A number of military experts have been misled by the war.

It requires neither bravery nor intelligence to exhibit disrespect.

Good manners can be exhibited by a person driving an automobile.

It's about time for somebody to come forth with a watermelon eating contest.

About the best that anybody can hope for during hot weather is to look cool.

What has become of the man who, for many years, read his Bible every day?

What the American people need is more attention to the "pursuit of happiness."

The voice of the people is approved by many citizens when it utters their views.

Everybody is for national defense, especially if the new taxes apply to somebody else.

Never denounce politics; it is the machinery of man to determine the voice of the people.

Every profession suffers a loss of prestige because of the mercenary motives of some members.

The people of every age worry about the problems that will face the people of a successive age.

If you know a better place in which to live, why not move out of Farmville and settle down in peace?

There are many individuals who can never be satisfied; they are apparently determined to dislike whatever exists.

TOWARD FARM OWNERSHIP

The Farm Security Administration will this year assist 9,000 tenants, sharecroppers and farm laborers to buy farms of their own. Already some 13,000 farm families have been helped in this way in the past three years.

We have no accurate information, at this time, as to how these families are solving their difficulties or whether most of them are making good use of the opportunity afforded them under the government's program. It may take some years to determine the real value of the plan adopted in the effort to reduce farm tenancy and increase farm ownership.

There are some Americans who strenuously object to the government doing anything along this line, saying that the individual should be permitted to work out his own salvation, along the sink-or-swim basis. Strange to say, these same critics raise no objection when the government bails out a railroad, a bank or an insurance company.

IS BUSINESS BIGGER THAN GOVERNMENT?

"This nation can only be ready" for the dangers that lie ahead, says Colby M. Chester, "if business genius and government enlist in patriotic service."

So far, so good! Mr. Chester then says, "Business is ready for great sacrifices, but at the same time, business warns: No monkey business, no profiteering, no graft, no tricky stuff, no politics in our mobilization for the defense of our free system of life."

The same warning can be justly given to business by government, acting as the elected agent of the people. There have been, and there are, business leaders guilty of monkey business, profiteering, graft, tricky stuff and politics, and decidedly more to the point, when the government has attempted to correct these evils of business, good business men have denounced the government for "interference" with business.

There are so-called industrial, financial and business leaders in this nation today who have the idea that business is superior to government, that government must rule with the consent of business leaders and that any reform, opposed by business, is radical, revolutionary and red.

The fact is that whenever business gets too big, or thinks it is too big, for governmental regulation and control in the interests of the entire people, there is a time for somebody to get business in its proper place.

Small Plots Grow Needed Vegetables

Growing enough vegetables on a plot 25 feet square to feed a family and then have a surplus for canning is being accomplished this season in a Davie County mill community, reports H. R. Niswonger, horticulturist of the State College Extension Service.

Intensive cultivation of small plots of ground is keeping a large percentage of the Erwin Cotton Mill workers in Cooleemee well supplied with wholesome, nutritious food.

Although some of the gardens occupy from one-fourth to one-third of an acre, many are only 25 to 50 feet square. Of the 350 white mill families, 250 are using their back yards to grow vegetables. In addition, all of the 25 Negro families have gardens.

Advantage is taken of the favorable growing season during the spring and summer to build up a surplus for canning soup mixtures, snap beans, tomatoes, kraut, and other vegetables. One woman reported canning last year 30 quarts of soup mixture, 10 cans of tomatoes, and 12 cans of snap beans from a garden 25 feet square. Also, she fed a family of seven with fresh vegetables.

To stimulate interest, a garden contest is held each year. Farm and home agents of Davie County and Miss Maude Graham, social service worker for the mill, select the best gardens. Prizes are offered for the best plots.

Every inch of ground is utilized, with the outside edges of the garden and the sides next to the houses planted to flowers. The distance between rows varies from 12 to 24 inches. Inter-planting and rotation of crops are practiced.

Niswonger said these gardens contain all of the popular vegetables, these being planted in succession so as to make fullest use of the land.

3 New Publications Ready For Farmers

Three new publications of interest to farm people have been prepared by the State College Extension Service and are available to citizens of North Carolina free for the asking. Two are Extension Circulars and the other is an Extension pamphlet, as follows:

Extension Circular No. 241, "The Use of Disinfectants in Poultry Production," written by Prof. R. S. Dearstyne, H. C. Gauger, and R. E. Greaves of the college Poultry Department.

Extension Circular No. 242, "Growing Small Grains in the Coastal Plain," by E. C. Blair, Extension agronomist.

Extension Miscellaneous Pamphlet No. 42, "Making a Cotton Mattress," by Miss Pauline E. Gordon, Extension home management specialist, and Miss Willie N. Hunter, Extension clothing specialist.

Any or all of these publications will be mailed free, postpaid, to persons writing to the Agricultural Editor at State College, Raleigh.

A full discussion of germicidal substances in the prevention and control of poultry diseases and parasite infestations is contained in the Circular No. 241. The poultrymen recommend, however, that sunlight, burning and boiling are the most satisfactory disinfectants when they can be used conveniently.

The small grain publication points out that oats, wheat, rye, and barley usually make better yields in the Coastal Plains than on comparable soils in the Piedmont and Mountain sections.

The mattress-making pamphlet is expected to be of value in the project for low income families which the Extension Service is directing in every county in the State, in cooperation with other agricultural and welfare agencies.

Take Chance On Weather, Horticulturist Advises

Weather conditions are sometimes unfavorable for the growing of vegetables in late summer and early fall in many sections of the State, but H. R. Niswonger, Extension horticulturist of N. C. State College, says for rural people to take a chance.

"It is said," he declared, "that nature will contribute 90 percent to the growing of vegetables if you will devote your energy to the balance, or 10 percent. If this is true, then plant during the next six weeks a few vegetables for an early fall harvest."

Niswonger recommends that, for Eastern North Carolina, cabbage plants be set between now and August 15; beets and carrots should be planted from August 1 to 20; collards and sweet corn, August 1 to 10; turnips and turnip salad, in August; and spinach, Swiss chard and tomatoes, in July and August.

The Extension specialist also recommends that in making plans for a garden, it is wise to consider the growing of one or more of the following small fruits, strawberries, youngberries, and raspberries. "Two or three hundred strawberry plants and twenty-five each young or Boysenberry variety of dewberries and the red raspberry will supply your family with these home fruits," he says.

Niswonger reports that many farm families have grown small fruits in the home gardens for the first time this year, and they are delighted with the results.

FORESTS

While the forests of the United States are making large contributions to national defense, the nation has not provided adequately for the defense of the forests, says Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

TESTED

Necessary arrangements have been made to have all breeding cattle, in Watauga County tested for Bangs disease, reports H. M. Hamilton, farm agent of the N. C. State College Extension Service.

Girls Are Advised To Build-Up For Relief

Lack of knowledge causes many a weak, undernourished girl a lot of suffering!

Many others, however, know how the headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pain of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition are helped by the proper use of CARDUI.

Some take it a few days before and during "the time," to help ease periodic distress. But CARDUI's principal use is to help increase appetite; stimulate the flow of gastric juice; so aid digestion, assist in building up physical resistance and thus help reduce periodic distress. Women have used CARDUI for over 50 years.
