 3, Columbia, S. C. "I could not do any of my work. I was so weak I could not hold a dish. My back and sides ached me at times dreadfully. I dragged around until I found out in bed."

Then, explains Mrs. Bunch, she happened to read about Gardol, the women's tonic, and decided to try it. It was a thorough trial, the results of which she describes below:

"It seemed to reach the cause of my trouble at once. I did not take it long before my appetite began to improve. I gained in weight from 114 pounds until now I weigh 125 pounds. I soon was able to be up around the house. I took up my household duties and was delighted with my returning strength."

"I know of all my own work. The pains in my sides and back have disappeared and I feel like a different person."

Gardol has been helping me during women for nearly 50 years. Get it by all druggists.

THE POOR MALE GOOD LAST WORDS. A FLYING MACHINE. BIG MEN HELP LITTLE MEN.

Professor Julian Huxley, who inherits his love of science, says courtship and deep affection exist even among lower animals. The male crab holds his big, brightly colored claw in the air to attract the lady crab's favorable attention.

The male spider will catch a fly and offer it to the female spider, as you have seen a rooster find a worm and let a hen eat it. Sometimes, at the last moment, he eats it himself.

The poor male spider is most to be pitied of all husbands, for his wife usually devours him at the end of their honeymoon. The female praying mantis has the same disagreeable habit.

Last words of great men are piously collected. Frederick the Great's "Tete d'Armees," Pitt's "My country, boy I love thee" or "How I leave thee," Goethe's "More light" and Theodore Roosevelt's "Please turn out the light."

A young policeman, Frank Murphy, killed by bandits in the course of duty, said to his captain, who conduced with him as he lay dying: "That's all right, Cap, it's all in the job." Those last words are as good as any.

A feature of the war between church and State in Mexico that causes worry is the agitation and indignation in other Latin countries of South America, all overwhelmingly Catholic.

The first protest is sent to Mexico by the President of Peru, who requests "re-establishment of harmony between the Mexican Government and the Catholic church."

Calles, Mexican President, warns foreign nations not to interfere with Mexico's private, internal affairs, and informs Peru that he will proceed to enforce Mexican laws concerning religion "without fearing foreign interference or supernatural punishments."

About Your Health

Things You Should Know

OUT OF DOORS.

It is not enough to believe in out-door exercise—it must be put into practice, if we would energize the physical being to make it capable for well-directed mental effort.

Too many elderly people abandon all physical exertion, the only method of preserving their agility, which is all the worse because indolent habits hasten dreaded disaster which is failure of the body to perform its reasonable duties.

One of the greatest blessings within our reach costs the least. The great out-doors is free and it is poor economy to purchase financial supremacy with shortened life.

This is the season of vacations, in which the out-doors may be sought with comfort and without danger of exposure. If you dislike golf, try the fishing trip. A little dip on you is a blessing in disguise—the delight of washing it off has the special virtue of being great for health. Sunshine is the best of liniments for the pores; to breathe through the skin is a privilege fraught with reward for the "hide-bound" sinner. A good coat of tan is a good off-set for winter fan-tails. Climbing a barbed-wire fence or a rail fence for that matter, is depriving the doctor of his visit, while as an appetizer there is none better.

When you arrive at the beach that one, three, or five years may roll around and find you "checked out" you will wish you had not neglected the out-door exercise—now too late to perform. A tummy figure is built by too little exertion physically, and, oh, what a mess!
