THANKS TO ALL!

The editor of the Enterprise wishes to extend congratulations to the successful candidates in our recent campaign and express appreciation to them, and to our highly esteemed campaign manager, Joe Campbell, and to Mrs. Campbell, for their interest and efforts in behalf of this venture during the past six weeks.

We, of the Enterprise staff, have found the contracts with our contestants pleasant and we already miss their activities in and about the office.

To our subscriber-friends, old and new, we shall continue to strive to hold our publication to the high standard of presenting the news of Nation, State, County and Community in an unbiased and readable form, and wish to assure you our earnest desire to serve you in every way possible.

EAGLE ATTACKS GIRL

It's some story that comes from the Jarrett community, about forty miles north of Austin, Texas, where "an eagle of enormous size" fastened its claws in the body of a 13-year-old Negro girl and attempted to carry her from the cotton field where she was working.

Her screams brought a rescuer, who beat off the bird with a pair of cotton scales. The big bird fought until a gun reached the scene and it was killed. The girl, says a report was badly injured by the eagle, that had a wing spread of nearly seven feet.

Practically every reader is familiar with the legend that big eagles have flown away with little boys and girls. The tendency is to doubt the occurrence and the same applies to the Texas story, but it has been printed in reputable newspapers and we presume it is the truth.

WHO DRIVES THE SCHOOL BUS?

Nearly every year the people of this country read the harrowing details of the death of school children, killed when a railroad engine smashes into a school bus.

The latest recorded tragedy occurred in Mason City, Iowa, when a streamlined train, not "going to very fast," hit a bus in the middle, killing nine persons instantly and seriously injuring others.

The drivers of school vehicles, as a general rule, are careful. It seems certain, however, that sometimes some of them take fearful chances and inevitably, tragedy results. The safety of pupils, who ride in a school bus, is in the keeping of the driver of the vehicle. Their lives can be safe only so long as the driver refuses to "take any chances."

School authorities in this country, upon reading of such terrible fatalities, should make it their business to check-up on the driving habits of all drivers entrusted with pupils. Highway patrolmen and other officers should make it their concern to know that the driver of any school bus is a safe driver. The major responsibility, however, rests upon school authorities who hire drivers; they should meet that responsibility and, if necessary, get other drivers.

WATCH OUT, "LITTLE FELLOWS"

Experts who have watched the gyrations of the stock market recently report that the "little fellow" has not been swept away by fluctuating prices but that, on the other hand, he remains a net buyer.

Our own advice to "little fellows" is to get out of the stock market and stay out. While the newly promulgated relations have done much to protect investors, but there is room for considerable improvement before the "little fellow's" money will be safe in Wall Street operations.

If any reader of the Enterprise has some money to invest the chances are that opportunities exist locally where he can keep his eye on what happens to the investment. If one must go into the stock market, do so only to invest funds that you wish to permanently allocate for that purpose. Buy stocks to hold, for their dividend possibilities and not because of any hunch that the market might have another surge upward.

Truth of the matter, the market will probably surge upward but that does not mean that the "little fellows" who play the big man's game will get out with heavy gains. It usually happens that the "little fellow" stays too long. Besides he is playing another man's game and he hasn't the information that the big players have to guide their market operations.

ARMISTICE DAY—LEST WE FORGET

The approach of Armistice Day naturally causes our thought to turn backward nineteen years to the memorable announcement that the World War had come to an end.

It should make us reflect upon the mad course of the world since that happy day. The "war to end war" was undoubtedly a failure so far as accomplishing the great idea was concerned but this does not mean, necessarily, that it was entirely in vain.

Today we see a world getting into shape again for another conflict. And there is no mistake about the intent of several nations although there is some doubt about the time. Already the tide in this country is running against our entanglement and the argument used is the experience that we have had with the diplomats since the great war came to an end.

Whether the United States could have been a potent factor for peace in this country had joined the League of Nations and that agency had functioned as it was intended remains a matter of angry dispute. Certain it is however, that our course since the World War, has not been successful in preventing the world from approaching the brink of another titanic struggle. Whether it will be the means of enabling us to avoid conflict remains to be seen but there is great doubt if this will be the case.

