ADMIRALS URGE SALE OF DESTROYERS

Public sentiment, according to the Institute of Public Opinion, approves the sale of American destroyers to Great Britain, the poll showing 62 per cent of those expressing an opinion endorsed the idea.

The average American, while generally in favor of the transfer of the destrovers to G at Britain, does not have the technical information to pass upon the question but, in general, favors the proposal if the experts are satisfied that it will not injure our own defenses.

Here is some expert opinion, to be added to that of Gen. Pershing, who recently appealed to the nation to make the transfer promptly:

Vice Admiral H. P. Huse, former Commander U. S. Naval Forces in Europe, says "it would be correct trategy to transfer the destroyers to the British at once. This opinion is not based on sentiment, but on what I believe to be sound policy for the protection of American interests." Vice Admiral Wm. L. Rogers, former Commander in Chief, Asiatic Fleet, says "the transfer should be done as soon as possible because it is the national interest of this country to see Germany defeated . . . As Great Britain and her Dominions are fighting in our cause as well as their this community the finest service own, it would be shameful and base to attempt to profit in their extremity giving to the leadership sufficient by bargaining to secure from them a courage and high hopes with which naval base or any battleships."

Commander U. S. Fseet, says: "I dollars and is rated as being one thoroughly agree in principle with of the outstanding financial instithe suggestion of transferring the old tutions in the State. destroyers to the British, but that is not by plan for helping to save the years. He was succeeded by A. C. British Empire, and thereby our own Monk, a former member of the security. My plan is to throw the board of directors, and president of whole weight of our sea_power into the A. C. Monk Tobacco Co. J. I this conflict alongside that of Great Morgan is vice-president; L. E. FINDS GERMAN REPORT FALSE

The right of beligerents to conceal losses is readily acknowledged and to some extent a similar recognition is pranted to exaggerated claims as to losses inflicted upon the enemy.

Whether the policies involved are wise or foolish depends upon subsequent results. It often happens that the people of a nation responds better. to the truth and longer retain faith in the statements of their govern-

The British government has a much better general reputation for truth in its war reports than that enjoyed by Germany. Nonetheless, it is confusing to Americans, who have seen press services and experts give almost equal credence to the contending war offices, to seek accurate information from the welter of claims and denials.

Some weeks ago the British reported extensive damage to the docks and shipping facilities of Hamburg. The report was denied in Berlin and German officials took newspaper representatives upon an extended tour to demonstrate the falsity of the British claims. It was notable, however, that the correspondents were kept in groups and taken to special areas, without being allowed to investigate "on their own."

Not many days ago Germany reported that important costal area in England had been virtually destroyed, that shipping was halted and the usefulness of the port had disappeared has a result of successive bombing

Mallory Browne, staff correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor, takes up this report and says that he has "just returned from a trip" in an area which Germany has claimed. to have bombed with "complete success," and after a "thorough and unhe finds that nothing could be further from the truth." "This visit," he concludes, "proving at least German claims bore almost no revelation to the truth, throws revealing light on the worth of their claims generally. It also tends to confirm that the British claims of

Vegetable Laxative Has Important Points

Most people want a laxative to do three things: (1) act punctually, (2) act thoroughly, (3) act gently. Here's one that usually fills all three requirements when the easy directions are followed. It's an allvegetable product whose principal ingredient has medical recognition as an "intestinal tonic-laxative."
