Hogging Down Corn Paid Good Profit

Grow corn, feed it to hogs and make money in 1931 is the suggestion W. W. Shay, swine extension specialist at State College, is seeking to broadcast over North Carolina this winter.

"There is no mystery in feeding corn to hogs for a good profit," says Mr. Shay. "The idea is not patented nor copyrighted and if the plan of feeding is followed systematically it will make money for the operator. The corn and hog combination is about the only bright spot in North Carolina agriculture this year and beginning with 1931, the system should be made a permanent part of farming operations on every farm where as much as 35 bushels of corn an acre can be produced."

Mr. Shay points out that 35 bushels of corn should be easy to produce. None of the 60 or more contestants in the Atlantic Coast Line 5-acre contest made less than 50 bushels the past season and the 4-H club boys entered in the Chilean Nitrate of Soda contest made from 80 to over 100 bushels an acre by following good methods. Club boys generally doubled the annual average for the State. This all indicates the ease with which good yields of corn may be produced.

If this corn is hogged down as was done by three good farmers in eastern Carolina last year it will pay 800 percent increase in profit over the old method of harvesting and selling it as grain. In addition, valuable plant food will be left on the soil for building up the land. Mr. Shay has worked out an interesting set of figures showing how the three men made their profits last season and will send a copy free to any person desiring to begin work this year. He has also prepared extension circular 181 telling how to feed hogs for profit. This also may be had on application.

Home demonstration club women of Craven County donated over 100 jars of canned or preserved fruits and vegetables to the needy of the county during the holiday season.

The 25 farmers' mutual exchanges now operating in this State did a combined business of over a million and a half dollars in 1930.

R. J. Johnson, local negro farm agent in Greene County, was recently awarded a medal for having done the best work of any colored agent employed by the State College Extension Service in 1930.

Women Played Part In Farm Success

Farm women and girls enrolled in home demonstration clubs in the 56 counties where home demonstration agents are employed increased their supply of home canned goods by a quarter of a million cans in 1930 over the previous year.

"Our records show 1,411,376 cans of vegetables and fruits conserved during the spring and summer months of 1930," says Mrs. Jane S. McKimmon, state home agent and assistant director of extension at State College. "This increase of 250,000 cans over the previous year means that the pantry shelves of most farm homes are well stocked for the winter and that many women have a good surplus to sell for cash on the curb markets of the State."

Mrs. McKimmon says 1,550 pounds of vegetables, and 1,456 pounds of fruits are required for the average farm family of father, mother and three children if they are to be well fed through a year. A properly planned canning budget requires 57 pints of vegetables and 47 pints of fruit for each person in the family during the year.

In 1930, there were 7,000 farm homes where the mothers had a year around garden to supply the vegetable needs throughout the entire 12 months.

A number of women have made reports as to the value of their gardens last season. In addition to canning 800 pints of fruits and vegetables from her garden, one woman, who is a good example, said she sold $315.92 worth of garden produce and pantry supplies during the season. A Wake County farmer reports canning 8,000 different cans of material and is selling his surplus for cash.

Under the direction of the home demonstration folks, also, some of the state institutions have been taught the right principles of good canning and saved much of their winter food by this means. In seven counties, Negro farm women reported filling 111,352 cans of vegetables last season, says Mrs. McKimmon.

Makes Money Farming And Scorns Relief

As the live-at-home campaigners go about the State urging the adoption of better farming methods in 1931, they are constantly finding good farmers who are making a success of their business and are putting aside some cash each season.

Such a person is Z. K. Simpson of Marshville, route 2, in Union County. Mr. Simpson is a young man, only 39; he is married; has five children, and owns the place he bought on a credit in 1919. T. J. W. Broow, county farm agent of Union County, says Mr. Simpson bought a farm of 78 acres for $3250 in 1919. A small inheritance of between $600 and $700 from his father was paid on the place and with that start Mr. Simpson began farming. The farm was poor with no improvements, only a small house to live in while he fought for something better.

Today Mr. Simpson has the farm all paid for. In addition he has built a new home costing $3,500 cash; a new barn costing $500 cash; new poultry houses costing $500 cash, and has installed a $1,000 water system for his home, barns and poultry yards. In addition he has $1,500 loaned out, has 22 bales of good cotton in storage and has a nice checking account at the bank.