Anyway, there is again upon us the opportunity to pay reverent tribute to the brave souls who gave up their lives for this nation in battle. They deserve the reverent gratitude of a free people and their memory should be enshrined in the hearts of those familiar with the great sacrifice they made. So far as they were concerned, they died in behalf of a noble ideal, enunciated by a great American, and their heroism is not to be slighted because the dream of peace has not yet arrived.

So, The Enterprise salutes the memory of the departed soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses. Without in any degree glorifying warfare, we glory in their greatness. To them duty made the greatest of demands, that they lay down their lives for their country and their response was a new era in American patriotism. Let us always remember them.

Let us do a little more than remember them—the dead heroes. And, those they left behind... their loved ones who miss the contribution that their existence might have made to comfort. Let not the nation, or the surviving veterans in their zealous advocacy of pensions and payments to the living, overlook the stranded loved ones who seem not to be organized to secure for themselves the bounty that they sometimes require and undoubtedly deserve.

THE SPANISH OUTBREAK

The Spanish revolution is about to approach its climax, with General Franco leading his full forces in a determined offensive from the neighborhood of Zaragoza towards Catalonia, hoping to cut this portion of Spain from Madrid and the south.

News from Berlin and Rome indicates that Germany and Italy intend to stand by the revolutionary leader, who has recently been congratulated by Mussolini for his great triumph in the northwest. Italy now admits that 40,000 Italian soldiers fight with Franco and other observers believe that this an understatement.

From Paris comes the opinion that the war in Spain has not yet been won by either side. French experts say that Franco has about 375,000 men under his command and that the Government's army is around 450,000. Foreign volunteers in the revolutionary army are estimated at from 60,000 to 80,000 and those in the Republican forces at 15,000. While the French are in sympathy with the Government the figures are apparently indicative of the ratio of outside help to the two sides.

Meanwhile the nations continue in parleys about the withdrawal of all volunteers but the opinion is general that the war will be settled before anything effective is accomplished.

FALL

Fall is the season I love best,
That's the time that most folks rest;
Leaves fall down and I can play;
But the farmers must get up their hay,
And Halloween is drawing near,
And that makes me love the fall of the year.

—Warren Peele, 3rd Grade,
Fountain High School.

AUTUMN

This is the season I love best,
Because the leaves are so well dressed.
The pumpkins are turning ripe,
And I want one for Halloween night.

—Daphne Owens Yelverton,
Fountain High School.

Don't put up with useless PAIN

Get rid of it

When functional pains of menstruation are severe, take CARDUL. If it doesn't benefit you, consult a physician. Don't neglect such pains. They depress the tone of the nerves, cause sleeplessness, loss of appetite, wear out your resistance. Get a bottle of Cardul and see whether it will help you, as thousands of women have said it helped them.

Besides easing certain pains, Cardul aids in building up the whole system by helping women to get more strength from their food.

MAMMOTH HIPPODROME COMING TO GREENVILLE

An opportunity to see one of the greatest educational exhibits of all time will be given to the people of this vicinity next Wednesday, November 10, when the Mammoth Marine Hippodrome arrives in Greenville for a one day engagements.

One of the features of the exhibit is a huge Sea Monster weighing 68-tons and is over 55 feet long. In a perfect state of preservation, and just as it appeared when encountered off the coast of San Clemente several months ago. In addition the sea monster exhibit will include over 400 other specimens of marine life, such as the Octopus, pilot fish, man eating sharks, sword fish, and a modern type of harpoon gun used in the capture of whales.

Another feature that accompanies the sea monster is "Serpentina" known as the "mermaid", nature's strangest living enigma. Possessing no spinal column, vertebrae, or back bone she has become a puzzle to scientists and a despair to doctors. Of all the curiosities of nature that have been presented from time to time, there has been absolutely nothing to equal Serpentina.

Captain David J. Barnett, veterans whaling commander, accompanies the exhibition, and spins many an interesting yarn relative to his past experiences and also enlightens the spectators on the life of the habits of the various specimens on exhibit and is in charge of a crew of thirty men that also accompany the exhibition.

All attractions which is on a specially constructed railroad car, will be placed on a siding near the Norfolk & Western Depot immediately on arrival in Greenville and will be open to the public from noon until 10 p. m. Admission 10 cents.
