

Raleigh Round-Up

By Eula Nixon Greenwood

FOR JOHNSON—Governor R. Gregg Cherry, who has made no public statements favoring the two gubernatorial candidates, is expected to give a vigorous nod in the direction of Charles M. Johnson within the next 10 days.

EURE—Secretary of State Thad Eure, who led the ticket in the primary and who was opposed by John Armstrong of the State Utilities Commission, is not expected to make any public utterances for Scott. However, it is understood that some letters endorsing Scott have already been written by Eure. More are anticipated.

ON THREE COUNTS—John I. Barnes, who handled R. Mayne Albright's campaign, can cite you three instances in which Albright—in the presence of his wife, Frances—promised W. Kerr Scott he would support him if Scott came through to the runoff. Barnes is now one of Scott's managers.

FEELING—The feeling around Raleigh is that Albright did the best thing in remaining neutral—in leaving the matter of preference for Johnson up to his constituents. But he did turn over to Barnes a wealth of worthwhile material—names, addresses, phone numbers, etc.—for use in the second go-around. On the day Albright came out with his statement of neutrality he was urged by telephone calls and telegrams to "come out for Scott." Two or three pleaded with him to remain in the center. At least one asked him to join Charles M. Johnson.

FRANCES—You can put this down as a fact—Had it not been for Mrs. Albright, Mr. Albright would have sided with W. Kerr Scott—and might have gone so far as to move over to the Scott headquarters at the Carolina Hotel here.

Information—correct dope—has it that Albright was on the verge, but Frances—a Washington, D. C., girl—would not consent.

NOT QUITE NEUTRAL—J. M. Broughton, your new U. S. Senator, as of November, is in a position to build a strong political machine in North Carolina. The late F. M. Simmons had a machine which rode rough-shod over virtually all opposition for approximately 25 years, until Al Smith overtook him in 1928 and knocked him out of the big leagues with J. W. Bailey in 1930.

Is J. M. Broughton neutral in this Governor's race? Well, no, not quite. He feels he was sold down the river in ten counties—and he is going to see to it that Johnson supporters suffer in those counties in the second primary on June 26. That's the report—and it comes straight. Otherwise, Broughton is expected to go fishing.

MACHINE?—Neither Broughton, Hoey nor Ehringhaus are machine men in the sense of the word that they tried to build machines around themselves. They carried on one that the late Max Gardner built in 1928-1932. Gardner had one, and it still functions better than you might suspect. He built it, because he knew that the Simmons machine got him in 1920. And so he had to wait eight years to become Governor.

J. M. Broughton can form an organization as strong as that which Simmons had—or Gardner. The Gardner followers still run the State Revenue Department, the Department of Conservation and Development, the ABC setup, the Local Government, combine, etc., but it is out of the State Highway Commission and several other very important departments. That's why there is so much confusion about who will be the next Governor. Johnson has part of the original Gardner workings, but so has Scott, it seems.

JUST A PRELIMINARY—The Charles M. Johnson forces, although disappointed at the showing their candidate made in the first primary, are looking on it as merely a preliminary hearing. They view the June 26 thing as an entirely new battle. They have Don Elias in Raleigh as another manager. He is from Asheville. Oscar Pitts, also of Asheville, is in Raleigh last week and a Claude Ramsey of Asheville will assist with the publicity. So, Asheville, the "capital of Western North Carolina," which did so well for Charles M. Johnson in the May 29 affair, will be in the saddle from now through June 26. They have come down to show them how it's done in the mountains.

1932—Then, if Johnson wins, the man who succeeds him, Brandon Hodges of Asheville, your new State Treasurer, may be THE candidate in 1938 for Governor. This will mean a new beginning. Oscar Ramsey of

CITIZENS OF TOMORROW

Citizenship will soon be a very real thing for some of the young people whose picture The Enterprise has the pleasure of publishing this week. In the group are, top row, left to right: Carol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Gardner of 208 S. Main st.; Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lee, route 2; and Faye, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Corbett, of 519 N. Main st.; bottom row: Ann Pollard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Follard, 105 Home ave.; Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Murphy, route 1; and Betty Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Erwin Wilkerson, route 2.

