Poultry Flocks Need Ample Green Grazing

Only the person who grows poultry for his health's sake or as a hobby can afford to neglect the production of green feed for the flock, says T. T. Brown, extension poultryman of State College.

On the other hand, he went on, if profit is the person's motive, then green feed has a definite and important part to play in feeding chicks and growing pullets and layers. Grazing crops not only cut feed bills but promote health.

The poultryman who will take a look around his neighborhood will find an amazing difference in favor of pullet flocks raised on clean land where an ample supply of green feed was available over those raised on bare, dry lot without grazing crops.

The pullets confined to the dry bare lots usually are pale-faced, pale-legged, and appear unthrifty. In sharp contrast to this condition, pullets grown on clean range on which no chicks have been for two years carry a generous supply of rich yellow pigment in their shank and around their faces and have bright red combs and wattles.

When the cost of developing pullets for layers is figured, almost invariably it has been found that those grown on clean range and having ample succulent grazing crops have cost their owners less money up to laying time than pullets produced on bare lots without green feed.

Yet this lessened expense is not the only important difference, Brown said. Egg production records show that green range-fed birds far surpass the pullets without benefit of range.

Naturally, Brown explained, when the average number of eggs per bird goes up, the feed cost per dozen eggs comes down.

More Help Offered To Flood Families

Increased aid to low-income farm families hard hit by recent floods has been announced by Miss Ruth Current, director of home demonstration work for the State College Extension Service.

The mattress-making program which formerly limited families with an income less than $400 last year to one free mattress has been broadened to allow one mattress to each two members of a family in 17 flooded counties.

The counties are: Ashe, Avery, Bertie, Caldwell, Halifax, Haywood, Jackson, McDowell, Martin, Northampton, Polk, Rutherford, Swain, Watauga, Wilkes, Yadkin, and Yancey. Five other counties were affected by floods, but will not be covered by the new provision either because their damage was slight or because the mattress program is not in effect there.

Many families have been left almost destitute in the wake of these floods, Miss Current said. Household belongings as well as crops, livestock and feed on hand were swept away or ruined by the water. By supplying the affected low-income families with free mattresses, and giving them other possible aid, it is hoped they will recover from the floods' ravages much sooner, the State College home demonstration leader said.

Miss Current also reported that the mattress-making program for the State as a whole is now turning out more than 1,000 finished mattresses a week. Families who are to receive these mattresses assist in the making, supervised by home agents of the Extension Service of trained voluntary leaders.

STATE COLLEGE
ANSWERS TIMELY
FARM QUESTIONS

QUESTION: What methods of soil preparation are considered most desirable for small grain?

ANSWER: The most successful growers of small grains turn red clover or lespedeza under in August, and disk the soil one or two weeks before seeding time, which is October 10 to 20. Another successful method that is used where lespedeza, cowpeas, or soybeans are harvested for hay is that of disking the soil to make a seed bed. This should be done two or three weeks before seeding time.

QUESTION: Is there a cure for Bang's disease of cattle?

ANSWER: So far, despite many so-called remedies, no cure for Bang's disease has been developed. Recent tests conducted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture with two "remedies" proved the inability of either to prevent animals from contracting the disease or cure those that already have it. Destroying infected animals is the best way known at the present time to keep this disease from spreading.

QUESTION: Will ground agricultural limestone kill broomweed?

ANSWER: As is sometimes thought, lime will not kill broomweed. However, lime, plus the addition of phosphate, restores the fertility of the soil where there is broomweed to the extent that the sedge is made palatable and grazed off or crowded out by blue grass. A sure sign that land needs lime is the presence of broomweed, sheep sorrel, running briars, plantains, and moss in or around the edge of a field.

Need Laxative? Take All-Vegetable One

Don't let impatience lead you into harsh measures for the relief of constipation!

There's no use, for a little spicy, all-vegetable BLACK-DRAUGHT, taken by simple directions, will gently persuade your bowels.

Taken at bedtime, it generally allows time for a good night's rest. Morning usually brings punctual, satisfying relief from constipation and its symptoms such as headaches, biliousness, sour stomach, no appetite or energy.

BLACK-DRAUGHT'S main ingredient is an "intestinal tonic-laxative" which helps tone intestinal muscles. 25 to 40 doses, only 25c.

FACES A FOE.

The greatest barrier to the peace of the world today is the new-fangled economic system, imposed upon Germany by necessity, but nevertheless refined and rigorously applied by Hitler.

Americans who still talk about "free enterprise" in this country ought to understand, very clearly, that it is doomed if Germany conquers Great Britain, reorganizes Europe and attempts to do business with other nations upon the basis of barter.

There is no place for the individual in the economic philosophy of Germany. Everything is through the State and by its permission. To secure foreign markets there is exchange control, import limitations and export subsidies. No private business, in the United States or elsewhere, can compete with such a business competitor in South America, or anywhere else.

The world cannot endure, economically, half-barter and half-free. Either it must follow one pattern or the other. In this country we have espoused the theory of individual initiative; with as few government controls as possible. If Germany, through military triumphs, becomes our world competitor, we will face two choices: (a) give up and live within our own territory, or (2) organize our business upon the German system.

This latter alternative would mean the abolition of what we call the American capitalist system. It would mean rigid governmental control, regimentation and the absolute subordination of the individual to the State.

PROFITABLE

J. B. Wallin, a demonstration farmer of Madison County, made a net profit of more than $1,000 during the past year from five dairy cows and a flock of 200 Barred Rock hens.

Laws are not of much account unless public sentiment supports them.