The details of how he won this from the 78 acres of soil is interesting but hard work and commonsense backed the enterprise. He first standardized his fertilizer problem by using 1000 pounds of a 10-4-4 fertilizer per acre for his cotton. In 1930, he made 14 bales on 12 acres; in 1929 he made 16 bales on 13 acres; in 1928, he made 13 bales on 12 acres, and in 1927 he made 23 bales on 18 acres. He rotates his crops, has filled his soil with humus so that the fertilizer is more profitable and he has never run a time bill at the store nor bought feed and foodstuffs. His gross income each year from poultry, surplus milk, and garden stuff is over $5,000 in addition to his cotton and other cash crops.

Now Is Time To Dig Nicaragua Canal

There could be no better time than the present to begin the work of constructing a canal across Nicaragua, connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. It would provide work at good pay for tens of thousands of workers for years to come and it would benefit every part of the United States.

The Panama Canal has proved a great success. It is earning more than its upkeep and in time will have repaid its cost. But it is already being used almost to capacity and shipping men are wondering how long it will be before it is inadequate. Some people are talking of a plan to dig the Panama Canal deeper, to make it a sea-level passageway. But that would take as much time as to build a new canal across Nicaragua, and would cost as much money.

Under a treaty between the two nations, the United States and Nicaragua, ratified in 1916, we have the perpetual right to construct the Nicaragua canal, and to operate it as well as to fortify its approaches. Army engineers who have been surveying the route have finished their task and will shortly make a report which will indicate that it is entirely feasible. As soon as that report is in its hands Congress should authorize the beginning of construction.

The Nicaragua Canal will be 350 miles shorter—a whole day's steaming—than the Panama route between New York and Pacific ports. It will save 550 miles and two days time between New Orleans and Los Angeles. It will further reduce the cost of transporting passengers and merchandise between our two coasts, and will expedite the transfer of our naval forces from one ocean to another in case of war. Moreover, it will bring the five Central America republics into closer touch with the United States and will thereby tend to remove much of the ill-feeling, born of ignorance, which exists toward us in those regions.

Those are some of the arguments in favor of the Nicaragua Canal. We cannot at the moment think of a word argument against it.

FORD SMOOTHNESS

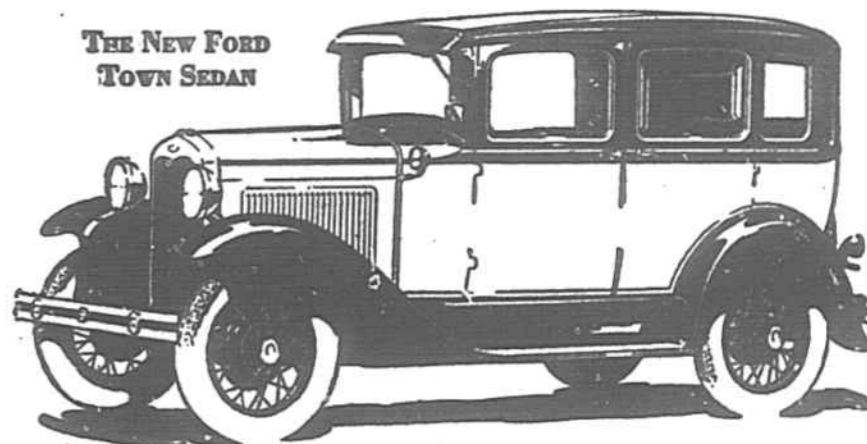

The new Ford has more than twenty ball and roller bearings

EVIDENCE of the high quality built into the new Ford is the extensive use of ball and roller bearings. There are more than twenty in all — an unusually large number. Each bearing is adequate in size and carefully selected for the work it has to do.

At some points in the Ford chassis you will find ball bearings. At others, roller bearings are used regardless of their higher cost. The deciding factor is the performance of the car.

The extensive use of ball and roller bearings in the new Ford insures smoother operation, saves gasoline, increases speed and power, gives quicker pick-up, decreases noise, and gives greater reliability and longer life to vital moving parts.

Other outstanding features that make the new Ford a value far above the price are the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, silent, fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves, three-quarter floating rear axle, Rustless Steel, the extensive use of fine steel forgings, and unusual accuracy in manufacturing.