CARL HICKS TELLS ELECTRIC CO-OP FARMERS MUST WORK TOGETHER

At The Kiwanis Club

One of the finest talks the Kiwanis club has heard in a long time was given at the weekly meeting Monday night by Dr. William Irwin of Eureka, who has been practicing medicine for 39 years.

Sam Lewis, who had charge of the program, introduced Dr. Irwin, whose talk was spiced with wit and "hard" commonsense. Dr. Irwin is writing a book of his experiences as a country doctor. He says he hopes to finish the volume within the next six months. The book will be a "best seller," insofar as local Kiwanians are concerned, if Dr. Irwin's talk Monday night is a sample of what the book will contain.

DUKE STUDENT WILL FILL METHODIST PULPIT SUNDAY

A student from the Duke university divinity school will fill the pulpit at the Methodist church Sunday as a substitute for Rev. E. R. Clegg, who is undergoing observation at the Duke hospital.

Union county, if the Hodges plan goes through. That's the way the grand strategy looks from this corner.

NOT WAYNICK—In the event W. Kerr Scott is elected Governor, Capus Waynick will not be chairman of the State Highway Commission, contrary to what you may have heard. Scott says that Waynick has not been offered any State position whatever—and does not want one.

AT LEAST SIX—Ed Martin, who handled Mayne Albright's campaign in Asheville and Buncombe county, will assist with Scott's from here on out. At least six Albright county managers have joined Scott since May 29.

FAVORING JOHNSON—There will be few local contests on June 26, and the local politicians will be free to line up with whom they choose. The vote should be even less than on May 29.

SCOTT BURDEN—With his original vote and two-thirds of Albright's, W. Kerr Scott will win. In fact, many county leaders, believing he is destined to be the next Governor, and wanting to be with the winner, made the telephone lines leading to the Scott headquarters hot last week. On Monday morning following the primary one State manufacturer who can't afford it offered financial support well into five figures for Scott.

The Scott burden: Getting out a large vote; fighting overconfidence, and maintaining enthusiasm.

RECURRENCE OF 1936—In 1936, Dr. Ralph McDonald came very close to defeating Clyde R. Hoey. Between the first primary and the second, the road contractors told Hoey they would see to it, money no object, that he would be nominated Governor. If he let out Capus Waynick as chairman of the State Highway Commission, Waynick was very close to Governor Ehringhaus, had made a good highwayman, but had not got along with the road-builders. Finally, Hoey agreed to move out Waynick. The contractors kept their bargain and Hoey became Governor, and kept his word.

But Waynick will not become head of the highways if Scott is nominated. So, where do the contractors stand as of this second primary?

The Annual Meeting of the Pitt and Greene Electric Membership Corporation

The annual meeting of the Pitt and Greene Electric Membership Corporation was held in the town hall Saturday afternoon.

Manager Cleveland M. Paylor presided in the absence of J. Lee Tugwell, president, and Secretary Seth Barrow kept minutes of the session. Following the opening prayer by Rev. Z. B. T. Cox, pastor of the Farmville Christian church, Mayor J. W. Joyner welcomed to Farmville the members of the electric cooperative who receive their power from the municipally-owned plant here.

Board of directors present for the meeting, and presented to the group, were Mr. Barrow, Sam V. Tugwell, E. E. Nethercutt and O. L. Erwin.

Principal Sam D. Bundy of the Farmville schools then introduced the principal speaker, Carl T. Hicks of Walstonburg, president of the Flu-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corporation and a recognized authority on tobacco and the marketing problems which face growers of the golden weed.

Using "Necessity for Cooperation" as his topic, Mr. Hicks stressed the fact that so long as farmers continue to cooperate and work together in marketing their products in an organized effort to get a fair price, then their goal will be achieved.

The Secretary then reported that 97 of the REA's approximately 1600 members were present and that an additional 16 were represented by proxy.

Manager Paylor presented a brief summary of the annual report, copies of which had been mailed to members on April 15.

He also added that much progress had been made toward the construction of additional facilities and that approximately 850 new members would be added to the system.

A. C. Oakes, W. C. Hinson, W. L. White, George Mewborn and R. T. Bynum had been appointed as a committee on nominations to recommend four members to serve as directors for a two-year term. Chairman Oakes submitted the following recommendations: Seth Barrow, J. L. Tugwell, J. E. Mewborn and J. C. Parker, all of whom are currently serving as members of the board.

