A DOGWOOD LEGEND

This is dogwood blossom time. The dogwood is a favorite of all those who love trees and flowers. Its beauty in early spring is stimulating and warms the heart. The following legend about the dogwood is reprinted from a newspaper of another state:

"At the time of the crucifixion the dogwood attained the size of an oak and other forest trees. So strong and firm was the wood of it that it was chosen for the timber of the cross. To be thus used for such a cruel purpose greatly distressed the tree, and Jesus smiled upon it, sensed this, and in His gentle pity for sorrow, said to it: 'Because of your regret and pity for my suffering I make you this promise. Never again shall the dogwood tree grow large enough to be used for a cross. Henceforth it shall be slender and bent and twisted, and its blossoms shall be in the form of a cross—two long petals and two short petals, and in the center of the outer edge of each there will be nail prints, brown with rust and stained with blood. In the center of the flower there will be an image of crown and thorns and all who see it will remember that it was upon dogwood trees I was crucified, and this tree shall not be mutilated or destroyed, but cherished as a reminder of my death upon the cross.' — Lexington Dispatch.

Social Courtesies Accorded Mrs. James R. Lang Bride of Month

Affairs of Week Continue To Center About Prominent Young Women.

The social life of Farmville continues to center about prominent young women, who have been married during the past few weeks or are visiting friends here.

The largest and most delightful of after-Easter events here was that of Tuesday afternoon, when Mrs. Nannie Moyer Humphrey, Mrs. P. E. Jones and Mrs. J. Y. Monk were at home, honoring their sister-in-law, Mrs. James R. Lang, who prior to her recent marriage was Miss Winifred Clark, of Douglas, Ga.

The spacious home of Mrs. Jones, scene of the affair, was beautifully decorated with spring flowers, the color note of pink being carried in the vases of snapdragons and verbena, used in the punch room; blue iris predominated in the floral arrangement of the living room, and white flowers, including roses, snapdragons, narcissus, spirea and stocks were used in mixed arrangements in the dining room, which was illumined by white tapers.

Mrs. M. V. Jones greeted guests as they arrived and Miss Elizabeth Davis introduced them to the receiving line, composed of Mrs. P. E. Jones, Mrs. Nannie Moyer Humphrey, Mrs. J. Y. Monk, Mrs. James R. Lang and Mrs. John E. King.

Mrs. S. A. Roebuck directed the way to the punch room, where guests were served by Mrs. Ted L. Albritton and Mrs. H. L. Watson, of Wilson.

Mrs. J. Sterling Gates and Mrs. A. W. Bobbitt were at the dining room door, and serving ices with bridal motifs from either end of the table were Mrs. F. M. Davis, Sr., and Miss Annie Perkins. Assisting in passing decorated cakes, mints and salted nuts were Miss Vernice Lang Jones, Miss Hazel Monk, Miss Mary Friar Rouse, Miss Geraldine Gardner, Mrs. J. T. Windham and Mrs. W. Alexander Allen.

Mrs. B. S. Smith received in the hall and Mrs. Plato Monk, of Wilson, presided over the register.

Mrs. A. Q. Roebuck and Mrs. D. E. Ogleby said the goodbyes.

Around two hundred and fifty guests called during the hours of four to six.

Among the loveliest of the spring social affairs here was a tea given by Mrs. J. Leroy Parker as a courtesy to her house guest, Miss Elizabeth Ellis, of Hopkinsville, Ky., and Mrs. James R. Lang, a recent bride.

Mrs. Parker entertained at the home of Mrs. J. M. Hobgood, which was artistically decorated with spring flowers carrying the pastel shades.

Mrs. W. Alexander Allen welcomed the guests and Mrs. J. M. Hobgood introduced the receiving line, which included the hostess, Miss Ellis, Mrs. Lang, and Mrs. John E. King, a recent bride.

Mrs. Z. M. Whitehurst and Mrs. John B. Lewis received in the dining room. Floral decorations were particularly beautiful here, the table being centered with a crystal bowl of iris, spirea and crabapple blossoms, and lighted with tapers. Mrs. Elbert C. Holmes served punch from the table, which also bore dainty sandwiches, cookies, candies and mints, all carrying effectively the pastel colors.

Mrs. Rebecca Murray, of Wilson, directed the way to the library, where Mrs. George E. Moore and Miss Mary Friar Rouse were receiving. Goodbyes were said by Mrs. H. Neal Howard.

Instrumental selections were played during the calling hours by Mrs. J. L. Shackleford and vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. John D. Holmes.

