THOMAS JEFFERSON, DEMOCRAT

On the 13th of this month, occurs the anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, in 1743.

It is well for the nation to remember the author of the Declaration of Independence and the man who wrote the Statute for religious freedom in Virginia and succeeded in establishing the University of Virginia.

Jefferson was a democrat who believed in and cherished its ideals. Incidentally, he regarded agriculture as the best occupation for men and the foundation of all other wealth.

It might not be a bad idea for Americans, in this day to become acquainted with the life, works and writings of Thomas Jefferson, the "Sage of Monticello."

HERE'S A GOOD IDEA!

This will sing the praises of the officials and police of Danville, Virginia, who have launched a campaign against motorists who press the buttons of their strident automobile horns unnecessarily.

Policemen, it is reported, watch especially for drivers caught in lines of traffic who immediately blow their horns the moment the green light appears.

This is a good piece of work. We hope the practice spreads throughout the United States and that indiscriminate users of automobile horns will be fined until they learn better.

FIGHTING YELLOW FEVER

The international health division of the Rockefeller Foundation has vaccinated 1,058,252 persons in Brazil with a new vaccine against yellow fever.

This undertaking is interesting because of the belief, a few years ago, that the extermination of a mosquito-carrier would wipe out the scourge.

However, about two years ago, the Rockefeller Foundation investigators discovered, in the jungles of South America, a mysterious and formerly unsuspected carrier of the disease, whose method of transmission remains undetermined.

Not everything that is cheap is a bargain.

WORK RARELY KILLS

Every one in a while we hear somebody comment upon the fact that somebody "worked himself to death."

As a matter of fact, if any individuals have ever worked themselves to death. People get physically tired, not by the exercise or exertion involved, but rather through a lack of interest in what they are doing.

A boy, or a man, interested in what he is undertaking, forgets fatigue. Of course, the thing can be overdone, but it is rare.

POLITICAL OUTLOOK

While it is much too early for any political prophet to risk his reputation by predicting the outcome of the presidential election in 1940, because almost anything can happen in the year and a half that will elapse before the American people go to the polls, it is interesting to note that a survey conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion, indicates that at the present time a bare majority of all voters with opinions say they would like to see the Republicans win the presidency.