Since there were no additional nominations, either by petition in the manner prescribed by the laws of the REA, or from the floor, a motion was made by Ichabod Allen and unanimously carried that the four be elected.

Then came another highlight on the program—the awarding of prizes. W. A. Martin served as official "striver," mixing the names in a box, and Rachel Tugwell, a young girl from the audience, drew the names of the following members and the prize they received: Pete Reeves, route 3, Snow Hill, electric fan; R. T. Sugg, route 2, Snow Hill, electric toaster; B. A. Thomas, route 2, Snow Hill, electric fan; Carlos Tyson, route 2, Walstonburg, electric broiler; Sam Albritton, route 1, Snow Hill, electric iron; W. H. Owens, route 1, Fountain, table lamp; Walter Tyndall, route 2, Stan-tonburg, electric broiler; W. L. White, route 2, Farmville, Silux coffee maker; John Grimsley, route 3, Snow Hill, electric fan; Mrs. C. C. Corbett, route 1, Farmville, electric clock; Clifton Horns (colored), route 2, Farmville, heating pad; Mrs. Sadie Reeves, route 3, Snow Hill, electric toaster; John Parker, route 1, Farmville, heating pad; A. L. Tyson, route 1, Fountain, electric toaster; Kings Crossroad church, route 1, Greenville, electric iron (turned over to Mrs. C. C. Corbett); Ichabod Allen, route 1, Farmville, hand pump; C. N. Allen, route 2, Farmville, electric heater; Will Vines (colored), route 1, Greenville, electric toaster.

All of the names were put again in the box, stirred thoroughly again by Mr. Bundy, and another name was drawn—A. C. Carraway of route 2, Farmville, winner of the grand prize, an electric washing machine.

Farmville Has $1,000 Quota For Child's Crusade

On Thursday night of last week, a meeting was held at the Christian church to form plans for the American Overseas Aid for Children, which is attracting wide-spread interest in a national appeal.

In North Carolina it is approved by the State Federation of Women's clubs, with Robert N. Simms of Raleigh as state chairman.

This crusade for children, endorsed by numerous public spirited organizations in North Carolina and throughout the country, is seeking to secure contributions of at least $400,000 as this state's share of the national goal of $60,000,000. This sum, together with donations from many other countries, will be expended for the relief of more than 230,000,000 children in war-devastated countries.

The meeting opened with prayer by Rev. Z. B. T. Cox, pastor of the Christian church, Mrs. W. Jesse Moyer, president of the Fifteenth District, told of the distressing need of these children. Then George W. Davis, chairman for Farmville, stated his heart felt interest and urged all to actively co-operate in raising the funds. In addition to Mr. Davis, the following officers were named: Rev. Cox, co-chairman; Charles Rasberry, treasurer; Curtis Flanagan, chairman of special gifts campaign; Miss Elizabeth Davis, Miss Tabitha M. DeVisconti, Mrs. W. C. Garner and Mrs. Moyer, members of the executive committee, together with those officers above-named.

The Junior Woman's club, with Mrs. Allen Drake as chairman, will have charge of publicity.

The drive in Farmville will begin Monday, June 14, and continue until June 30. The quota assigned the community is $1000.

Attending the meeting Thursday night and the organizations they represented are: Mrs. Mabrey Pollard, Presbyterian auxiliary; Mrs. LeRoy Rollins, American Legion auxiliary; Miss Elizabeth Davis, Literary club; Miss DeVisconti, Women's club; Mrs. E. R. Clegg and Mrs. B. O. Turnage, Methodist Women's Society of Christian Service; Mrs. E. C. Copenhaver, Episcopal auxiliary; Charles Quiner, Boy Scouts; Mrs. Garner and Mrs. Robert Fields, Jr., Junior Woman's club.

At The Rotary Club

The speaker at the Rotary meeting Tuesday night was Sam D. Bundy, principal of the Farmville school. He gave a brief history of the school, showing how it had grown from a wooden structure to a well equipped group of brick buildings, and how the school term had gradually been increased until it is now a nine months' term. It is interesting to note that all men who have served as head of the school have advanced to higher positions—that is, those who remained in the profession.

The school was accredited for several years about a decade ago, but lost its standing. Today it is on the North Carolina and the Southern accredited lists. Twenty-five teachers were members of the faculty during the past year, with a record of only two per cent absenteeism. Six hundred and eighty-five pupils were enrolled last year. An enrollment of 742 is expected for the 1948-49 term.

