The old man who now gives such good advice is the one who used to get such a bad example.

There's no doubt about the scarcity of doctors. You can tell that by all the bellyaching around.

Simple Susie says she's an old maid because she did not marry before she had enough sense not to.

One man was enough for faithful old grandma but grand daughter wants to play safe and has a spare.

Uncle Moses: Ole Rastus say he can't pay his first wife's alimony. He secon' wife c'lects he wedges and hol's out on him.

Women are not supposed to be master mathematicians but a wife can extract the square root of her husband's salary in a jiffy.

Men's hats serve them in several ways. They can be worn, they can be thrown into the political ring and can be used to talk through when the men don't know what they are talking about.

Beef Cattle Need Several Pastures

Good pastures, both permanent and temporary, are the basis for economical beef production in North Carolina, says L. I. Case, Extension animal husbandman at State College, in his new bulletin on raising beef cattle.

He points out that there should be several pastures for the proper handling of a herd of cattle because it is advisable to segregate animals of various ages and sexes at certain times.

He notes that good permanent pastures are found only on fertile soils which are heavy and well supplied with moisture. Fertilization is especially important for pastures and Case recommends that soil tests be made to determine what fertilizers should be applied.

For average Coastal Plain soils a mixture of 10 pounds of Dallis grass, 4 pounds of redtop, 15 pounds of lespedeza and 1 to 2 pounds of white clover is recommended.

Under average conditions, Case recommends that the inexperienced grower begin with native or grade females headed by a good bull. As to the breed, he suggests that the grower determine which breed suits him best and is best for his conditions.

The breeding and raising of registered cattle is a specialized business and that only a small percentage of those entering it make a success.

A free copy of Case's bulletin, Extension Circular No. 268, may be obtained by writing the Agricultural Editor, State College, Raleigh.

Disease Control For Chickens

Colds and chicken pox are two of the diseases that commonly strike flocks during the fall and winter, warn Poultry Specialists at State College.

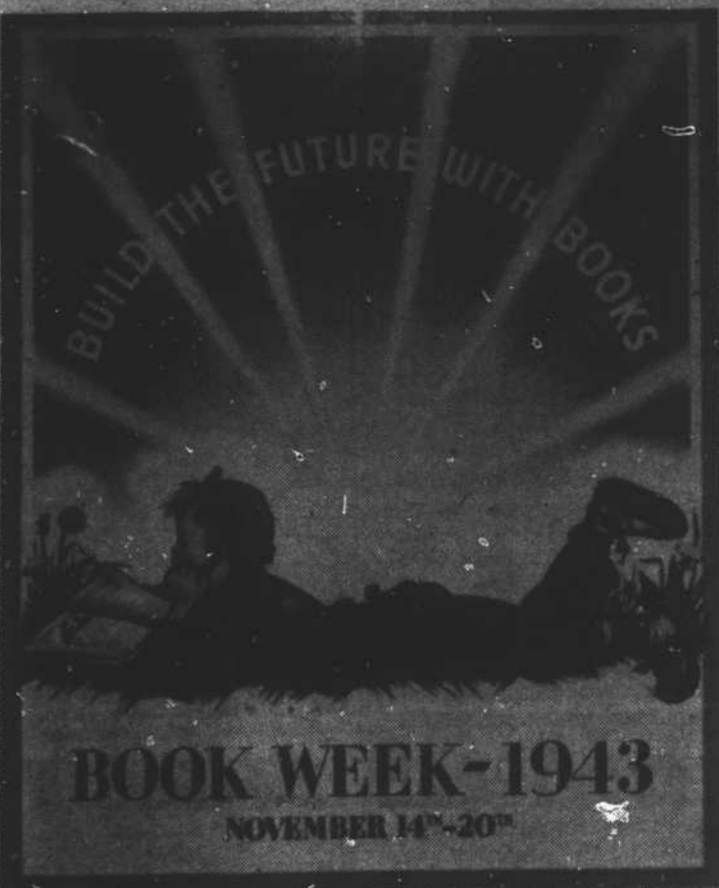

Control of colds depends to a great extent upon removing the causes before the disease has a chance to get started. The specialists advise, be sure the chicken house is free from parasites, especially red mites, and that the birds themselves are free from lice. Remove the birds with advanced cases, clean and disinfect the chicken house often, and give the birds fresh water several times daily.

In feeding them, keep a well-balanced dry mash before them at all times, and at noon, feed them a wet mash in amounts small enough that they will eat it all within half an hour. To wet the mash, use buttermilk, skim milk, whey or semi-solid milk. If milk is not available, wet the mash with water containing one pint of molasses to each gallon of water.

Add a teaspoonful of feeding oil that contains vitamins A and D, to each quart of grain they are given. Always keep the litter dry and allow no strong drafts in the chicken house at night.

