WHY NOT ?

The ever old but vastly intriguing subject of marking the streets of Farmville and numbering the houses here, has been brought up again recently, and unlike most questions of real importance to a town, not a dissenting voice has been raised in our hearing.

With new business houses, apartments and homes being erected and a golf course only awaiting a spell of sunshine and drying winds for completion, with some labor thrown in of course, Farmville will soon be taking on a city like air indeed.

And how "rebarassing" it is going to be, for caddies, who try directing visiting golfers to some friend's home if they do not know where "Papa Joe" or Dr. Joyner live, or where the Baptist church or the school building are located!

The cost of marking the streets will be so small as to be unworthy of consideration and we suggest this as one of the finest ways the present Mayor and Board might be remembered. To the home owner it would only mean a trip to the dime store a fifteen cents purchase and three minutes of time to put up the numbers.

Believe it or not a great many residents here have no idea what street they live on. We told a certain lady the other day that she resided on Horne Avenue, and she laughed at us. Unless the City Fathers have changed the names of the short streets recently Luther Thomas lives on the corner of Lang street and Moore's Lane, and Sterling Gates' home is located on the corner of Main and Tyson streets. We wonder if they know this.

The names of many of our streets are very beautiful and significant, several being named for pioneer citizens; Lang, May, Belcher, Horton, Barrett, Fields; two for native and beloved trees, Pine and Walnut; Grimmersburg was named in honor of the Moye settlement two miles out; Contentnea, called that in honor of Little Contentnea creek, which flows across the North end, and suggesting peaceful firesides and contented families, is a residential street living up to its lovely name and fine traditions; Church street at the time it was named could boast of the only church in the community, old Antioch; Wilson street converges into the Wilson highway; Pitt was named for the county; Greene honors the General for whom the county seat is named, and of course like all small towns there is a Main street, on which are to be found the business houses and municipal building.

WHY NOT support this movement to mark the streets and number the homes, so that we may direct people intelligently instead of using the method followed here at the town's information bureau, the newspaper office, where after using all the fingers on both hands to point out his destination to a stranger, we usually end by cranking up the car and "blazing" the trail.

SMEARING CAMPAIGNS

A few years ago this country of ours was treated to a series of passionate upbraidings of those who were assailing the Hoover administration.

The spokesmen of that administration over a radio, in the halls of Congress, in the newspapers and in the magazines, were bitterly denouncing what they termed the campaign to "smear Hoover."

Just as strenuously did the men who were conducting the Democratic side of that controversy protest that there was no slander of the then President, that the attacks were on his policies and not on him personally, etc.

It is a curious manifestation of the whittling of politics that these same men are now in charge of a campaign in which they see the allies instead of the assailants of the Republican organization and their target is now a Democratic instead of a Republican President.

It is interesting to turn back to the fine speeches made by Mr. Josephus Shouse, present President of the American Liberty League, and to read such stirring paragraphs as: "Never has the party in power been so demoralized, so divided, never has the rift been wider than it is now between these members of the party who are striving for progress in government and politics and the dominating faction that has for generations directed it in the interest of privileged corporations and individuals to the detriment of liberty and prosperity of the average citizen."

Now who do you suppose he was thinking of when he spoke of privileged corporations and individuals behind the Hoover administration? Perhaps the answer may be found in the roster and directory of the Liberty League, with the heads of war munition corporations, holding company chiefs, and the rest of the noble band that are now in the midst of their crusade to save the country from Democracy.

Dr. Fess Found a Public Exposure The Republicans did not like it and many were the complaints of protest in their speeches and in their statements. For example, here was this, from Chairman Fess of the Republican National Committee:

"The Republican party paid no attention to Mr. Raskob until the public exposure of the sinister plan to impair or destroy the Republican party by scurrilous and slanderous attacks upon President Hoover and his administration.

"This conspiracy, which has been without counter part in the history of American politics, was disclosed by a Democrat of unblemished party record, Frank R. Kent of the Baltimore Sun, who asserted in the September issue of Scribner's magazine that Mr. Raskob had set up and was financing an organization in the nation's capital for the sole purpose of 'smearing' the President of the United States.

"The Republican National Committee called the attention of the country to this scheme as exposed by Mr. Kent. Beyond this we care nothing about Mr. Raskob. The Democratic party is welcome to him and all of his millions."

At the present moment the Democratic National Committee is paying off the last of its debt to Mr. Raskob, and Mr. Raskob is named among the large contributors to that annex of the Republican National Committee, the Liberty League.

Interview With O. G. Spell, Local Agent N. S. Railroad Co.

Store-Door Collection and Delivery, and Also Allowance To Shipper or Receiver for Use of Own Motor Trucks in Performing Terminal Service

Effective February 1st, or as near that date as possible, the Norfolk Southern Railroad will inaugurate the so-called collection and delivery of less carload freight, at the shipper's or consignee's place of business. Where the railroad does not perform the collection or delivery service, on account of the shipper or consignee electing to perform this terminal service, the railroad will make an allowance to the shipper or receiver, as the case may be, of five cents per hundred pounds.

The inauguration of this service is not for the purpose of putting the truckman out of business, but rather to bring about a more equal or competitive adjustment of rates and practices to that now, generally, accorded by the highway operator. Prior to the enactment of laws by Congress in 1935, the highway operator doing an interstate business, did not file schedule of charges applicable to freight moving from one state to another. During the 1935 session of Congress the Motor Vehicle Law was passed and made a part of the Interstate Commerce Act that had governed railroads since 1887. The dead line for filing of tariff schedules with the Interstate Commerce Commission as applicable to all traffic, whether handled by franchise truck lines or contract haulers, is February 12th. On and after that date the tariff charges of the highway operator can not be departed from, except by making changes in the usual way as required by law of the railroads. There will be for the first time some tangible evidence of the highway charges on interstate traffic, and accordingly, the railroad will be in position to measure with a reasonable approximation the charges of its competitor. The effect, therefore, of the collection and delivery service is in the direction of bringing order out of chaos and, at the same time, to give the public increased and greater competitive form of service without any additional charge. After all, the public wants competition and the railroads have no fear of competition as long as their competitor is now reasonably regulated under the same terms and a number of exceptions that permit of many commodities, particularly products of agriculture, to be handled interstate without being subject to the Motor Vehicle Law, but with the passing of time experience will demonstrate the necessity for changes in the Law and when that is done, a further and more modern adjustment and practices upon the part of the rails may be expected.

The difficulty in the inauguration of service of this kind in the past has been due to the lack of stability in the charges of the highway operator applicable to interstate traffic, rather than to absence of initiative upon the part of the management of the railroads.