The cost of transportation is approximately nine cents per mile. The children come in on five school buses, and two from Fountain. The high school and elementary libraries contain almost 5000 volumes. Twenty magazines are received in the high school library.

The home economics cottage and the vocational agriculture building serve 120 girls and boys. The lunch room served lunches at 20 cents per plate. Five helpers and a manager were employed.

At present the school property is valued at over a quarter million dollars. The school is financed as follows: Salaries and operation, state; repair and maintenance, county; new buildings, local. The vocational teachers are paid jointly from Federal, state and county funds; the commercial teacher by pupils' fees.

Last year activities included football, basketball and publication of a newspaper and an annual, clubs, and radio programs. During the year a wire recorder, a projector, and a music room, containing a piano, three radios, two record players and four albums of records, were acquired.

The Parent-Teacher Association, with Mrs. B. T. Williams as president, went forward during the year. There were 682 members of the organization. To make the school a success and a dynamic force in the life of the community requires the continued interest of all.

Paul Ewell was in charge of the program. The attendance prize was won by Marvin Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Palmer and Miss Willie Ray Harper are visiting relatives in Durham.

Activities Of Local Church Organizations

Christian

The officers for the next two years were installed at the women's Council meeting of the Christian Church, which was held in the church basement on Monday afternoon at 8:30. Mrs. Lloyd Smith had charge of this most impressive service. As each new officer was charged with and accepted the duties of her office, she lighted her candle from a central candle, which symbolized the light of Jesus to the world, and in turn lighted another candle to signify she would do her best to extend her light, through her service to the organization and the church, to all parts of the world.

The following officers were installed: President, Mrs. Howard Moyer; vice-president, Mrs. Clarence Moyer; secretary, Mrs. R. V. Fiser; treasurer, Mrs. J. O. Pollard; literature chairman, Mrs. Z. B. T. Cox; world call secretary, Mrs. T. E. Miselle; and group leaders, Mrs. C. A. Lilley, Mrs. Ted Albritton, Mrs. Arch Flanagan and Mrs. Archie Cayton.

The program for the afternoon was presented by Group 4. The devotional theme, "Upon Original Ground," was developed by Mrs. Cayton. Mrs. James Moore reviewed "Great Causes Make Great Men," giving special attention to the life of Archibald McLean.

During the social hour which followed, Group 2 served delicious lime frappe and cookies.

Methodist

Highlight of the meeting held in the church Monday was the presentation of a life membership in the N. C. Conference, Woman's Society of Christian Service, to Mrs. T. W. Lang. This honor, chosen as an appropriate Mother's Day remembrance by her daughters, Miss Elizabeth Lang and Mrs. Allen Dardesh, because of her loyalty and constant interest in the W. S. C. S., formerly known as the Woman's Missionary Society, represents a substantial gift to missions. During her 40 years of untiring service in the society, Mrs. Lang has served as secretary, president and treasurer. She has served continually as treasurer since 1939. The life membership pin was presented by the president, Mrs. R. D. Harris.

The program for the afternoon was given by Miss Bette Joyner and Mrs. Curtis Flanagan, representing the Wesleyan Guild. Miss Joyner, who is also a member of the society and serves as secretary of spiritual life, gave a devotional, assisted by Miss Jane Kittrell, who sang an appropriate selection. She was accompanied by Mrs. Haywood Smith. The regular program topic, "The Christian, Alcohol, and Public Health," was developed by Mrs. Flanagan.

Plans for Farmville's part in the American overseas aid and United Nations appeal for children were presented and members there were asked to give generously during the campaign here in the latter part of June. Co-operating with other local churches, the society decided to make a donation to the American Bible Society and to ask other groups within the Methodist church to participate, also.

For supply work this quarter, the N. C. Conference, W. S. C. S., is asking that new materials suitable for clothing be sent to the Philippines. Mrs. E. C. Carr, secretary of supplies, will have charge of the project for the local society and members are asked to contribute individually.

A tentative date, June 21, was announced for the regular quarterly meeting of the Executive board.

Baptist

The Annie Perkins circle met at the church on Monday night at eight o'clock. Mrs. Dewey Nichols and Mrs. Tom Harris were hostesses to the group. The devotional, given by Mrs. John T. Walston, was taken from Matthew.