Mrs. Z. M. Whitehurst delightfully entertained the Contract Club and additional friends on Tuesday at her home, in which spring flowers were arranged with pleasing effect. Tallies carried the floral motif and high score prizes of flower-filled containers for members and guests were won by Mrs. M. V. Horton and Mrs. L. E. Walston. Mrs. Bert McCullum won the bingo prize of handkerchiefs.

A delectable salad course was served after play. Special guests were Mrs. L. T. Reese, Mrs. C. T. Dixon, of Wilson, Mrs. L. E. Walston, Mrs. Frank Davis, Jr., Mrs. Henrietta M. Williamson, Mrs. Charles E. Fitzgerald and Mrs. J. L. Shackleford.

Zeb Whitehurst, Jr., small son of the hostess, assisted in receiving and serving.

Mrs. W. C. Askew was gracious hostess to the Progressive Bridge Club, entertaining at the home of Mrs. G. M. Holden, in which bowls of spring bloom were effectively used. Compiling high score, Mrs. G. S. Vought received sport handkerchiefs and Mrs. James R. Lang and Mrs. John E. King, recent brides, were presented with sheer evening handkerchiefs. A sumptuous barbecue dinner was served at six o'clock.

Members of the Wednesday Afternoon Club and additional friends of Mrs. H. H. Bradham enjoyed an afternoon of contract this week at her home on Church street. Spring flowers added both color and fragrance to the rooms in which the bridge tables were arranged.

Mrs. James R. Lang won the guest award, a vase, and Mrs. Frances Spencer received a bon bon dish for scoring high among the members.

Mrs. John E. King and Mrs. Lang, recent brides, were remembered by the hostess with china and linen.

Farmers Can Produce Own Kudzu Seedlings

Farmers can produce their own kudzu seedlings for halting erosion Service in the Southeast, reports W. D. Lee, soil conservationist of the State College Extension Service.

He quoted R. Y. Bailey, regional agronomist of the SCS, on the following system of propagating kudzu plants from seeds:

(1) Select as a seed bed an area of sandy soil. Plow the land early in the spring and harrow until the soil is in good condition. Lay off rows 24 to 30 inches apart and apply approximately 500 pounds of a complete fertilizer per acre. Bed on the fertilizer and harrow until the beds are low and relatively flat. If necessary, harrow to control weeds and grass before planting time.

(2) Drill the seeds on the beds during the latter half of May or the first of June, using a small garden seeder, if available, and cover the seed approximately one-fourth inch deep. If a garden seeder is not available, sow the seed by hand. Approximately 15 pounds of scarified seed per acre will be required in 24-inch rows. They will produce about 3,500 good plants from each pound of seed. Plant where there is plenty of moisture in the soil.

(3) Carefully cultivate the bed by hand until the plants are large enough to cover the ground between rows. Do not allow the soil to crust after a rain. This can be prevented by scarifying the surface soil lightly with a hand rake or by mulching lightly with straw or sawdust.

(4) If plants are to be grown for market, it is important that care be exercised in selecting land to plant them on that is not infected with nematodes, or root knot.

Spending

Food still ranks first in farm family expenditures, but increased outlay for automobile and household operation in recent years has shoved clothing spending down to fourth place.

Favorable

Prospects continue to favor increased egg production and increased production and marketing of poultry this year as compared with 1938, reports the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Strawberry Jam Has Market Possibilities

Strawberries are being harvested in many sections of North Carolina, and this offers the possibility for farm women to supplement their income by preserving surplus of this lucious fruit, or making them into jam, reminds Mrs. Cornelia C. Morris, economist in food conservation and marketing of the State Extension Service. "The strawberry season is a short one, but it can be extended through fall and winter if farm women will spend a little time in their kitchens," she stated.

Mrs. Morris offered the following recipes for making strawberry preserves and jam:

For preserves, take two quarts of firm, ripe strawberries and cover them with boiling water for two minutes. Drain quickly and add four cups of sugar. Boil two minutes after the entire mass is bubbling. Remove from the fire and after all bubbling has stopped, add two more cups of sugar and boil for five minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars, process five minutes at simmering point, and seal immediately. The berries will be plump and will retain their bright red color.

For jam, crush two quarts of berries and add four and one-half cups of sugar. Cook until it forms a sheet of jelly when poured from the side of the spoon. Stir the jam constantly with a wooden spoon during the cooking. When it is finished, pour immediately into hot sterilized jars and seal. The texture and color are better if no more than two quarts of berries are cooked at a time.
