STATE COLLEGE ANSWERS TIMELY FARM QUESTIONS

QUESTION: Is there any fertilizer value to tobacco stalks? ANSWER: Green tobacco stalks plowed under carry a certain amount of plant food, but the greatest benefit from plowing under the stalks comes from the destruction of insect pests. The suckers that grow on stalks left standing furnish a breeding place for millions of these pests which attack the crop next season. Immediately after the harvest all stalks should be cut or plowed under. In this way the insects will be destroyed and the available plant food put back into the soil.

QUESTION: When should lespedeza be cut for hay? ANSWER: This crop should be cut when it reaches a height of 15 inches or when it is in full bloom, whichever occurs first. For the Korean variety the average dates for cutting is from August 1 to September 1, and from August 15 to October 1 for the other varieties. To delay harvest will usually injure the quality through loss of the lower leaves. However, if July and August are dry and September wet, it will pay to delay mowing the Common, Tennessee 76, and Kobe varieties as the main growth of these will take place in the latter month.

QUESTION: Is there any way of telling how long a hen has been in molt? ANSWER: The way in which a hen molts her primary wing feathers may be used as a measure in estimating how long the molt has been in progress. The inner primary feathers are usually dropped as soon as the bird stops laying. A new quill then starts which takes about six weeks to become full grown. To estimate the time of beginning of molt allow six weeks for the first full grown feather and two weeks for each additional feather grown to full size: In late molters two or more primary feathers may be dropped at the same time and these must be counted as one in estimating the time of molt.

GOOD RESULTS E. P. Scholtz, of the Steele Creek community in Merkleburg County, secured such good results from an experimental seeding of crimson clover last fall that he intends to make this an annual practice.

PEDESTRIANS DESERVE PROTECTION

Statistics show that forty per cent of all traffic accidents are suffered by pedestrians. This is not hard to understand when one considers that most highways have been constructed without regard to the rights of pedestrian travel. The roads were built for automobile and truck use and the average pedestrian has to use the highways at great peril. It is about time for highway officials to give consideration to pedestrians and provide safe avenues of travel for those who must go on foot. The fact that automobile owners pay for highways does not alter the danger that heavy traffic creates for those who happen not to be riding at great speed. When the railroads began to operate through the land they were required to adopt and install safety devices to protect the public. The same should be done upon automobile travel. The responsibility of the government in the construction of highways should be such that