Taking part on the program, "World Wide Missions" were Mrs. Robert Fields, Mrs. Blair Whelless, Mrs. A. J. Melton and Miss Elvira Tyson. "Jesus Shall Reign" theme song for the year, was sung by the group. Miss Annie Perkins gave a report on the amount and allocation for the Heck Jones Memorial Fund. Mrs. Melton talked on community missions. Eighteen members were present.

The hostesses served chicken salad sandwiches, toll house cookies and coca colas.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Baptist church met with Mrs. B. M. Lewis in her home on Monday afternoon. The meeting opened with the singing of "Work for the Night is Coming." In the absence of the president, Mrs. A. B. Moore presided.

During the business session Miss Annie Perkins talked on the Heck Jones Memorial Fund. "World-Work Workers" was the title of the devotional, given by Mrs. Manly Liles. The scripture was taken from Matthew 28:16-20.

Rev. E. W. Holmes gave the first part of the program, using the sub-

COMMUNITY MOURNS PASSING OF A. C. MONK, STRICKEN FRIDAY AT HOT SPRINGS; DIED SUNDAY

Albert Coy Monk, Sr., 72, prominent Farmville tobaccoist whose life story reads like an Horatio Alger book in which the principal character achieves wealth and influence through personal integrity, industry and by observing the fundamental virtues of life, passed away Sunday morning at Hot Springs, Ark.

The death of Mr. Monk, who apparently was in good health three weeks ago when he and Mrs. Monk went to the famous center for a rest, came as a distinct shock to the tobacco world in general and to Farmville in particular, the community whose hearts held him in genuine affection and esteem. He was 72 years of age but the rank and file generally considered him several years less than three score and ten.

Mr. Monk was stricken with the fatal attack Friday after he and his wife had retired for the night. Upon receipt of news from Mr. Monk that their father was ill and confined to a hospital, two of the Monk's three sons, Robert P. and William, left for Hot Springs. Since only one reservation was available between Memphis, Tenn., and Little Rock, Ark., Robert proceeded from Memphis alone and arrived at his father's bedside 15 minutes before Mr. Monk passed away at 8:40. The third son, A. C. Jr., was en route to Raleigh to board a plane and join his parents and brothers when news was received of the death.

In addition to his wife, the former Emily Lou Turnage, and the three sons, all of whom reside in Farmville, Mr. Monk is survived by four grandchildren and three sisters, Mrs. Annie H. Rigbee of Farmville, Mrs. R. G. Horner of Durham and Mrs. John D. Gates of Richmond, Va.

Born in Durham county on January 2, 1876, Mr. Monk was the son of the late William H. and Emma Lyle Cox Monk. His career in Farmville and Pitt county was launched as a tobacco buyer in 1903, the year the Farmville tobacco market was established, and he bought the first pile of tobacco sold on the local market.

He was founder and president of A. C. Monk and Company, Inc., one of the largest independent tobacco dealers and exporters of the Bright Leaf belt, and was the active president until his death. He was also president of the Bank of Farmville and an officer and director of other business concerns. His position as a pioneer in the tobacco world gave him wide acquaintance in this and foreign countries, to which he had frequently traveled.

Mr. Monk looked upon his material gains as having been entrusted to him by a Divine Providence and he used them accordingly. He was an ardent Methodist but his gifts knew no denominational lines. It was through him that the prayers of many persons seeking financial assistance for worthwhile causes were answered.

Mr. Monk, among other gifts, contributed the site and funds for the erection of the Daughter of the American Revolution chapterhouse here, the only one in North Carolina and one of three in the South. He also has contributed to the Farmville Public Library. He was an active participant in the various campaigns connected with relief during both World Wars.

Mrs. Monk and the two sons accompanied the remains from Hot Springs and were met in Raleigh early Tuesday morning.

Funeral services were conducted from the home Wednesday afternoon. Officiating was Rev. E. R. Clegg, pastor of the Farmville Methodist church, with which Mr. Monk became united in 1905 and of which he had been a member of the Board of Stewards for more than 40 years, and serving as chairman of the Board of Trustees at the time of his death. Assisting Rev. Clegg were Rev. T. M. Grant, pastor of the First Methodist church of Rocky Mount and a former presiding elder who was an unusually close friend of Mr. Monk, and Rev. E. S. Coates, pastor of the Farmville Presbyterian church. Rev. Clegg opened the service by reading two of Mr. Monk's favorite Psalms, the 23rd and the 121st. Rev. Coates read from John 14 and from Revelation.

