LET US HOPE . . .

There is much disturbance abroad as we commemorate the occasion of Thanksgiving Day this year. Let us hope that the majority of the nations will unite and stay united to prevent another war and that continued peace in these countries will preserve the ideal of peace and insure the liberty of our children.

ROYALTY! EXAMPLE

It is not very often that we find ourselves wholeheartedly commending the example of royalty but, it seems, King George, of Great Britain, sets a good example for American commoners in at least one respect.

The King recently gave to the municipal corporation of Windsor a tract of land, containing eighty acres with the hope that, in considering the future use of the land, the council would be mindful of the requirements of youth and do everything possible to provide recreation to increase physical fitness.

Not a bad idea, even for a King. Maybe some democratic commoner will be moved to demonstrate a similar interest in the youth of some American municipality.

IT'S MOSTLY UP TO YOU

Now that the election is over and the political experts have explained everything in connection with the balloting it might be just as well for the average citizen to resume life along routine lines.

For most of us the task this month is about the same that it was last month and our endeavors are devoted to the acquisition of sufficient coin of the realm to keep a jump or two ahead of our needs.

While national policies undoubtedly affect the fortunes of peoples everywhere, the effort of individuals is the more potent source of success. Consequently, as November moves towards its close, and the year 1938 spends its few remaining weeks, it might be well for us to survey our problems and prospects and plan a course that will be permanently beneficial.

The idea that young people have a monopoly upon personal progress and successful development is nonsense. Every individual can improve his or her lot by individual effort and the sensible step is to discover the avenue that is open for exploration and exploitation.

GERMANY'S BARBARISM

Germany's mistreatment of the Jews amazes American citizens who have believed that individuals should not be punished by a government except for specific wrongs, committed by the person penalized.

This is, we suspect, a basic law of civilized individuals. That all Jews in Germany will be punished because a misguided youth in Paris killed a Nazi official is not justice although it demonstrates the full extent of the depravity that governs Germany.

In Germany husbands and fathers have been arrested at work and deported into barren no-man's land without cash and without an opportunity of informing their wives and children of their fate. This is brutality.

In Germany Jewish professional men and reputable business men have been forced to give up their professions and businesses, regardless of their individual character and past achievements and no way has been opened to them to make a living for themselves or their dependents. This is barbarism.

In Germany Jewish people have been barred from schools and colleges, prohibited from attending public performances and, at times, refused the right to buy food in the stores, regardless of the starvation of children and women. This is rank and outrageous inhumanity.

There is no use to continue the recital. Hitlerism is intolerance, hatred and greed dominating a state that is organized for warfare on the basis of plunder. Hitlerism, it seems, represents organized robbery, theft and murder by deliberate design. It affects Germanic internal politics and it is to be seen in the aggressive, toward Czechoslovakia and other states of Central and Southeastern Europe.

In the United States, however, the Jewish people are free to practice their religion and to follow their own customs and traditions. They are not persecuted and their rights are protected.

man race and now paves the way for a revolution of feeling that will, some day, hold Hitlerism responsible for its sins.

Elizabeth City. — The North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was adjourned by Bishop Clare Purcell Monday morning after appointment of ministers had been announced and the conference had adopted a resolution denouncing the "barbaric cruelties" imposed on the Jews in Germany and "everywhere else."

Dwight Ware of Rocky Mount introduced the resolution calling for the "extension of christian sympathy" to the persecuted Jews and an endorsement of all movements with Jewish relief as their goal.

CHARGE

London, Nov. 21. — The charge that 70 Jews had been killed in one German concentration camp was made in the House of Commons tonight by Philip Noel-Baker, Laborite.

Opening formal debate on the question of oppressed minorities in Europe, Noel-Baker said: "At a concentration camp near Weimar 70 Jews were killed on the night before it was known that Vom Rath had died."

He referred to Ernst Vom Rath, German diplomat who died in Paris November 9, from gunshot wounds inflicted by Herschel Grynszpan, 17-year-old Polish Jew.

At Leicester Former Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said it was "unthinkable that Britain should even contemplate" discussions on the return of Germany's pre-war colonies.

"Concessions that might have been at least discussible in some conditions become inconceivable in others," Eden asserted, adding that Germany's pre-war colonies.

Condition

Any market improvement in milk and butter prices during the next few years will depend on further recovery in business and a rise in the general level of prices, says John A. Arey, of State College.

Our idea of wasted time very often is hearing two lawyers arguing a case before a judge.

What is the farm outlook for next year?

This question is answered annually by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, of the Department of Agriculture, in a series of reports covering current and prospective situations as to supply, prices and demand for all major farm products. They include all available information in order to aid farmers in making their crop and livestock production and marketing plans for the coming year.

The basic material has been assembled and organized by economists and statisticians for the past few months. They have been assisted in scores of state agricultural extension economists. This week we continue to publish some of the outlook reports.

BETTER LIVING SEEN FOR FARM FAMILIES

Farm families will have more money to spend next year—more net cash from farm products, increased Government payments, and larger income from non-farm sources, the Federal Bureau of Agricultural Economics and Home Economics says in outlook report on farm family living for the coming year.

The increase will be spent for better living, to pay off debts, and to improve farm properties, the report said. The Bureau look for improvement especially in the "general net worth situation" of families having cash income of $600 or more. Below this sum, living expenses have first claim on funds.

"Dollar for dollar," the farm family's money income is expected to stretch about as far next year as this, since the general level of prices of commodities bought for living is not expected to change much in 1939 from late 1938. After a period of limited spending power, many farm families may plan to enlarge their programs of food production for home use, thus releasing cash for other purposes.