For the care of birds with chicken pox, vaccinate all between eight and twelve weeks of age. When the disease does break out be unvaccinated laying birds, use pigeon pox vaccine for them. Apply Carbolic acid solution to the areas and warts of infected and uninfected birds, clean the house and the birds and continue to vaccinate birds on a regular basis. Do not feed the wet mash.

BUILD THE FUTURE WITH BOOKS

BOOK WEEK is being celebrated in our community November 14-20, keynoteed by the national theme, "Build the Future with Books." On this twenty-fifth anniversary of BOOK WEEK, it is fitting that we should consider the importance of children's books in the world today. The observations of experts in the library, educational and publishing fields, who support the project this year, help to crystallize our own thoughts and stimulate public discussion.

Nora Boust, U. S. Office of Education, suggests: "It may be revealing to pause and inquire whose children's future is to be built with books, for an inventory of the present must necessarily precede any planning for the future. What, for example, is being done within each household to make books live for the young members? What books are there for children of the less privileged members of the group, to encourage their dreams of the future and give them a vision of the good life? What books are being read by the young people of the city? Irene Smith, Brooklyn Public Library, states: "For those who know and love children's books there is encouragement in them which never fails us on our darkest day."

We have, unalterably, the wonderful books and free young readers among our heartening realities. Both reflect our whole past and present, so the future too is theirs inseparably. Children will need more than ever before to read widely and well. Everything we want for them in spiritual growth and enriching human experience is laid at its best in their books, whose friendliness, wisdom, universality is an American treasure.

Jessie McEwen, Thomas Nelson & Sons, reflects the ideals of children's book editors: "Young people today need books that have 'far horizons.' If, through books, American boys and girls can realize that in Africa, Burma, Britain, Russia, China—everywhere in the world—there are boys and girls as like them in hopes, ambition and desire to be good citizens, then books will have achieved something so great that it cannot be measured, but will endure forever."

Our local libraries, both public and educational, are joining with the book industry in this national campaign to bring young people and good books together. Grow-ups, as well as boys and girls, will find much to stimulate and inspire them if they visit our local book centers.

EGGS
It is estimated that nearly 9,000,000 eggs will become inedible in North Carolina this year because of improper production, handling and storing—enough eggs for 24,660 soldiers for a year.

Everyone is entitled to his opinion about the war but he is foolish to express it.

BEEES
A ten-pound colony of bees needs 60 pounds of honey and 4 or 5 combs of pollen stored in the hive to carry it through the winter. A soldier eats six times his weight of food during the winter, also.

The boy is father unto the man and does not always have cause to be proud of it.

POSTER PREPARED by district office of Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, in Atlanta, Ga., designed to assist in stimulating production of Southern pulpwood for war.

Heroes Feed for More Wood

FIVE INJURED VETERANS with Army "Salute to Wood" Campaign were invited to produce more lumber and pulpwood for war. In group (left to right) Staff Sgt. Ray Moore, U. S. Army, injured in Tunisia; Corp. Forrest F. Swain, U. S. Marine Corps, wounded at Guadalcanal; Pvt. Ralph Hall, U. S. Army, a casualty in Tunisia; and returned in hospital; Pvt. Glenn White, U. S. Army, injured in North Africa; and returned in hospital; Staff Sgt. Frank, U. S. Army, injured in North Africa.

BELLEMEANT BISHOP

SOUTH PACIFIC—Despite the non-combatant status of the clergy, E. L. Linder Bishop, of Urbana, O., former Ohio Wesleyan university student, affectionately christened the twin-engine transport plane he pilots over Jap-infested waters the "Battling Bishop."

Reason: Superstitions for years have dubbed his alma mater's teams the "Battling Bishops" because this college is tops among the 130 educational institutions of The Methodist Church in supplying the denomination with bishops. Fourteen alumni and five former presidents and professors, elevated to this office are represented in this militant monk.

Gray Hair?

NEW VITAMIN RESTORES NATURAL COLOR
Free Booklet Tells Of Thrilling Discovery New Hope For Millions
One of the most sensational scientific discoveries of modern times is an anti-gray hair vitamin that restores natural, normal color to gray hair in nature's own way. Scientific investigation has revealed that gray hair, in many cases, may be due to a vitamin deficiency. Scientists have also discovered the particular vitamins that are necessary to restore color to the hair in such cases. Reports of tests conducted on remarkable results. Not a dye—no a tint—no a drug—no a medicine! It is a valuable food supplement. If you are among the millions of people who find themselves balding, in business or socially, because of gray hair, start coming before for relief or free booklet about this new and safe vitamin discovery. There is no cost or obligation, so send today.
