The man who works hard usually finds time to play.

Just a reminder that might save your life; drive carefully.

People who see rarely think of the handicaps of the blind.

Beware of dictators when they begin to talk about peace.

Modern children find it rather difficult to teach their parents.

Americanism: Anybody who salutes the flag is a loyal citizen.

Automobiles are very successful but occasionally somebody has to push one off.

One trouble with the world is that it has too many people thinking up resolutions.

The farther an individual is from any problem, the easier the solution appears.

What with pupil, press and radio, the American people have no scarcity of advice.

Transportation is a commodity that should sell at uniform price throughout the country.

It is interesting to hear parents, who rarely read a book, criticize children for not studying.

Any country, governed by the business class, will have cheap labor and cheap raw materials.

Undoubtedly most newspapers in the United States are honest but journalism has its black sheep.

Spending money on battleships seems foolish to people who live one thousand miles from the coasts.

It might be funny but, nevertheless, families who cannot buy clothes manage to purchase automobiles.

Modern fable - husband takes wife box of candy. Wife suspects husband of devilement. They have a big row.

There may be reasons why the people of Farmville should buy what they need in other places; does anybody know what they could be.

It won't be long now before the optimists of Farmville will be seen in their gardens, anxiously looking for something to come out of the ground.

ASSASSINATION AS A WEAPON

While Chinese residents of the United States were celebrating the beginning of the lunar year 4643 in the Chinese calendar, the Chinese residing in the Japanese invasion were talking about the assassination of the fifty-second Chinese citizen for taking office under the Japanese in an occupied region.

The Foreign Minister of the Japanese-sponsored government at Nanking had been a trusted Chinese official before he took office under the "puppet" regime of the invaders. He had left his residence in Nanking, because of threats, but twenty gunmen invaded his residence in the Japanese-occupied territory of Shanghai, cleared his bodyguard and opened fire upon him.

The Japanese may have made some progress in their military campaign in China but it appears to be dangerous for a Chinaman to take any office under their control.

THE DIFFERENCE

While the Congress of the United States is thoroughly democratic in its procedure, it is discussing the possibility of fortifying Guam, the Japanese government, without bothering about parliamentary debate, seized the island of Hainan.

There you have an illustration of the methods that differentiate democratic and dictatorial nations.

The same thing will be apparent in the case of the government that has to take the place of the government that has been overthrown. The government that has to take the place of the government that has been overthrown will have to take the place of the government that has been overthrown.

Rodent Specialist Confers With Leaders

Rat Extermination Campaign To Follow Clean Up Week.

In a conference held here Tuesday and attended by representatives of the Woman's Club, Town Alderman, Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, and L. C. Whitehead, of State College, District Agent, Biological Survey, plans were definitely laid for a rat eradication campaign, to be held the first week in April.

At the suggestion of Mr. Whitehead the campaign will follow Clean Up Week, and is expected to be more effective after trash and debris, affording shelter for the rodents are removed.

From all indications the citizens of Farmville and community are merely awaiting the announcement of plans by the sponsors to demonstrate the whole hearted support, which they have expressed verbally since mention of the proposed campaign was made some weeks ago.

PALMER SPRINGS HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE

Friends here will regret to learn that the ancestral home of Alton W. Bobbitt was burned Saturday. Mr. Bobbitt spent the week end with his parents, who live at Palmer Springs, Va.

The News and Observer gave the following account of the loss: "The colonial home of Edward Fletcher Bobbitt, prominent farmer of Palmer Springs, Va., near Warrenton, was destroyed Saturday by fire of unknown origin. Only furniture on the lower floor was saved.

"The fire was discovered by a farm hand who smelled the flames, but they were prevented from saving much because of an insufficient water supply. "The loss was covered by insurance. The home was more than 200 years old."

Jesse James Was What His Lawless Times Made Him

What sort of man would Jesse James have been if he had been born in a different era?

The question is raised by Darryl F. Zanuck's magnificent Technicolor production, "Jesse James," currently starring Tyrone Power, Henry Fonda, Nancy Kelly and Randolph Scott coming soon at the Paramount Theatre, which forcibly brings home the fact that the world's most daring desperado was a product of his times.

For Jesse James lived in a day when a spirit of lawlessness was abroad in the land. After the Civil War, the heart and mind of America turned toward the winning of the West. The symbol of this era was the building of the transcontinental railroads.

But the advance of the "Iron Horse" brought sorrow as well as prosperity in its wake. For to many of the hardy pioneers of the West it meant the confiscation of their lands and property.

As a matter of fact, it was their part in the struggle of the Missouri farm people to save their homes from this unscrupulous seizure by the railroads, that turned young Jesse James and his equally notorious brother, Frank, to the life of outlawry which colored their whole era and endowed the decade which saw their most daring deeds with the title "The Serious Seventies."

While our day is likely to look upon Jesse as a ruthless desperado, the people of his own times regarded him with a more indulgent eye. Displaying a remarkable amount of tact for that rough-and-ready era, the mountaineers in the Missouri Ozarks where he flourished were wont to dignify his career by terming it "horse and pistol work."

Perhaps the best evidence of their attitude is contained in the epitaph on the monument erected over his grave, the unveiling of which forms a scene in this Darryl F. Zanuck production. It read:

In loving remembrance JESSE W. JAMES died April 3, 1882 aged 34 years, 6 months, 28 days murdered by a traitor and coward whose name is not worthy to appear here.

The anonymous reference is, of course, to the treacherous Bob Foard, a member of Jesse James' own band, who betrayed the bandit to the law and shot him down in cold blood to collect the price upon his head.

Fertilizer Probe

Washington, March 1. — The Department of Justice today began a national investigation of the commercial fertilizer industry and announced that "any illegal combination discovered" will be dissolved.

The department said that one of the objectives of the inquiry will be to eliminate dangers to the national defense. It pointed out that nitrate of soda, an essential ingredient of common fertilizer, is a strategic war material.

"For many years," it said, "there have been continuous complaints of monopolistic practices in commercial fertilizer from farm cooperatives, farm organizations, mixers, dealers and unorganized farm groups. These complaints have come from sources so reliable that they, cannot be ignored."

The department asserted that uniform prices in the industry "have been maintained with such uniformity as to constitute corroboration of those complaints and to compel this investigation." It added that "it is difficult to believe that such prices are the result of a series of coincidences."

Many people criticize the newspapers and berate the editors of the country, but few of them run from publicity.