The cash released will go into farm improvements, into radios, automobiles, electrical appliances, clothing, house furnishings and other things which farmers, like city people, now regard as important in modern ways of living.

"During the 1930's there has been a trend," the report stated "toward broadened social contacts for farm families though improved transportation and communication, better roads, widespread ownership and greater use of automobiles, and an increase in radios."

Government surveys reveal that about three-fifths of all farm families now have radios and that proportionately more farm than city families have automobiles. An increase in purchases of radios is expected next year, and the farm family, the report points out, is a two-to-one prospect for a used as contrasted with a new car.

Eight years ago only 13 per cent of the farms had electricity. Now, 18 per cent have electricity, and this trend is expected to continue — "In part because of the Government program of encouraging rural electrification, and in part because of anticipated income increases."

SMALLER ACREAGE FOR TRUCK CROPS IN 1939

A small reduction in truck crop averages for the 1939 harvest is indicated by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in its annual outlook report on the major truck crops.

The relatively prices received this year by growers of important truck crops for fresh market shipment are cited as the main factor pointing to a slight reduction in the total acreage planted for the coming year. In 1938 the acreage and production of truck crops for market were the largest on record. With consumer incomes rather low, growers' prices dropped sharply.

If production is reduced next year and consumer purchasing power increases as much as now anticipated, prices and income to producers "will be somewhat higher" than in 1938.

The discouraging price situation in 1938 is expected to result in smaller acreages of lima beans, peas, cabbage, celery, cucumbers, onions and tomatoes for the country as a whole. Plantings may be some larger for asparagus, snap beans, spinach, and watermelons.

Substantial increases are indicated in the acreages for some of the 1938-39 fall and winter vegetables. But these crops, except for asparagus, comprise a very small portion of the United States total imports of Cuban and Mexican vegetables this winter are expected to be below last year's shipments.

POTATO SITUATION IS MORE FAVORABLE

A more favorable outlook for potato growers in 1939 is indicated by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, largely as a result of prospects for a considerable reduction in plantings.

If present prospects for a smaller production and for improved consumer purchasing power are realized, the Bureau said, "both prices and income of potato growers in 1939 should be materially higher than in recent years."

The potato acreage in 1939 is expected to be about 8 per cent smaller than it was this year. The largest reductions are indicated for the late states although other areas are expected to show some decrease.

Two successive seasons of relatively low prices account for the prospective reductions in acreage. But production next year will depend both upon the extent of acreage reduction and upon yields. Average yields on the acreage now indicated for 1939 would produce about 310 million bushels of potatoes. "With yields up to the average of the past two seasons, the 1939 crop would approximate 350 million bushels," the Bureau said. The 1938 potato crop is estimated as 373 million bushels — about 3 million bushels larger than the 1927-36 average.

Run-Off of Water Will Cause Erosion

Farmers in North Carolina are beginning to realize farm terracing is only a part of the fundamental erosion-control problem involved in a complete water disposal system for the entire farm, according to W. D. Lee of the State College Extension Service and E. B. Garrett, state coordinator of the Soil Conservation Service.

In the past, they point out, the general practice has been to discharge water from the ends of terraces or hillside ditches on to any accessible area not in cultivation, such as abandoned fields, roads and line ditches. Concentration of water on these unprotected areas speeds up erosion and often develops gullies which work back into the fields, destroying the measures which were intended to protect the field.

In many instances protected woodlands or well-sodded pasture lands are accessible upon which the concentrated flow from terraces may be discharged and spread without inducing erosion.

Natural drainage ways or broad field depressions, when properly stabilized with vegetation, provide the finest type of outlet. Such areas may be converted into meadow strips which will not only serve as outlets but will also supply the farmer with an abundance of hay.

In erosion control demonstration areas it has been found desirable in some cases, where natural outlets are not available to establish disposal areas along the edge of the field by retiring a triangular-shaped strip to perennial hay crops, shrubs or trees. When adequate cover has been established, water may be discharged safely on such areas.

When people borrow money, they usually mean to pay it back, but excuses are easier to dig up than money.

STATE COLLEGE ANSWERS TIMELY FARM QUESTIONS

Question: What causes my fig trees to set fruit and then the fruit dry up and fall off?

Answer: These trees, in all probability, are of the Smyrna type and the particular variety does not develop fruit except when pollinated by a certain insect that over-winters in the caprifig. This insect has not, as yet, been established in the South, and except in rare cases, it is impossible to get the Smyrna trees to mature fruit. The varieties which can be grown satisfactorily in this section are the Brunswick, Brown Turkey, and Celeste.

Question: How can I bring my early hatched pullets that are in a neck molt-back into production?

Answer: The autumn neck molt in early hatched pullets is entirely normal and should be looked on as a rest period for the birds which usually produce very heavily for several months prior to the molt. This molt usually lasts from four to six weeks and the birds which usually reduce very heavily for several months prior to the molt.

Question: How much grain should I feed a weaning calf?

Answer: The amount of grain will depend upon the condition of the individual animal, but when weaning begins the grain ration should be increased to provide the nutrients formerly supplied by milk. A good quality legume hay should also be fed. Where silage is available, this should be included in the ration. For a six-month-old heifer, about six or seven pounds of silage per day is sufficient. The animal should be kept in medium flesh and in a good growing condition at all times and upon these conditions will depend the amount of grain and other feed necessary.
