The Supreme Court, in the New River case, by a 6-2 decision, sustained the licensing authority and confirmed wide authority over hydro-electric resources by the Federal Government...

Justice Reed insisted that the authority of the Federal Government is "as broad as the needs of commerce" and declared that water-power development, from the standpoint of the public interest, was only a by-product of the general use of rivers for commerce.

A dissenting opinion was filed by Justice Roberts, who was joined by Justice McReynolds. The Chief Justice did not sit in the case because once, as a lawyer, he submitted a brief which touched some aspects of it.

Some idea of the export of aeronautic products from the United States can be gathered from the report for the month of October which was made public this month. The value of October exports was $31,383,506, including 303 power land planes, 29 partial shipments of land planes to be assembled abroad, and sea planes.

It is announced that the National Committee on Food Supplies to Small Democracies, which former President Herbert Hoover was honorary chairman, will seek to develop a new food plan in an effort to find a method acceptable to the British Government.

While the State Department will acquiesce in the decision of Great Britain not to permit food to go through the British blockade to Germany-occupied regions, it will make an effort to send food to the neutrals in unoccupied France, Spain and other neutral countries.

Early in December, President Roosevelt declared that the St. Lawrence Seaway project should be completed. The idea has been advanced in some quarters that the President may seek to perfect arrangements by the passage of "concurrent and reciprocal legislation" of the Canadian Parliament and American Congress as provided in a treaty ratified by the Senate in 1902.

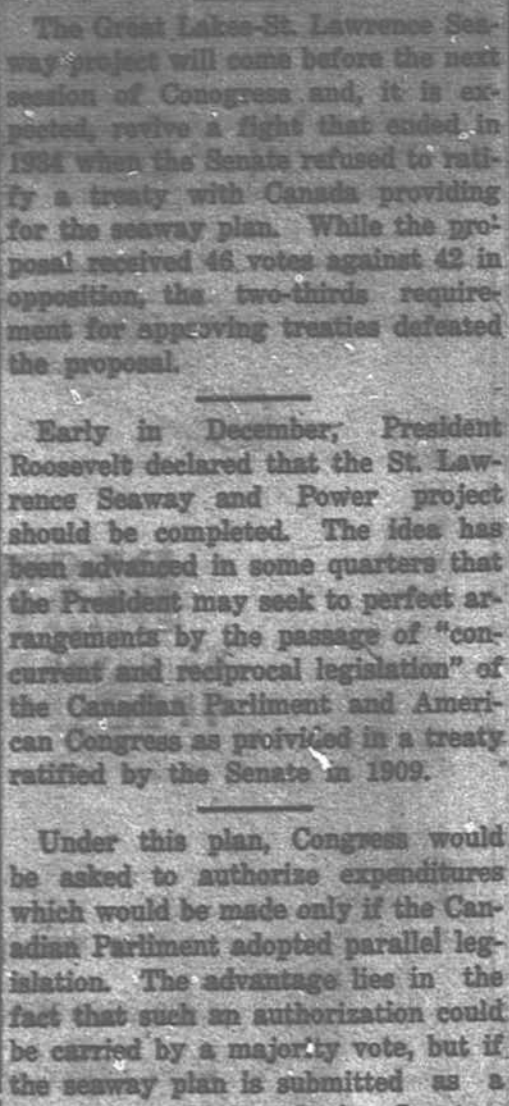

Under this plan, Congress would be asked to authorize expenditures which would be made only if the Canadian Parliament adopted parallel legislation. The advantage lies in the fact that such an authorization could be carried by a majority vote, but if the seaway plan is submitted as a treaty, two-thirds of the Senators would have to approve it.

Speaking recently before the National Association of Manufacturers, and the Congress of American Industry, William S. Knudsen, of the National Defense Advisory Commission, called attention to the billions of dollars involved in contracts for national defense and then gave a quick description of what the money means in units.

In round figures, he said, the orders involve 50,000 airplanes, 130,000 engines, 17,000 heavy guns, 25,000 light guns, 13,000 tank orders, 33,000,000 shells loaded 9,300 tanks, 300,000 machine-guns and ammunition, 400,000 automatic rifles and ammunition, 1,300,000 regular rifles and ammunition, 380 navy ships, 200 merchant ships, 210 camps and cantonments, 40 government factories, clothing and other equipment for 1,200,000 men.

Secretary of War Stimson, explaining the postponement of original schedules for the rapid expansion of the Army, says that the delay has been caused by strikes in military construction work and in industries supplying materials for the housing program, plus private competition for machinery and materials needed in the building operations.

Symbol of American Defense

North Carolina is playing its part in National defense—tractors and terracing machines for agricultural defense and Army tanks for military defense.

December Is Good Time To Move Trees, Shrubs

Most trees and shrubs are dormant during December, and John H. Harris, Extension Landscape Specialist, says plants usually must be in a dormant stage to be moved successfully.

If the plant to be moved is deciduous (drops its foliage in the winter) it is not necessary to remove a ball of earth with the plant. Care should be taken, however, to remove all the roots possible and avoid bruising the roots, Harris advises.

It will be found helpful in moving a native plant to dig a trench around its base one season before moving it. This trench should be dug 18 to 24 inches deep; the distance from the plant varying with the size of the plant. The object in digging the trench is to stimulate the growth of the roots near the base of the tree or shrub.

After the plant is removed from the soil, Harris says it should be immediately planted in its new position. If it is to be transferred some distance before replanting, it should be packed in shavings or at least a wet sack kept around its roots. It is very essential that the roots be kept moist until the plant is re-set.

Evergreens should be treated similar to deciduous shrubs except that they are usually dug with a ball of earth. A two to six-foot native plant is usually the best size to move. "However," the State College specialist declared, "this does not mean that larger shrubs or trees cannot be moved successfully. Full grown trees and shrubs can be transplanted, but a tremendous root system must be taken up with the plant which makes the job expensive and laborious."

WAKE LAZY INSIDES

All-Vegetable Way

Thousands turn to this way to get relief when they're lazy intestinally and it has them headache, bilious, irritable, listless. A quarter to a half-teaspoonful of spicy, aromatic, all-vegetable BLACK-DRAUGHT on your tongue tonight, a drink of water, and there you are! Thus, it usually allows time for a night's rest; acts gently, thoroughly next morning, so relieving constipation's headaches, biliousness, bad breath.

BLACK-DRAUGHT'S main ingredient is an "intestinal tonic-laxative" which helps impart tone to lazy bowel muscles. The millions of packages used prove its merit. Economical, too; 25 to 40 doses, 25c.
