There's nothing we can do about the war but fight it.

If the dog doesn't catch the rabbit it is time to get another dog.

Heaven pity the unfortunate. The world hasn't time to do it.

If the army doesn't furnish arms for the soldier girls the boys will.

It takes two to make a quarrel and two more to make a free for all.

Modesty may be becoming, but the fellow that has it is late in arriving.

The difference between an argument and a quarrel is the temperature.

Fools rush in where angels fear to tread, and the angels do not trouble to rescue them.

Those who suffer from high blood pressure are not the one who suffer from low incomes.

The world can't be stabilized until all the jackasses who started the war are stable-footed.

A man may have the right to play with rattlesnakes if he likes, but he is a fool if he does.

No need to ask when the war will end. It's the only military secret that will not leak out.

A doctor says women are not subject to lockjaw so much as men are. We think he is right.

That Guy Voliva who has always insisted that the world was flat, may prove right after all.

Sin has never been what it cost, but the price keeps going up and people keep on paying it.

The gas is out. The tires are gone. Howdy, family. We are home and no more will we roam.

If our forces take all those little islands in the Pacific we can all have one. But you may have ours.

The country can boast of its thousands of smooth roads but the road to success still remains rough.

Under the present conditions the poor can't hope to become rich and the rich can't hope to stay that way.

Peanut Harvesting New Job For Many

North Carolina farmers, growing peanuts for the first time this year, will profit by following approved methods of harvesting, as described by Dr. E. E. Collin, agronomy Extension leader of N. C. State College.

Experienced peanut growers use stack poles about three inches in diameter and eight to nine feet long, he says. These poles are set two feet in the ground with cross pieces three feet long nailed at least 18 inches above the ground.

Three important things should be remembered when the stack poles are used: First, cross bars are from 18 to 20 inches from the ground; second, shake all dirt from the nuts before placing on the stack; and third, stack plants with the nuts against the pole, keeping the center of the stack higher than the edges.

Dr. Collin said the stack is brought to a peak at least 18 inches above the top of the pole. It is suggested that the stack be capped with building paper and grass or straw to guard against water damage.

The State College agronomist explained that peanuts are ready for harvest when most pods are filled and when the inside of the hulls turns dark and veins show. Peanuts are plowed up when the plant is dry.

Then dirt is shaken from the roots and the plants allowed to remain on the ground until the leaves wilt. This usually takes from three to four hours. After this the peanuts are stacked.

Stack poles should be scattered widely over the field to avoid grouping and large stacks should be avoided. Peanuts left in the stacks care to from four to seven weeks, depending on the weather.

JOIN THE ATTACK ON TOKYO, . . . YOURSELF!

Every person in America may not fly over Tokyo, but every one's dollars can help produce the bombing planes that do!

You, you, you, can join the attacks on Tokyo by saving at least 10% of your pay in War Bonds—by joining your company's pay-roll savings plan today or going to your local bank or post office and buying War Savings Bonds—at least 10% of your pay—every pay day.

Remember you can start buying War Bonds by buying War Stamps for as little as 10c and that you get a $25 War Bond (maturity value) for only $18.75.

State College Hints For Farm Homemakers

If you take the right care of the fats you save, you can use them in lots of ways in your regular cooking. Drippings, for instance, can be used for gravies, as flavorful seasonings for vegetables, in salad dressings, even for baking if you clarify the fat first.

Clarify means to wash out objectional odors, tastes, or colors. To do this, use twice as much water as fat and boil for 10 minutes. Stir the mixture well and then leave it to cool. In the case of soft fat, finish cooling in the refrigerator. The fat should form a solid cake. Lift off this layer of caked fat and scrape off any dark material from the underside. Then store the fat. (You can melt it and pour into a satisfactory container.)

Remember, clarified fats don't keep as well as other fats, so use them quickly.

separates the fat from the connective tissue. Poultry fat is naturally soft so you don't have to cut it before rendering, but other fats melt quicker if you either grind or cut them into small pieces first.

You can render a small amount of fat in a double boiler over hot water. Cover it and stir occasionally. As soon as the fat is melted strain it into a container that has a tight cover. When the fat is cold, store it. To keep fats in good condition, you have to store them well. Put them in clean containers with tight fitting covers and store in a cool dark place. Check up once in awhile to make sure they're not rancid. And be sure not to pour new fat in with rancid fat.

Some fats have to be rendered and by that we mean melted down. To render any raw fat such as suet and fats from poultry, pork, and lamb, you heat it until it melts. This

BONDS

A recent survey conducted by the American Institute of Public Opinion revealed that 50 percent of American farm families have been purchasing war bonds or stamps.

THE HOME FRONT

serious shortage in track materials will make better track maintenance a necessity for railroads and local transit companies.

All these savings leave the steel industry far short of its main requirement—iron and steel scrap. The goal set for the last six months of 1942 requires a monthly average of 2,833,000 tons of scrap. July's shipments fell short of the average by 15 percent. Among the states, North Dakota led by shipping 26.7 percent of its quota, Oklahoma was lowest with 7.2 percent.

Inflation Still Treatens.
The Home Front's dread enemy, inflation, still threatens us with high costs as vastly increased buying power competes for scarce goods not yet under price control. Today, for example, we are paying $1.35 for what was a dollar's worth of food in 1939. Prices of foods not under control have risen almost 10 percent in a three month period, whereas foods, products, and services under price ceilings have shown a slight decline during the same period. The answer is more extensive price control, and this control now has been extended to a varied list of products—rugs, denim, plywood, lime for improving soils, insecticides, fungicides, fall and winter knitted underwear, tool handles, wagon spokes, tent pins, dried prunes and raisins.

Trained Nurses Desperately Needed.
Thousands of women will be needed as part of the ground force at commercial airports, Railroads, local transit companies, all the war industries are short-handed. Trained nurses and nursing assistants are desperately needed. Labor-Management Committees reached a total of 1,809 in August, with the largest increase in the machine-tool industry—in California a Committee proposed that workers spend Sundays harvesting fruit that would otherwise spoil. They did—Liberty ship builders are beating all shipbuilding records, they are now turning them out in no short a time as 50 days—the "standstill seat," now being tested on Washington, D. C., Transit Lines, is an effort to meet wartime crowding on trolleys and buses. "Standstills" are spaced 18 inches apart—Ceiling price of apple butter has been raised 10 percent, and jams, jellies and preserves will be higher—Following its policy of cracking down on chiselers who cheapen product and claim they are the same grade, OPA has ordered stricter grading of beef and veal—Green tea drinkers are going to learn to like black tea or go without. Green tea comes from enemy-occupied area—War expenses of the U. S. for last month topped the five billion dollar mark. More than 10 percent of our total war expenditures are for our Allies under Lend-Lease, but they're returning this aid in countless ways, building naval bases and airports, supplying our troops abroad.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The power of the greatest Navy in the world, our own two-ocean fleet, rests in large measure on its backbone—the Battleships of the Line. They displace approximately 35,000 tons and cost up to $70,000,000. We have something like a score of these huge ships in the Atlantic and Pacific.

Eight huge battleships are under construction and more are contemplated. To finance these modern giants of the sea it is necessary for every American everywhere to buy more and more War Bonds. We can do it if everybody does his share. Invest at least ten percent of your income every pay day to help your country go over its Bond Quota.

If some could get all they want there would be nothing left for the others of us.

CEILING
Definite plans are being made to place a price ceiling on live hogs, with similar action expected in the near future on cattle, according to a recent OPA announcement.

FRUIT
Total fruit production in 1942-43 is expected to be slightly less than record 1941-42 production, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.
