SUPPOSE FOR INSTANCE

(By Uncle Watt)

Suppose for instance, there were more than one Court Supreme, Or some other Tribunal to appear from behind the screen. Suppose an unadulterated Congress and State Legislators too Were to convene in session and show us what they could do. Suppose our President and forty-eight governors throughout the land, Backed up by 40,000,000 voters under their command, Would together raise their voices for patriotic rights, Like Moses did when leading the doomed Israelites. Suppose some Dives, beguiled by silver and gold, Were to exile all poor Lazeruses when they became old. Like our governor and legislators let the opportunity fall, Which Uncle Sam offered to help the old age's merciful call. 'Tis said the "mill can never grind with water that's past," Neither will Truth crushed to earth forever last. No Star of Hope has ever fell from despair, But little meteors fall promiscuously everywhere. Suppose men had brains equal to their narrow minds, Perhaps their "paths of glory" would soon be left behind. Suppose, after all, men could share equal rights, From the dawn of day until the dim of night. Why our State can stand for such unfair taxation As the present sales tax, is beyond my imagination. The idea of charging one cent on a dime loaf of bread, And only charging one cent per $50 on automobile purchase, it is said. (Consistency, where art thou?)

THE MARINE CORPS

Major Ralph E. Davis, Officer in charge of the Marine Corps Recruiting District of Savannah, With Headquarters in the New Post Office Building, Savannah, Ga., says that although there is no royal road to knowledge, the Marine Corps authorities have opened a way to knowledge for members of the Corps by means of the Marine Corps Institute correspondence courses. There is an old saying that "knowledge is power" and I believe that this may be accepted as true. It is equally true that every parent wishes to give to his sons every advantage of education and, through education, that power which is so essential today in meeting and solving the intricate problems of life. Unfortunately, all parents are not in a financial position to continue the education of their sons beyond the high school, and it is at this point of a youth's career that thoughtful, loving parents may well devote a little time to mature deliberation and serious consideration of the many advantages which will accrue to any young man from enlistment in the U. S. Marine Corps. Enlistment in this fine old Corps of the Federal armed forces immediately renders a youth self-supporting, thus helping to ease the financial strain under which so many of our citizens are struggling at present. Athletics and sports are encouraged among our personnel as the government provides all equipment, and these in conjunction with regular and healthful lives insure sound bodies. The Marine Corps Institute provides correspondence courses in engineering, accountancy, languages and many others, and any Marine who so desires may enroll and receive the benefits of his selected course wherever he may be stationed. Vacancies are now being filled at the Savannah office. Young men in this vicinity desiring service in the Marine Corps will be mailed application blanks upon request.

The average production per hen for the State of North Carolina is 60 eggs a year while demonstration flocks on which records are kept by the State College poultry department produce from 152 in the eastern part of the State to 170 in the western area.

DEFICIENCY BILL
INCLUDES $12,500
FOR NEW ACT

Washington, Jan. 21.—The deficiency bill introduced today included $12,500 for operation of the new tobacco inspection act. The money would pay for a referendum to determine whether producers desired government grading of their crop before it is sold on auction warehouse floors. An item of $250,000 is in next year's budget for administering the tobacco law but the $12,500 was asked immediately in view of the early opening of the markets.
