Sales Near 24-Million Figure As Farmville Brings Curtain On Another Successful Season

Farmville tobacco market closed Wednesday, November 10, with a season much better than had been dreamed of when the auctioneer's chant opened sales less than three months ago.

At the beginning of the season, there were doubts and speculations on the amount of tobacco that would be sold here this year. Acreage had been cut 28 per cent. Unfavorable weather during the early growing stages caused additional losses and spread gloom among those interested in the growth and development of the market. There were predictions that the total sales would be between 20 and 22 million pounds. A few were brave enough to go to 23 millions, but many would have been willing to settle for two-thirds of the 1947 figure of 31 million pounds.

Final figures give the Farmville market 23,985,176 pounds, selling for $11,625,703.46. Therefore, the local market maintains its reputation for being the steadiest market in the state.

The first two weeks of the season were medium heavy in sales. Afterwards, the sales volume and average mounted and reached a peak in October, attaining a peak of $57 per hundred. The first two weeks in October were the best of the season.

Success of the market this year is a tribute to the warehousemen and resulted from the wholehearted cooperation given the market by local business people and citizens.

Tobacco, this year in Pitt county, did not have the quality that it was noted for in previous seasons. As everyone knows, Pitt county suffered one of its worst growing seasons this summer. It will be reflected in the official averages.

A survey was made by the sales supervisor of the many farmers who brought their tobacco crop to Farmville market and in nearly all instances found they were well satisfied with the price they received for their tobacco and were pleased with the efficient manner in which it was handled and sold by the warehousemen.

The Farmville market drew a large number of customers from as far away as 120 miles, thus increasing its drawing area by several miles this year.

The Farmville Advertising service sponsored two radio programs, advertised in a local and state newspaper, mailed 5,000 almanacs, distributed several hundred Farmville automobile tag advertisements, gave away pencils, farmers record books, and painted six new signs on highways approaching Farmville. Therefore, many farmers came here for the first time this year. They were satisfied with the market and left with promises that they will be here again in 1949.

Some Pitt county farmers who had not been seen on the local market for several years were back, supporting it.

The Farmville Advertising service, along with merchants and warehouses, have felt that the advertising campaign was a success. Therefore, the advertising will be increased next year.

The sales supervisor, Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, as well as the Tobacco Board of Trade, thank all who had a part in making the 1948 season a successful one.

REV. TYSON TO HOLD REVIVAL AT WESLEY

Reverend M. E. (Jack) Tyson of Carrboro will be the preacher for the revival at Wesley Community church, beginning Monday night, Nov. 15, and continuing through the week.

The public is cordially invited to attend. The church is the new white brick building located one mile from Joyner's Crossroad on the paved road to Bell Arthur.

New Golf Pro Takes Charge Local Course And Country Club

Albert Boaze, assistant golf professional at Greensboro Country club for three years, arrives today to take charge of the Farmville Country club and golf course.

A native of Greensboro, Mr. Boaze has been in the golfing business since he was 14 years old. For four years, he was connected with the Starmount club in Greensboro.

M. V. Jones, president of Farmville country club, considers the town extremely fortunate in securing the services of the young golfer, who will bring his wife and young daughter here as soon as living quarters are available.

Mr. Boaze has been very popular in Greensboro. Women golfers at the club presented him with an electric clock as an expression of their appreciation of his work.

Duke Professor Addresses Rotary Banquet Group

Annual Ladies' Night, Held Tuesday, Is Top Rotary Social Event Of Year

The traditional spirit of gaiety and warm fellowship, which characterizes the annual Rotary Ladies' Night, prevailed as usual at the banquet, Tuesday evening, when the graded school faculty of 30 members shared honors with Rotary Anns.

The affair was held in the school dining room with tables arranged as spokes in a huge wheel, signifying the Rotary International emblem. The Rotary colors of blue and gold were effectively carried in the table spreads of gold crepe paper with a blue center runner and in the tapers illuminating the scene. The harvest season was suggested in the cornucopia of fruit decorating the wheel's hub table. Covers were laid for 125 and places were marked by autumn leaf cards and boxes of handkerchiefs, which served as favors for the ladies.

The reception committee, headed by Mr. and Mrs. R. LeRoy Rollins, greeted guests as they arrived and directed them to one of the class rooms where tomato cocktail and hors d'oeuvres were served from a beautifully appointed table.

