FROM $525,000 TO $63,000

A seat on the New York Stock Exchange recently sold for $63,000, an advance of $11,000 over the previously quoted price. Financiers consider it a "vaguely hopeful sign." At least, it demonstrates that there are persons who believe that money will be made in the stock market again.

Compared to 1924, when the price of seats was from $75,000 to $101,000, the 1938 quotation is not so bad. However, if one looks to 1929, it is possible to understand the late consternation among the brokers. In that boom year seats on the stock exchange sold for from $525,000 to $625,000. Later, in 1932, when most brokers had headaches, a seat sold as low as $68,000.

One wonders if the legitimate activities of a stock broker warrants such a fluctuation in the prices of seats on the New York Stock Exchange. It is easy to believe that only the lure of speculative profits and "easy pickings" explains the fabulous prices paid in the big boom.

The Seven Dwarfs—
Their Characters
In "Snow White"

The seven sterling dwarfs in Walt Disney's first feature-length production, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," showing at the Paramount Theatre Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, May 1, 2, 3, will not be strange personalities to anyone viewing them. Each represents a type of human being in this fascinating production in Technicolor which RKO Radio distributes to the world's picture houses.

Doc, the self-appointed leader, is self-important and pompous. He has a habit of getting his words and ideas mixed and of searching for the right word in vain. He is overly gracious and very efficient in his own mind until an important decision is necessary, when he becomes so nervous that he can't make any decision at all.

Happy is a fat roly-poly little fellow with a perpetual smile and a bright cheery voice.

Sleepy sees lift through half-closed eyes, and talks always through a yawn. He talks little, but when he does say something it is straight to the point, even though he doesn't know it.

Grumpy, the real leader of the group, is "agin" everything. His chief hate is "wimmin." He is grouchy, a crab, and yet, much to his disgust, he has a very soft heart under the veneer. When trouble arises, it is Grumpy who acts first.

Dopey is a lovable slightly-balmy fellow who gets a great kick out of life. He is sly and mischievous.

Sneaky is subject to hay fever and talks through his nose. He always sneezes at the wrong time.

Beastful is kind-hearted and willing, and an incurable romantic. He is especially shy, however, in the presence of Snow White.

Congressman Hancock's Ten Promises

To the People of North Carolina:

First, I shall not make my maiden speech in the United States Senate in support of bar rooms for the District of Columbia, nor will my last speech be in advocacy of the establishment of a race track. I will devote my time and energies to the real and definitely serious questions confronting our Nation.

Second, I will not have as my secretary of Virginia or of any other State except North Carolina. I am not only confident I can, but I am determined to employ from my native State such people as I need and am allowed. When North Carolina fails to have among its citizenship the brains I require it will then be time for me to come home and retire from public life.

Third, I shall not sell the name and dignity of your Senatorship to anybody or any concern, be it a slick "alien" trading with the War Department or a brand of cigarette which I may or may not smoke. As long as I am your representative the title to that office shall be and remain vested in the people of North Carolina. I shall be your Senator, responsible to you and beyond the touch of any interest, save the interest of the people of our great State.

Fourth, I shall not follow the sensationalism of William Randolph Hearst, arch enemy of President Roosevelt, or any other foe of progressive government. I will get my publicity on the basis of constructive accomplishments or do without publicity.

Fifth, I shall not, through concern over the free access of liquor, offer any silly bills providing that it may be given to dumb animals; but instead will give my thought to the serious problems of State and Nation and expect our intelligent people, by referendum, to determine the sort of liquor laws they may want.

Sixth, I shall not for months at a time leave the affairs of North Carolina to the discretion of a resident of Virginia or anybody else, but shall serve the people who elect me. My office shall be open, not closed, to those who have business with me during office hours.

Seventh, I shall not belittle the dignity of your Senator by bouncing about the country advertising myself and a 96-year old man who has become the father of a baby. His accomplishments is sufficient reward unto itself and I do not consider it the function of a Senator to add to his advertisement.

Eighth, I shall not promise the veterans or any other group to have one of their members in my office and then repudiate that promise, but, being myself a member of the American Legion, I shall help them with their affairs sympathetically and personally.

Ninth, I shall not be the most costly Senator North Carolina ever had, and I shall have no interest in investigating the Virgin Islands. There are many islands off the coast of my State, and I feel the impulse of consistency when I say that I should like to investigate them, but those investigations will not cost the taxpayers any money.

Tenth, I shall not be a resident of the world for five years and a resident of North Carolina for one, but shall be available to the people of my State just as much in years when I am not a candidate as in the years when I am. And when I make speeches to the people of North Carolina or any other State I shall make them under my own auspices or that of the Democratic party. I shall not use your office to propoganda the ambitions of any league or group of self-seeking individuals.

(The above were taken from his opening speech made in Raleigh over WPTF in the interest of his Candidacy for the United States Senate.)

Camel is made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOES. So it means a lot when they say that most smokers who grow tobacco smoke Camels themselves. Make Camel your cigarette too.

MEN like Mr. Carroll, with a lifetime's experience in growing tobacco, know that one cigarette—Camel—is made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOES. So it means a lot when they say that most smokers who grow tobacco smoke Camels themselves. Make Camel your cigarette too.

Old Thrifty Says

"YOU SAVE ALL WAYS ... WITH A GENERAL ELECTRIC"

Three ways that make the new 1938 General Electric refrigerator the finest, thriftiest refrigerator ever built.

(1) BIGGER VALUE Today's General Electric refrigerators have twice the cooling capacity, four times faster freezing than the famous General Electric refrigerator made ten years ago; yet, the price today is $100.00 lower.

(2) LESS CURRENT General Electric refrigerators not only provide greater cooling capacity and faster freezing, but also actually cost far less to operate. In fact, today's General Electric operates for about one-third the cost of its 1927 predecessor.

(3) LONGER LIFE The long life of General Electric refrigerators has never been questioned. There are over a million General Electrics in use today that have been providing uninterrupted service for periods of 5 years or longer.
