BOTH RACKETS

It's just about as we suspected! Senator McNaboe, of New York, member of joint legislative committee, investigating communism and nazism in that State, says that he is of the opinion that "both these movements are what might be called rackets."

In our opinion the New York legislator is right. They are rackets and their intake is increased by much of the publicity that is given them by easily-excited "patriots" and politicians with axes to grind.

SOVIET RUSSIA'S FLEET

We see by the newspapers that the President of Soviet Russia says that the Soviet must have a naval fleet second to none, even surpassing the fleet of Great Britain.

This is quite a different ambition from that of mastering the Germans in the Baltic or of matching the Japanese in the Far East. It is a dangerous ambition, too, as other nations have discovered in the past.

Nevertheless, one must realize that Soviet Russia is an immense country, abounding in resources. It has a large population that some day in the future, perhaps, will demand a place in the capitalist sun despite present-day talk of different ideals. Just what Russia will mean to the world in the next hundred years is quite a puzzle but those who suspect that the huge country of the late Czar is going to fold up completely might as well revive their ideas.

PEDESTRIAN RIGHTS

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has ruled that pedestrians have equal rights with automobiles on highways that have no sidewalks.

This is the law, undoubtedly, and yet few pedestrians care to contest their right with an automobile, approaching at sixty miles an hour. Those that make the mistake leave handsome claims for damages to their heirs when they stand on their rights and maintain their ground as the vehicle approaches.

This brings us to the question why sidewalks are not provided on highways in congested areas. Surely the State government that spends millions of dollars to give autoists means of transportation can afford to spend some money to give pedestrians safety as they go about their journeys. It is about time that somebody in authority, somewhere, gave a few thoughts to the rights of pedestrians, now theoretically upheld in the courts.

Explains Marketing Quotas For Tobacco

Tobacco growers' marketing quotas for 1938 will be determined in part from information that AAA committeemen have been gathering for the past two weeks or more.

The methods to be followed in calculating tobacco marketing quotas for individual growers have been established by Congress in the crop control program for this year, said E. Y. Floyd, AAA executive officer at State College.

The committeemen have been asked to determine what is considered the normal marketings of farms which have been producing tobacco in the past. These normal marketings will be subject to adjustment if necessary to keep the total for all individual growers from exceeding the state and national quotas.

The national quota for flue-cured tobacco is 705,000,000 pounds of which three per cent has been set aside for new growers. The state quotas will be determined on a basis of the normal marketings of the growers in each state producing flue-cured leaf. A four per cent addition to state quotas will be allowed for increasing the percentage of farms whose quotas are inadequate in view of past marketings.

In determining normal marketings, allowance will be made for abnormal weather, plant diseases, and other factors affecting production. The committeemen will consider the total crop land on the farm; the land in cash crops other than tobacco, the available curing barn space, and the number of families on the farm.

Also taken into consideration will be marketing during the past three years, with the highest of the following three years used: (1) the three-year average; (2) the highest year; (3) the highest year since 1935.

Rains Wash Soluble Nitrogen From Soil

Protracted rains this season have brought farmers concrete evidence of the risk they run when depending entirely upon soluble, inorganic sources of nitrogen in fertilizing crops at planting time, said C. B. Williams, head of the agronomy department at State College.

The pale green and yellow crops, especially in Eastern North Carolina, are suffering from a lack of nitrogen, he explained. The soluble sources of this element are easily leached out of the soil in rainy weather.

Experiments, however, have shown that where the inorganic nitrogen, which is necessary, is supplemented with organic sources such as cottonseed meal, soybean meal, fish meal, dried blood, or tankage, crops are better protected against nitrogen deficiency in wet weather. Nitrogen from organic sources does not dissolve as rapidly and will stay in the soil for a longer time than that from inorganic sources such as nitrate of soda and sulphate of ammonia.

Pale, sickly crops that appear to need nitrogen at this time will be helped by moderate applications of inorganic, quickly soluble nitrogen given as soon as possible, Professor Williams pointed out. Side-applications of 40 to 50 pounds of nitrogenous material that can be taken up at once by the plants should help cotton in fields where the nitrogen originally applied has leached out.

Moderate applications of 75 to 100 pounds of soda or 60 to 70 pounds of sulphate of ammonia per acre should be given at once to corn and sweet potatoes where needed, he added. Additional applications are not necessary for tobacco, but breaking out the middles and rigging the rows will put more fertilizer in reach of the plant roots and promote better growth.

Balboa, Canal Zone. — A sentry noticing two men near one of the 16-inch guns defending the Atlantic entrance to the Canal, challenged the men. Floyd Explains 1938 Cotton Sales Quotas

The cotton marketing quota for a farm this year will be the actual production or the normal production (whichever is greater) on the acreage allotment for that farm, plus cotton from any previous crop the producer may have on hand.

But if a farmer knowingly overplants his allotted acreage, his quota will be the normal production on his allotment unless the county committee finds proof that his actual production is above normal, said E. Y. Floyd, AAA executive officer at State College.

On a farm where two or more growers share in the crop and where the allotment is not exceeded, each grower will be entitled to a share in the marketing quota equal to his share in the cotton produced. Where the allotment is overplanted, the county committee will divide the quota equitably among the growers.

A grower who is dissatisfied with his quota, which will be announced later, may have it reviewed by a local committee if he puts in an application for review within 15 days after his quota announcement is mailed to him.

Growers will be given cards showing how much cotton they will be permitted to sell this year without penalty. Sales in excess of the quota are subject to a penalty of two cents a pound. Growers who plant more than their allotments will also lose payments offered under the agricultural conservation program.

Producers on farms whose total production does not exceed 1,000 pounds will be exempt from the two-cent penalty in connection with the marketing of any or all of their cotton.

There are people who do not think it is wrong to beat the Government.