A turkey plate and a dessert course were served by Mrs. L. E. Flowers and her assistants in their usual efficient manner.

The invocation was offered by the Rev. Edwin S. Coates. The president, Curtis Flanagan, spoke briefly, following the dinner and turned the program over to Dr. Chas. E. Fitzgerald, toastmaster of the occasion.

Rotarian Walter B. Jones extended a cordial welcome in rhyme, to which Miss Miriam Moore, of the faculty, responded in original verse also. Rotary Anns were presented by their husbands and the faculty members by the principal, Sam D. Bundy. Miss Annie Perkins, a veteran primary teacher in the school, was presented with other special guests and received a round of applause.

Dr. Robert S. Rankin, of Duke University, was speaker of the occasion and delighted the group with witticisms regarding the recent presidential election, with information relating to election machinery and comments on the good natured way in which the American people accept the victory or defeat of their candidates.

Dr. Rankin gave labor and tillers of the soil credit for President Harry S. Truman's recent re-election, which took the country by storm and surprise, and closed with the statement, "It is the people who make the country great."

The speaker was presented by Irvin Morgan, Jr., a former class student of the professor, as two men: Dr. Robert S. Rankin, A. B., M. A., Ph. D., Professor of Economics 61 and occupant of the chair of the Department of Political Science at Duke University, and as "Bob" Rankin of Greenville, Tenn., the immediate past president of the Durham Rotary club and a jolly, good fellow.

A musical program was presented by Miss Alma Whitley, public school music director, and by N. C. Maerhout, band instructor, who accompanied the soloist and played a medley of favorite popular piano numbers. Mrs. M. V. Jones played selections while the guests were assembling and accompanied the group in the opening and closing songs, which were announced by Ed Nash Warren.

Paul Ewell, in charge of the banquet arrangements, was assisted by the following chairmen and their committees: LeRoy Rollins, reception; Joe Joyner, program; John B. Lewis, entertainment; Ed Nash Warren, decorations; Joe Rasberry, food; Jesse Moye, clean up.

PROGRAM POSTPONED

The program, "A Search in Vain," scheduled to be presented Sunday at Pentecostal Holiness church, has been postponed indefinitely due to unforeseen circumstances. A later date will be announced.

GEN. TURNAGE VISITS HERE

General Hal Turnage returned to his home at Widewater, Va., Friday after spending a few days with his mother, Mrs. W. J. Turnage. He was guest speaker at the Greenville American Legion's Armistice Day exercises yesterday.

ATTEND CONCERT

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Lang, Miss Agnes Quinsey, Mr. and Mrs. Bernice Turnage, Misses Seleta Tucker, and Janet Stansell, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Allen, Rev. and Mrs. E. S. Coates, Rev. and Mrs. Z. B. T. Cox, Robert Rollins, Bob Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Johnson and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Davis, Miss Mamie Davis, Mrs. J. B. Hockaday and Mr. and Mrs. W. Jesse Moye were among those attending the Christopher Lynch concert in Greenville Friday night.

Rev. Clegg Leaving

Rev. E. R. Clegg, the kind of preacher you'd like to have on a fishing trip, leaves Saturday to take over his new Methodist pastorate in Siler City. He and Mrs. Clegg will be sorely missed by the community.

Rev. H. L. Davis of Littleton has been appointed to take over the Farmville charge. Rev. Davis will preach his first sermon here Sunday morning.

Mr. Clegg asks The Enterprise to express his regrets at leaving.

Leo Norville, Successful Illinois Lawyer, Says I Got The Breaks

Leo Tilman Norville, an outstanding Chicago lawyer who is given a formidable listing in "Who's Who in Chicago and Illinois," and whose list of clients reads like a directory of big corporations, modestly attributes his success to hard work and good luck. Some people, says the Pitt county native whose wife and their three children returned to Chicago this week after visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Norville, are capable and are good workers, but never get the right breaks. He says he did.

Now a member of the firm of Norville and Dent, which maintains offices at 105 W. Adams street, Chicago, and a branch in Washington, D. C., Mr. Norville was born in Fountain and attended school in Farmville until he was in the eighth grade.

