Large Cows Give More Milk Than Small Ones

On the average, large cows of any breed, when given an equal opportunity, have the advantage over the small ones in milk production.

Fred M. Haig, professor of dairymen should pay special attention to the production, type, and pedigree of animals selected for breeding and for milk production. Other essential requirements to be kept in mind are prepotency, longevity, and reproductive ability.

According to Haig, it should be remembered that size alone does not necessarily indicate high milk production efficiency. On the other hand, it is a well known fact that size, within the breed, is one of the important factors in economical milk production, and it is dependent both on inheritance and environment.

More good heifers could be produced, except for the fact that some calves are stunted. Growers miss sales by not getting heifers of good size. Haig said that the way the calf is fed after birth is just as important as having proper sized calves, if such calves are to grow into large, high-producing cows.

Weights and measurements are being taken of 50 dairy calves in the herd of N. C. State College each month. These calves are Jersey, Holstein and Guernsey. About two-thirds of these calves have exceeded the standard birth weights for their respective breeds, and they are expected to produce milk.

STATE COLLEGE ANSWERS TIMELY FARM QUESTIONS

QUESTION: Can the "jitterbug" disease with pigs be controlled?

ANSWER: Yes, Dr. C. D. Grinnell, veterinarian for the North Carolina Experiment Station, suggests that all sows be given liberal, well-balanced grain rations and proper supplements before pigs are born. If any pigs show loss of appetite, rough hair or lowered vigor, they should be separated from the rest of the litter and hand fed. Corn syrup, fed in proper proportions, has been beneficial but it should be fed under proper guidance to prevent scours.

QUESTION: Is it worthwhile growing herbs just for seasoning?

ANSWER: Home demonstration specialists answer, "yes." Herbs give zest and flavor to many foods that might otherwise be dull, and they help bring changes when the same foods are used frequently. Parsley in the herb border is a good source of vitamins A and C. Chives for onion flavor, thyme and sage for stuffings, basil for tomato soups and mint for summer drinks are recommended. Your neighbor might plant dill for pickles, omelets and salads; marjoram for soups and salads; and rosemary for lamb and veal. Then, you might exchange herbs with your neighbor.

QUESTION: Are there any good chemical weed killers?

ANSWER: Sodium chlorate, sulphuric acid, carbon disulphide, and common salt are four of the best. The first two kill the plants above the ground and the other two kill plants below the ground. Full instructions should be obtained for any of these treatments. With sodium chlorate, for instance, a solution should be made up, one pound to the gallon, and sprayed upon the plants. This chemical is very active and it must at all times be kept away from fire and never should be stored near sulphur.

With sulphuric acid, a 1 to 2 percent solution is sprayed on the plants. Care should be taken in mixing the acid and the water. This spray is to be applied only in dry weather.

Prevent Wood Fires And Save Valuable Pulpwood

North Carolina growers lose about $1,350,000,000 every year from destructive fires in woodlands. Not only can they save money by preventing these fires but they can also protect the valuable pulpwood which is so greatly needed by our armed services, is the suggestion of R. W. Graeber, extension forester at N. C. State College.

Pine trees for parachutes. Pine trees for smokeless powder. Pine trees for treating sick and wounded soldiers. Their pulpwood and resin find a thousand uses, according to Graeber. Resin impregnated kraft pulp is now being moulded under pressure into airplane parts. A cord of pulpwood will make enough smokeless powder to fire two rounds in a 16-inch naval gun.

The Nation needs thirteen million cords of U. S. pulpwood in 1943, says Graeber, and so great is the demand that kraft paper for a number of articles has been discontinued. Recently newsprint was cut 10 percent, book papers 20 percent and wrapping paper 15 percent. Many other types of paper were restricted.

An interesting bulletin on preventing forest fires has just been issued and copies of it may be obtained from the county agent or from Mr. Graeber at N. C. State College, Raleigh. In addition to discussing fire hazards, it outlines the best methods of preventing fires and gives pointers on fire fighting in woodlands.

Patricia Collins of Chicago illustrates how the new kind of "swing" girl—who must sleep daytime because she works the swing shift in a war plant—helps the victory drive by pulling down window shades. This not only provides better sleeping conditions but conserves fuel. By keeping shades completely drawn at night and in unused rooms at all times, American families can save 9,000,000 tons of coal and 10,600,000 barrels of oil a year, according to figures compiled by the Armour Research Foundation.
