Now is the time to save for the rainy day. Wet weather is on the way.

THE WILL TO WIN

In a six column page space of the New York Times, published Oct. 3, the United States Rubber Co., of New York, put the way the average American feels about the present situation into about the finest nutshell we ever saw, and we are reprinting this statement in The Enterprise for the benefit of our readers, who believe as we do that the American people have the grit with which to win this war.

A Testimonial
"What I feel must be said now! The time I lost my job we ate beans six weeks in a row. But I got back on a payroll! But the banks closed, I felt like I'd been hit with a ton of bricks. I'd get up and dusted my pants off!

The year I worked my fingers to the bone, and took a cut instead of a raise, I swore I'd quit. But I stuck!

The night we got the telegram about our boy, we thought the sun would never shine again. But . . . we're carrying on!

It seems to me, somebody's got America sized up wrong. This country was born at Valley Forge!

This country outgrew the grief of Gettysburg.

This country came to manhood at the Marne, and in the shattered forest of the Argonne!

The point I want to make is . . . We've been through the hardships and the heartaches all before!

Our only trouble is that when it comes to making war, we're a little short of practice.

But what we haven't any shortage in, is courage . . . fighting spirit . . . and the will to win!

That's why we want to know the truth about this war.

The whole truth and nothing but the truth, plain . . . unwarnished . . . with the bark on.

That way we all can figure out how big the job is and buckle down to lick it.

So, let's have it. If we need sugar to win this war, take it.

If we need rubber to win this war, take it.

If we need cash to win this war, take our money and buy War Savings Stamps and Bonds!

Take everything we've got to win this war, and welcome!

PREVENT FOREST FIRES!

Fire on farms take approximately 3,500 lives and destroy about $100,000,000 worth of property each year, says R. W. Graeber, Extension forester of N. C. State College. He urges that rural people and hunters who frequent the woods, and that auto drivers who smoke, be careful with their matches. "We cannot spare the manpower or the timber this year," he said, "because all human and forest resources are needed to win the fight for freedom against the Axis enemies. A cigarette butt, a lighted match, or a smoldering campfire may aid the Axis."

Kime Urges Farmers To Save Seed Cotton

Continued rains during August and early September which caused considerable damage to both cotton seed and lint in eastern and southern areas of the State have created a major problem for those farmers who ordinarily save seed, says P. H. Kime, agronomist of the Agricultural Experiment Station of N. C. State College.

The extent of injury to the germination is not yet known, but it is expected to range from light to very heavy in some instances. Unfortunately, most of the crop was open before, there seems to be little chance of saving seed from the second picking in the Coastal Plain area.

Kime said about the only thing left to do is to save seed from least damaged fields, especially those in which the cotton did not shed all of its leaves and opened up somewhat later. An ample supply of seed for planting next year's crop should be saved and a germination test made about January. If the germination is too low, then seed of the best strains having high germination should be purchased.

The crop in the Piedmont area has been damaged but little, and the quality of the seed is expected to be good. It seems advisable, Kime said, to save as much good seed as possible of Coker 100, strains 3 and 5; Coker 200, strains 1 and 2; and Wilds No. 13. Seed not used at home may be needed in other areas.

If not sold, the seed may be carried over or sold to the oil mills after planting requirements have been supplied. There seems little indication that the price of cotton seed will decline much below the present level.

Machinery Rationing Changes Announced

All farm implements and equipment, including attachments, having a retail value of $25 or less have been removed from Class B under an amendment to the farm machinery rationing order, and may be sold without restrictions, according to information received by the State USDA War Board, with headquarters at State College.

The new amendment, which became effective October 1, also removed hay presses from Class B, making clear that hay presses come under the classification of hay balers and are in Class A.

Providing a retail price classification for smaller and less scarce articles, it was explained, will save farmers the necessity of making certification of need to dealers when purchasing these items.

The Farm machinery rationing order became effective September 17, and placed all farm machinery and equipment in three general classifications. Those articles in Class A may be sold only upon presentation of a certificate from the county farm machinery rationing board; those in Class B may be sold upon certification by the farmer to the dealer that the item is essential to production; and those in Class C may be sold without restriction.

As provided in the original order, rationing boards have been set up in each county, composed of the chairman of the County AAA Committee, who serves as chairman, and two farmers selected by the County USDA War Board. Two alternates also were named.

These committees, the War Board said, were named to serve until November 1 when a permanent farm machinery rationing plan will go into effect.