His success story began in 1932 when he graduated from the University of Michigan where he had been a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the nation's highest scholastic fraternity. Jobs were hard to find during the depression, but he was fortunate enough to obtain work in the trust department of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company of Chicago. Finding that most of his assignments called more for a knowledge of figures than law, he knew that to advance he must know accounting.

For two years he took courses in accountancy at the Northwestern University night school. February 1, 1933, he began work for the law firm of Hopkins, Starr and Godman. Mr. Starr died before Mr. Norville joined the firm and by 1938 the other two partners had passed on. Mr. Norville and several men who had been associated with the firm decided to form a new firm which they called Dickinson, Sprawl, Norville and James. It was merged with the partnership of Bowden and Taylor in 1944 and acquired the name Bowden, Taylor, Norville and Sprawl.

Two years ago Mr. Norville went into partnership with a Missourian, Louis Dent.

At no time has he been associated with a firm which dealt with criminal cases. Securities and corporation work, which he handles, are a routine sort of thing, but assure a steady income. Each corporation or company pays a fixed sum each year for the firm to handle its legal work.

Seldom, if ever, does that type of law practice make the newspaper headlines.

Much of the work is composed of Federal taxation, corporate finances, stock and bond issues, registering these issues with the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Interstate Commerce commission and qualifying securities under laws of various states in which they are to be sold.

Among the companies and corporations which this law firm represents as counsel are: Central Scientific company, Chicago; Cenco Corporation of New York; Crucible Steel Foundries, Milwaukee; Kropp Forge company, Chicago; Consolidated Industries of Lafayette, Ind.; Bendix Home Appliances, South Bend, Ind.; Majestic Radio and Television corporation, Elgin, Ill.; Edward Valve company, East Chicago, Ind.; Gearheart and company, New York bankers; South Carolina Timber Owners, Chicago.

For Central, Cenco, Crucible, Kropp and Majestic, Mr. Norville is not only general counsel, but also secretary and or a member of the boards of directors. Bendix, he explained, employs several attorneys and has his firm as its Chicago counsel. Dent and Norville are the sole representatives of all except Bendix.

"One of the most interesting cases has been in protecting the interests of the South Carolina Timber Owners, a group of men who own several thousand acres of woods. Senator Maybank of South Carolina has introduced several times a bill, which once passed the Senate, appropriating Federal funds to build dams and widen three rivers between Charleston and Columbia to make a navigable stream between the two cities. It would have meant the flooding of valuable timber lands from which the timber men will secure timber for use in manufacturing for the next hundred years. The timber men, of course, were not interested in what the government would pay them for the privilege of flooding the land. Mr. Norville and his associates were successful in proving that already South Carolina has more water power than is used for manufacturing and that there was no need for a navigable river between the capital and the seaport since there are good railway and highway connections.

A 14-million dollar suit which the Chicago office of the Reconstruction Finance corporation brought against stockholders of the Central Republic bank of Chicago was the largest case Mr. Norville has handled. In the outcome a judgment against the stockholders was secured and 10 million dollars were collected.

Financing for the Higgins Boat company of New Orleans was one of the firm's war jobs. Ten million dollars were raised.

Mr. Norville finds that during time of war there are fewer suits and similar types of litigation, due to the fact that most all companies are prosperous. Additional laws controlling taxes create more legal work.

Some of the clubs to which the lawyer belongs are the Chicago Athletic, South Shore Country and Forty club, all of Chicago; the Chickaming Country club, Lakeside, Mich.; the British club and the Saints and Sinners club in New York City.

In the Martindale-Hubbell directory, which is to lawyers what Dun and Bradstreet's directory is to businessmen, the firm is given a rating of AV, the highest obtainable. A is for the legal standing and V for the credit rating.

The Norvilles reside at 2363 East Seventieth street in the South Shore section overlooking Lake Michigan. They are about 10 miles from downtown. In the summer, they live at their cottage, Norvilla, on the Michigan side of the lake. Their cottage is perched on a sand dune, which towers about 80 feet over the water. Sand dunes near the lake are unlike those found on Carolina shores. They are covered with woods and other vegetation.

For hobbies, Mr. Norville reads the classics and he also terms work as a pastime. Although he is a member of two country clubs, he seldom plays golf unless a client wishes to.

