

MONK'S WAREHOUSES WELL KNOWN TO FARMERS OF THE BRIGHT BELT

All In Readiness To Start 37th Year; J. Y. Monk, Jr., J. C. Carlton and Robert D. Rouse Will Be On Hand To Welcome Their Farmer Friends With Dependable Service

Monk's Warehouses are expecting a banner season and the firm members, J. Y. Monk, Jr., J. C. Carlton and Robert D. Rouse, have pledged themselves to the protection and extension of the interests of this widely known leaf selling center and their well organized forces are prepared to perform well their multitudinous duties.

J. Y. Monk, Jr. has been thoroughly schooled in a knowledge of the weed and its marketing from boyhood and his general manner and ability in warehouse management have won him friends by the thousands.

J. C. Carlton, one of the most popular and industrious young men in this section of the State, has been a prominent member of Monk's warehouse firm for many years and has gained a wide and favorable reputation as a seasoned and able warehouseman.

Robert D. Rouse, the other partner of the firm, cordial and likeable, has given 20 years of active service to these warehouses and to the Nashville, Ga. warehouse, also operated by this trio. Mr. Rouse is recognized as a valuable and outstanding member of this market's group of warehousemen.

This alliance of business associates gives the Farmville market one of the strongest warehouse firms in the entire belt. The loyalty of old friends to this warehouse also attracts many new patrons each season, and the firm's pride in their reputation acts as a constant incentive that keeps every member and their associates, on the floor and in the office, on their tiptoes throughout the season in order that sales may hold up to a satisfying level from the opening through the closing day.

For the 7th year, Monk's warehouse will operate a second house, which enables the firm to satisfy the increasing patronage and its demands. Both houses are modern in construction and equipment and have every facility that insures a good showing of the leaf, and prompt, efficient service in its handling and sale. The houses are located on diagonal corners on Wilson street.

In discussing plans for the new season the proprietors were enthusiastic about prospects for the 1944 season, and stated that all arrangements and necessary renovation of Monk's huge warehouses, No. 1 and No. 2, have been made, and that this firm is better prepared to take care of its growing patronage and to guarantee customers satisfaction than ever before.

The auctioneering this season will be ably performed here by Jim Edwards and Jack Rogers, who have been associated with Monk's warehouse for many years in this capacity.

Other members of the force will be: L. P. Thomas, bookkeeper; John B. Joyner and Mrs. M. V. Jones, pay-off bookkeepers; J. T. Jordan and E. W. Carter, book and clip men; Haywood Smith, floor manager; Fred Carr and Bill Forbes, assistants; Arch J. Flaughan, weighman; O. E. McNamara, ticket market; Mrs. R. V. Piser, billing clerk. Jack Lewis will also be associated with this firm again this year.

No effort will be spared at Monk's to provide every facility available for easy, speedy and satisfactory marketing of the weed and for welcoming the farmers and other visitors to the market on opening and succeeding days.

Eli and Elisha Slade of Caswell county produced the first Bright-tobacco in 1852.

North Carolina's fine-cured tobacco crop, hard hit by early drought, is estimated to yield 22 per cent more than last year.

Cotton picked early in the season is "green" and the seed are high in moisture. The cotton should be thoroughly dried before ginning, otherwise there will be a reduction in grade.

Medicine Found In Flue-cured Tobacco

Number of Uses Indicated For The New Drug, Which Is Given Name of "Rutin"

Wilson, Aug. 25.—Science has found a new chemical weapon that can be extracted from bright leaf flue cured tobacco with which to combat certain types of diseases.

This announcement has been made by scientists of the Bureau of Agricultural and Industrial Chemistry, Regional Research Laboratory at Philadelphia, Pa. It came at the same time that growers in the flue cured belt from Florida to Virginia were worrying over the subject of price control and while they pondered over the subject of crop control for the coming year.

Though the new discovery is apparently in its infancy it may turn out, scientists said, to be a new use for flue cured tobacco that may help humanity a great deal.

The new chemical weapon being taken from the tobacco is to be used primarily, for the present, it was explained, to combat capillary fragility. In plain English this means the weakening of certain capillaries in the body during certain diseases that become so weakened that a touch on the outside of the skin causes the capillary to burst and causes a bleeding under the skin.

The new discovery was first announced by the Drug Trade News. The story declared that "since in many diseases the walls of the capillaries become brittle and permit blood to break through, causing small hemorrhages, the action of the new drug is very significant. If the hemorrhages occur in the eye or in the brain, blindness or apoplexy may result."

The new drug is being called "Rutin." "The drug," the announcement said, "is a bright yellow non-toxic glucoside which is found in the leaf of the plant.

Its chemical formula is C<sub>27</sub>H<sub>36</sub>O<sub>16</sub> No. 5820 and on hydrolysis with dilute acids yields quercetin, glucose and rhamnose.

Experiments conducted by the Bureau of Animal Industry have shown the absence of acute or chronic toxicity to laboratory animals. Patients treated daily several months have exhibited no symptoms that could be attributed to the rutin.

From Flue Cured Leaf "Rutin can be obtained only from the flue cured leaf, according to the results of James F. Couch and Charles F. Krewson, who conducted most of the research.

"The investigators found that the best process for extraction of rutin is percolation with alcohol. The air-dried leaf in coarse powder is moistened and packed into a percolator and extracted with alcohol in the usual way.

"The alcohol is then distilled, leaving a residual mass consisting of fats, resins, sugars, coloring matters, acids, and other constituents, in addition to rutin. These are extracted with boiling distilled water, the water extracts are mixed and filtered, and the filtrate is left standing until the bright yellow crystals of rutin are deposited in a container."

Although no official statement was forthcoming, agricultural experts pointed out that, with tobacco production in the belt at its peak for the purpose of smoking tobacco and cigarettes, this new scientific discovery might lead to the increased production of tobacco by necessity in the bright leaf belt because of the fact that rutin could only be extracted from this type of tobacco.

Government Graders Inspection of Tobacco

Government graders, comprising the Federal Board of Tobacco Inspection here, will be on hand to inspect the opening sale Tuesday, and throughout the season to judge tobacco placed on sale, according to U. S. standard grades and at government expense, and to furnish free market news service. Farmville was chosen as Eastern Carolina's key market for permissive government inspection in 1931 when this service was first inaugurated.

As a result of the referendum held in May, 1943 (at which 78 percent of the growers voted favorably) free and mandatory inspection was authorized on all flue-cured markets for the first time during the 1943-44 selling season. Prior to last season only 27 of the 78 flue-cured markets had grading and market news service.

Request Accommodations For Tobacconists Here

The Board of Directors of the Merchants Association are today calling upon the people of Farmville to make rooms and board, when convenient, available to the incoming tobacconists at reasonable rates.

It is expected that the people of Farmville will give the tobacco visitors a cordial welcome and help make their stay a pleasant one.

Due to the lack of hotel accommodations and to the shortage in motel service being experienced by housewives in Farmville, it is becoming more and more of a problem to secure adequate lodging and boarding places, and the public is requested to make allowances for these obstacles when reviewing the present situation here.
