Baptists Oppose Federal Aid For Church Schools, Against Vatican Representation

The Southern Baptist Convention, protesting what it described as a "threat to the future of all public schools," went on record at its meeting in St. Louis against acceptance of Federal aid by church-sponsored schools and opposed sending an official representative from the United States government to the Vatican in Rome.

The Convention, attended by 7,900 persons from 19 states and the District of Columbia, adopted unanimously a resolution warning all Baptist schools and other institutions against accepting grants of money from the Government for any purpose on the grounds it weakened what it termed the traditional wall between the church and state.

Also adopted by the Convention was a resolution deploring the recent Supreme Court decision upholding a New Jersey case permitting use of local school district funds to help pay the cost of transporting children to and from parochial schools.

Dr. J. M. Dawson of Washington, Executive Secretary of the Joint Conference Committee of American Baptists, spoke vigorously in favor of the resolution, declaring that there was a "deplorable drift toward union of the church and state, resulting in dangerous encroachment on the Constitution. . . . We protest appropriation of tax funds to sectarian purposes."

The convention also heard Dr. Walter Pope Binnis, president of William Jewell College at Liberty, Mo., assail Government aid to church schools.

Dr. Binnis' Public Relations Committee report, which the convention adopted, said consistent application of a Supreme Court ruling of last February posed a threat to the future of all public school systems because it would allow "not only Roman Catholics but 288 different denominations in the United States to put their hands into the public treasury for support of sectarian schools."

"We are confident the deplorable situation may eventuate in the thorough arousal of the citizenship to the peril of a fundamental change in our whole culture, as contained in the continued encroachments of the Roman Catholic hierarchy through this and other sinister steps."

The report stated that the Committee felt free "to unite with other organizations in some issues such as the separation of church and state."

"Unless this is done in relation to the present powerful drive of the Roman Catholics to capture America, we shall fight a losing battle," the report continued.

The Committee's adopted recommendations also directed the attention of all Baptist schools, hospitals, and other institutions of what it said was the danger of accepting grants of money from the Government for buildings or equipment or for any other purpose.

"Acceptance of such grants upon any pretext whatever will weaken the Baptist witness in behalf of the principal of separation of church and state."

It's astonishing how many quarrels arise over sums less than a dollar.

A smile may make matters worse when you've been caught in a costly mistake.