Asked what Chicago thought of the Truman victory, he expressed a belief that Chicago was surprised and the Republicans disappointed. Chicago Republicans were not for Dewey in the convention—they wanted Taft—so their disappointment was not as great as it would have been had Taft been the defeated candidate.

In 1935, the barrister married Miss Marion O'Boyle. They have three children, Nancy, 9, Diane, 6, and the favorite of the whole family, Leo Tilman, Jr., called Timmy, who is about eight months old. Monday, the girls visited the warehouses and watched the last of the season's tobacco being sold. They found some leaves to carry home with them and probably took along some cotton after their visit to the cotton patch Tuesday.

The Norvilles moved to the farm where Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Lee now reside, when Leo was nine years old. Later they came to Farmville to make their home. Leo went to Atlantic Christian college high school for one semester, after leaving the eighth grade here. He finished his high schooling at Oak Ridge Military academy, where he was a member of the debating team and president of the Philomathean Literary society.

His senior year he received the scholarship medal for having the highest average of any one in the school and was president of his class. At Oak Ridge, he decided that if he ever did go to college he would study law.

Drifting to Michigan, he worked as a traveling salesman for several years with Detroit as headquarters. One or two friends he made in Ann Arbor had shown him the campus of the University of Michigan and he liked the friendliness of the people in the town. This factor, along with the low tuition fees for Michigan residents entering the school (it was $90 then) and the high standing of the university law school and the idea that he would like to take both the A. B. and law degrees at the same school made Leo decide to

FARMVILLE'S NEW LIGHTED ATHLETIC FIELD WILL BE DEDICATED TONIGHT WITH FOOTBALL GAME BETWEEN FAISON AND LOCALS

UNITED JEWISH APPEAL

Jack Freedman has again been named as local chairman of the fund raising campaign for United Jewish Appeal, beginning November 12 and continuing until Thanksgiving.

The following explains the work and goal of the campaign:

This is the month for being thankful and somehow we can't help associating the significance of Palestine with that of Plymouth Rock where the Pilgrims landed. To both came the homeless people seeking liberty and refuge from oppression. At Plymouth Rock as in Palestine the wanderers dedicated themselves to plant their ideals in the new land and to be diligent that they grow and flourish. The bitter struggle of the early years around Plymouth Rock is repeated in another version in the new land of Israel.

Israel is now able to absorb 100,000 of these Pilgrims from displaced persons camps each year. The money raised in the campaign will be used to rehabilitate these people to become useful once more in the eyes of man and God.

BALLARDS CLUB HAS OLDEST DELEGATE AT ACHIEVEMENT DAY IN GREENVILLE

More than 30 members of Home Demonstration clubs in this community assembled in Greenville Friday for the annual Achievement Day program at which a native of the Netherlands spoke.

Mrs. Josie McArthur, who is more than 80 years old and the oldest member of the Ballards club, received a prize for being the oldest person present. A member of the Fountain club won the award for the youngest person present.

Attending from the clubs were: Ballards—Mrs. J. F. Tyson, who gave the devotional, Mrs. J. R. Gowans, Mrs. C. L. Jones, Mrs. Howard Ayle, Mrs. G. S. Nichols, Mrs. Lloyd Allen, Mrs. G. James Moore, Mrs. Letha Edwards, Mrs. J. D. Jones, Mrs. James R. Jones, Mrs. Jasper R. Jones, Mrs. L. R. Jones, Mrs. E. W. Mills, Mrs. McArthur and Mrs. A. J. Garris; Farmville—Mrs. J. R. Corey, Mrs. Coley, Mrs. Bob Hinson; Seven Pines—Mrs. Clifton Ellis, Mrs. Farrell Morgan, Mrs. Jasper Morgan, Mrs. Ichabod Allen, Mrs. Roy Jones, Mrs. Russell Meeks, Mrs. W. L. Clark and Mrs. Lester Cobb.

YOUTH DAY OBSERVANCE

To inform others about youth work in the Southern Presbyterian church, several members of the Farmville Presbyterian Youth fellowship will present a Youth Day program at the Presbyterian Sunday School Sunday morning.

An offering to carry on the work of caversans in the synod and general expenses in the presbytery will be received.

TURKEY SUPPER

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of Maury Methodist church is sponsoring a turkey supper and harvest sale Friday, Nov. 12, beginning at 5:30, in the school lunchroom.