Rev. Grant paid a beautiful tribute to Mr. Monk, parts of which follow: "In the midst of death there is victory. The Man of God came with a message to man and yet for over 2000 years man, through his own interpretation of life, has lost the simplicity and glory of what the Man of God undertook to do. The Crusade in White lived in modesty, simplicity and clarity. He came to bring life and believed the secret which animated and controlled His life opens to the abundant life for all. He revealed that God is good. He is understanding; God is a Father—and through Him we can calmly, modestly and reverently say—in the midst of death there is victory.

Active pallbearers were G. E. Beckman, Jr., R. V. Flear, R. D. Harris, Lath Morris, T. S. Ryan, F. W. Satterthwaite and H. L. Whitstead. Interment was in Forest Hills cemetery, beneath scores of handsome floral offerings which bore the final tribute to the man whose memory will be known, loved and respected for years to come.

SPECIAL MUSIC FEATURES MEMORIAL DAY SERVICE

Tribute to those who lost their lives during or from effects of World Wars I and II was paid at Memorial Day exercises Sunday evening in the Baptist church by the congregation standing in a moment of silent prayer.

Rev. E. R. Clegg, Methodist minister, was the speaker at the fifth Sunday service sponsored by the Farmville Ministerial association and used as his topic, "The Why and How of Memorials."

Special music consisted of an anthem, "A Song of Peace," Sibellus, by the Baptist choir and a solo, "My Buddy," Kahn, sung by Arthur Joyner, Jr. The congregation joined in singing three hymns, "God of Our Fathers," "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and "God Bless Our Native Land."

The invocation was given by Rev. Z. B. T. Cox and Rev. E. W. Holmes read the scripture and offered a closing prayer.

TO ATTEND BOYS STATE

Donald Batcom and James Murphy will attend Boys' State to be held at the University of North Carolina the week of June 14. The two, sponsored by the local American Legion Post, will leave for Chapel Hill Sunday.

death there is victory.

"Mr. Monk believed as the Comrade in White that one must have a philosophy to find the abundant life and his living was under the idea that God is not far away; God is not distant; God is real, and reaches down into the intimacies of man's life and helps in meeting the emergencies of everyday. He found that in communion with God there is that which turns one friendly, graciously and understandingly towards one's fellowman. As the Comrade in White loved His fellowmen so did our friend, whose passing we mourn today, love men.

"He believed in the home. It has been my pleasure to visit with him on a number of occasions and to know he brought the good and beautiful in to his abode and that peace, happiness and wholesomeness were there.

"He believed in the Church—the power of the Church, the opportunity it offered for worship and a privilege to find God; that it was a place to go to meet friends and to do good and, through his little deeds of life is revealed a consciousness of how God values such.

"God trusted him and he discharged this trust honestly and generously. He was generous to his Church; benevolent to causes for betterment of world; forgot not the orphans and people in need. His was a divine trust discharged faithfully and unselfishly. We are glad he came and dwell among us and left us with a challenge of faith and a fine wholesome memory.

"With profound reverence we say, in the midst of death there is victory."

A quartet composed of Mrs. and Mrs. Elbert C. Holmes, Mrs. Alton Bobbitt and John Dwight Holmes rendered music for the rites. At the home they sang an anthem, "Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled," and "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand," "Servant of God," "Now the Day is Over," "Lead Kindly Light," "It Is Well with My Soul," and "How Firm a Foundation." Elbert Holmes rendered a solo, "Sunrise Tomorrow."

The length of the musical program, longer than had been planned, was necessitated because the floral offerings were so numerous more time was required to carry them from the home than had been anticipated.

At the graveside they sang, "Crossing the Bar." Active pallbearers were G. E. Beckman, Jr., R. V. Flear, R. D. Harris, Lath Morris, T. S. Ryan, F. W. Satterthwaite and H. L. Whitstead. Interment was in Forest Hills cemetery, beneath scores of handsome floral offerings which bore the final tribute to the man whose memory will be known, loved and respected for years to come.
