YOUR RED CROSS IS AT HIS SIDE

The work of the Red Cross is so well known and its appeal is so universal that it is unnecessary to emphasize that appeal. But while the work of the Red Cross is known generally, many Americans do not understand the magnitude of that work and are unfamiliar with its details.

The American Red Cross stood shoulder to shoulder with our fighting forces in the past twelve months and extended more hands to help than could ever be counted. These hands lifted loads of worry and fear—or just plain boredom—from the hearts of men in our military and naval hospitals on land and sea. Red Cross hospital social workers, with understanding skill, resolved worries that retard a man's recovery, while recreation workers and Gray Ladies, with music, movies, games, and banter, relieved homesickness.

Other Red Cross hands assisted discharged, disabled men through readjustment to civilian life—a growing task.

Still other hands offered a quick, competent "lift" to able-bodied soldiers in personal difficulties.

Many extended an American welcome at clubs and other Red Cross facilities to our armies, soldiers, sailors, marines, coast guardsmen, nurses, Wacs in foreign lands. Others brought refreshment and entertainment to men at isolated stations by clubmobiles and in aeroclubs.

They helped collect millions of pints of blood for life-saving plasma. They worked at packing those heartening prisoners of war cartons which other Red Cross hands carried, with clothing, medicines, and other necessities, to prison camps in enemy countries.

Many thousands of nurses were recruited by the Red Cross for service in the Army and Navy Nurse Corps. A hundred thousand volunteer nurse's aides served in veterans' and civilian hospitals. Gray Ladies and hospital visitors specialized in bringing cheer to army and navy, and veterans' hospital wards. Dietitian's aides volunteered for civilian hospital work.

Red Cross production workers made hundreds of millions of surgical dressings, knitted sweaters and other comfort articles as officially requested by the armed forces, sewed millions of relief garments, and sewed and packed millions of kit bags. Quick hands of the Junior Red Cross fabricated comfort articles for camps and hospitals.

Through Red Cross Camp and Hospital Councils, many citizens channeled comfort and recreation aids to our men.

Other hands, after courses of training in 8,756 Red Cross chapters, served tirelessly in the nine corps of Volunteer Special Services. They drove cars, ambulances, and trucks. They served many thousand mass emergency meals to troops and civilians. Home Service workers helped care for the families of the men and women of our armed forces when in financial or other trouble. They worked as utility helpers in Red Cross and other war aid centers.

Other hands reached across the sea through Red Cross communication system to check the well-being of friends and relatives in enemy-occupied countries.

Millions of Americans were taught first aid and water safety—including army and navy instructors and essential war workshops. By hundreds of thousands, women and girls were taught Red Cross Home Nursing, lessening the threat of epidemic, while an expanding nutrition program helped strengthened the home front.

There was readiness to feed and house millions of our people in case of natural disaster. There was the giving of immediate relief when disaster struck, followed by assistance to help restore health, homes, and livelihood.

Clothing and medicines and food by shiploads were distributed to United Nations civilians in distress.

So marched the Red Cross—a people's partnership.

I SEND MYSELF TO STAND BEHIND 25 Soldiers As Long As He Needs My Help

I would go if I could, to be there with him

I would cheer him when homesickness came over his face

I would try to make him forget the home he had left behind would see that he got extra foods, warm clothing and needed medicines.

If he were wounded I would furnish my blood to save his life, and surgical dressings to bind his wounds. I would be beside him in the hospital to give him comfort, and to make the hours less long.

If he were crippled, I would help him adjust himself to his new and smaller world, and were he discharged for disability I would seek to safeguard his interests and to see him and the family through any difficulty.

I am needed to do these things. I CAN do them—for I am the Red Cross. By my generous gift to the

RED CROSS WAR FUND
I DO them all. The fund—unprecedented in size to meet the unprecedented need—greatly needs my gift. This is my share.

BIRD CLUB NOTES

At Saturday's Bird Club meeting, Jess Spencer read an article on the whippoorwill and its strange nest. This bird is about the size of a robin. It is a queen mottling of dull brownish, blackish and gray white—just the colors of dead and decaying wood. Its feet and legs are small and poorly developed but since they do little walking that is not much importance. The wings are long and well developed. They flit about near the ground over pastures and fields late in the afternoon—for more insects fly then. The head is broad and large but the bill is small, however, when its mouth is open it is very deep enabling it to catch and swallow even June bugs and large beetles. It whistles "Whippoor-will" from dusk to dawn without seemingly to pause for breath and usually sits on top of a house or other buildings to sing.

The Whippoorwill does not build a nest. It simply selects a spot on the ground, in the brush or woods and lays its eggs without the trouble of making a depression in the ground. The reason may be because it is so near her own color that she can feel safe from being caught while brooding.

Betsy Lockamy and Margaret Andrews were welcome guests.

Natural nitrate of soda shipments from Chile are arriving on satisfactory schedule. Close to half a million tons are already here, delivered or ready for delivery. Another 200,000 tons are expected and every effort is being made to get it here in time for this season's crops.

If shipping estimates hold, there will be about as much Chilean nitrate for ton and side dressing as last year. But because all of it is being distributed under the government's allocation program, it may be impossible to supply all sections in the same proportions as last year.

If you cannot get Chilean nitrate when you want it, remember the inconvenience is only temporary—one of many allocations due to war.

Chilean nitrate is here in substantial quantity, but, like every good soldier, it goes where it is told and when it is told by the government.