Plates are $1 for adults, 50c for children. Pie and coffee are included in the menu.

BUNDY'S SPEAKING SCHEDULE

Sam D. Bundy was guest speaker at the Fountain Ruritan Ladies' night on Wednesday of this week.

On Thursday night he was guest speaker at the Scottish Rite Ladies' night party at the Virginia Dare hotel in Elizabeth City.

WALSTONBURG LEGION MEETS TONIGHT

Tonight at 7:30 the Walstonburg American Legion and Legion auxiliary will hold their meetings at the school building. Preceding the meetings, members will eat at the bazaar which the Howell Swamp Missionary society is having in the school lunchroom.

enter the school in 1927. When he matriculated as a freshman that summer he made the highest score on the entrance examinations of any of the incoming students. Delta Sigma Rho (forensic) and Delta Theta Phi (law) were the fraternities to which he was admitted. During his senior year in the undergraduate school, which was also his first year in law school, he was initiated into Phi Beta Kappa. By going to summer school and getting his literary degree the same year he was a first year law student, he finished in five years.

Activities Of Local Church Organizations

Christian
Mrs. Howard Moye presided at the Woman's council in the church Monday afternoon, announcing the opening hymn, "Lead on, O King Eternal." Prayer was offered.

Clothing for the Hazel Greene Academy in Kentucky, the fall project of the four groups of the council, was brought to the meeting and will be packed and shipped this week.

Members were reminded of the convention in New Bern, Wednesday through Friday of this week. Mrs. Lloyd Smith and Mrs. Clarence Moye brought echoes of the training class held in Wilson last month.

Mrs. Jame Moore introduced the main part of the program by listing some of the problems in the frontiers of Alaska, Panama and Hawaii. Gayle Flanagan spoke about the problems in the Virgin Islands and Carol Pippin discussed those in Puerto Rico.

Ann Bynum concluded the program with the devotional based on the year's theme, "The Lord God Is My Strength."

Group 3 was hostess for the social hour and served tea, sandwiches, cookies and pickles.

Episcopal
Setting a tentative date for the annual church supper, voting to meet jointly with the Christian, Methodist and Presbyterian women's organizations to study the home mission book and hearing a report from Mrs. R. C. Copenhaver on World Community day were some of the things the Episcopal auxiliary did in its Monday afternoon session. Mrs. T. S. Ryan was hostess and Mrs. Copenhaver presided, opening with scripture and prayer.

The amount collected for the United Thank offering, Mrs. J. H. Darden reported, was $30.50.

Mrs. John D. Dixon, supply secretary, gave the amount needed for that work during the year.

A continuation of the study of "The Way of the Witness" was made, with Mrs. C. H. Joyner presenting the chapter titled, "First Impressions of a Pagan."

Prayer closed the meeting.

Ice cream tarts and salted nuts were served by the hostess.

Presbyterian
Several appeals for various causes were made at Circle 2 which met in the home of Mrs. J. I. Morgan with Miss Edna Robinson and Mrs. J. T. Nolen as hostesses Monday evening.

Mrs. I. D. Kirklin, assisted by Mrs. William Easley, presented the Friends of the Seminary call. Mrs. E. S. Coates asked that clothing and linens for a missionary family delayed in returning to the foreign field be taken to Mrs. Frank Dupree, Jr., or Mrs. M. E. Follard.

The program, led by Mrs. Glenn Newton, portrayed the financial condition of the orphans home at Barium Springs; she urged that special consideration be given to the amount of the Thanksgiving offering for the home. Mrs. Newton also described the high school girl, whom the auxiliary clothes.

The business session was presided over by Mrs. C. L. Gilchrist, who announced that Mrs. John B. Lewis would be the December hostess.

For the devotional study, "The Four Gospels," which is a part of the theme, "Fifty Framed Together," Mrs. Easley compared the study up to that point to rooms opening off a corridor. Each month's study in the Old Testament had the members to another room on one side of the corridor. The particular group to whom each gospel was written was discussed, as well as how the books apply to certain situations today.

Mrs. C. F. Baucum, spiritual life leader, named the things for which special prayer emphasis was being placed in November, one of them being church attendance.

Mrs. Easley opened and closed her study with prayer and Mrs. Coates said the closing prayer.

The hostesses served cookies, salted pecans, colored potato chips, cereal candy and hot chocolate.

There were 23 present, including five visitors.

Baptist
Mrs. Robert Joyner and Miss Annie Perkins were hostesses to the Annie Perkins circle in the home of the former, Monday evening, with Miss Perkins presiding.

The program was developed by Mrs. C. H. Outland and Mrs. A. B. Tyson had the devotional. Prayer was led by Mrs. Joseph Batchelor and there was an opening song.

Farmville's new lighted athletic park will be dedicated tonight at 8 o'clock with a football game between Farmville and Faison.

The new field will furnish the town with facilities that have long been needed and will make it possible for a well-balanced recreational program including softball and baseball games during the summer months.

Arrangements have been made to play under the lights here again on Friday night of next week. Oak City will play Farmville.

Coach Elbert Moye's Red Devils bounced back into the win column last Friday afternoon with a 7-0 victory over South Edgecombe.

The game was a scoreless deadlock until the last quarter, when Farmville went to work and scored the only points of the game. Farmville, up to that point, had moved the ball up and down the field with little trouble but had always failed to cross the goal line.

Farmville scored on a 50-yard drive led by Harry Albritton and Frank Dupree, backs, and Jay Flanagan, Bobby Fulford and James Fountain, linemen. Dupree went over tackle from the two-yard line to climax the rally. Wilbur Bennett passed to Carl King for the score.

South Edgecombe gained ground readily in the first half but was completely halted in the second.

Line play for Farmville was paced by George Wooten, Bobby Fulford, Jay Flanagan, Albert Cannon, Wilbur Morris and Carl King. Morris blocked a punt in the last quarter.

Harry Albritton and Frank Dupree were the best running backs, while Bennett passed well and Clarence Joyner and Ernest Morgan did nice defense work.

At The Kiwanis Club

Farmville Kiwanians Monday night laughed until their sides ached at the program presented by Mrs. B. L. Tyson of Greenville, route 1, who is good enough to be a professional entertainer. Mrs. Tyson directed singing, played the piano and accordion, and gave a reading. She, her husband and Miss Tripp were the guests of Billy Smith, who had charge of the program.

Next Monday night Dr. O. K. Cornwell, director of physical education at the University of North Carolina, will appear on the program and will present moving pictures of several football games. Dr. Cornwell will be the guest of Charles Quinsey.

Hubert Joyner has been elected as vice president and will succeed John Parker on January 1.

Jack Lewis had as his guests R. T. Norville and his son, Leo, Chicago attorney.

President Louis Williams expressed the club's regrets at losing Rev. E. R. Clegg, who leaves this week to assume his new pastorate in Siler City.

were packed. Mrs. A. J. Melton read the report of the nominating committee for the missionary society and announced that Mrs. Batchelor would be circle leader for the new year.

A chicken salad plate was served to the 17 present.

Mrs. J. R. Shearin and Mrs. H. D. Johnson were guests.

Baptist
Y. W. A. members packed their towel for World Community day dedication at their meeting last Thursday night and appointed Mrs. Herbert Moore to take it to the service. Names were drawn for a Christmas gift exchange and it was voted to entertain next Y. W. A. members in January with a supper.

The assistant adviser, Mrs. George Davis, was in charge of the devotional, reading from Malachi, Mark and Matthew.

Miss Myrtle Nichols, who presided, opened with the watchword.

The hostess, Mrs. H. D. Johnson, served refreshments.

Baptist
The slate of officers presented by the nominating committee was accepted Monday afternoon by the Woman's Missionary society at its meeting in the church.

January 1, Mrs. H. D. Johnson will succeed Mrs. J. R. Shearin as president. Others named were: Mrs. George W. Davis, first vice president; Mrs. E. C. Holmes, second vice president; Mrs. Lang Davis, secretary; Mrs. C. H. Outland, young people's director.

Assisting Mrs. George Davis in presenting the program was Mrs. S. A. Roebuck. They discussed "One Saviour for Asia and the Islands."

Basing her devotional on Isaiah 45, Mrs. Johnson told of the unsurpassed invitation found in that chapter.

During the business session, Mrs. Cleveland Parker, mission study chairman, reported that 41 attended the study class last week.
