

GREENE TO HAVE 11 VOTING DELEGATES AT FARM BUREAU'S CONVENTION

The State Farm Bureau convention will be held in Asheville, beginning with a vesper service Sunday evening, Feb. 13, and concluding with a program on Wednesday, Feb. 16. A special train will run from Goldsboro to Asheville on Feb. 13, returning on Feb. 17.

Eleven voting delegates, elected to a meeting on January 21, will represent the Greene county unit. Those attending as delegates are: H. B. Hill, Rob Hart, E. A. Rasberry, F. C. Darden, Joe Edmundson, Ralph H. Jones, H. L. Walston, C. T. Hicks, A. C. Edwards, Raymond Gray and Charlie Dawson.

Others desiring to make the trip should call at the county agent's office in Snow Hill as soon as possible to make train and hotel reservations.

Plans are being made for the Coastal Plain Fat Stock Show which will be held in Kinston in April. Any farmer in Greene county may enter fat hogs in the show. They do not have to be purebreds, but must be good type and weigh between 180 and 280 at the time of the show.

Attractive prizes are offered and in the past shows the hogs have sold above the market price for the day.

ECTC WILL HAVE CLINIC FOR PUBLIC SCHOOL MUSIC HEADS

A vocal clinic for teachers and pupils in the public schools of Eastern North Carolina will be sponsored by the department of music at East Carolina Teachers college and will take place on the campus, Saturday, Feb. 12.

A similar clinic was held at the college in November and was attended by 75 students and 19 teachers from 11 schools in this area.

Those attending the clinic will register at 8:45 in the Austin building. A luncheon has been arranged for the noon hour.

BIRD CLUB NOTES

Ten boys, including Bobby Ray Harper, Alex Allen, Aubrey Vandiford and Sam Kittrell, Jr., all new members of the Bird club, enjoyed a picnic lunch in the grove at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Currie in Greene county Saturday morning.

Jesse Bradley read a general description of the cardinal, the state bird. The male is a brilliant red with the front portion of forehead, front part of cheek region, chin and throat being black and forming a conspicuous cap entirely surrounding the bill.

The female is a duller red, giving the appearance of being veiled. Her color is less vivid to protect her from enemies while on the nest. Both have conspicuous crested heads.

The bird typifies everything that is elegant and chivalric and is a fine specimen of bird character. Ever cheerful, active and industrious, the male eagerly cares for the young while the female is sitting on a second laying of eggs. Nothing daunts him in the care of the young.

Airlift Takes Snowfall in Its Stride

Snowfall in Berlin doesn't prevent the Russian-blockaded city from getting its share of food and other needed supplies. Temperatures are crowded with planes, most of them airlift aircraft grounded only temporarily because of low ceilings. The supplies continue to pour in. BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pollard, Jr., announce the birth of a daughter, Susan Palmer, January 28, in Memorial General Hospital, Kinston. Mrs. Pollard is the former Miss Geneva Palmer McCaschert of Linwood.

BIRD CLUB

The members of the Bird Club studied the bob-white at the meeting on Saturday and Gordon Lee was the reader. The call of the bob-white is one of the cheeriest sounds in nature. Nearby, it commands attention; afar, it harmonizes with other sounds of summer, yet never pulls up on the ear. It names the bird. Northerners call him quail; Southerners, partridge; but he has named himself and ornithologists have decided that he is the prior authority. His cry is pleasing, heartening, delightful. Farmers translate it as more wet, saying that it foretells rain.

Perhaps there is no other wild bird to which the American people are more indebted. He delights in the farm; is the friend and companion of man; a destroyer of weeds and pernicious insects. From the standpoint of the greatest good to the greatest number, he is supreme.

The male is very attentive to his mate, he is a good provider, and has been known to assume the entire charge of the brood upon the death of the female, brooding, feeding, and protecting them at all times like the fondest mother.

It thrives on the Southern cow-pens and many other foods which are plentiful. It is quite as important to see that the foods the birds require at different seasons of the year are plentiful, and that they have proper covers and protection, as it is to see that their enemies are controlled. Briars, both berry and flower, the blackberry and the wild rose, make safe and attractive covers and they also furnish much food. The young quails live largely on insects found in the fields and woods. In winter many birds will perish unless food is supplied. A little corn, served with grit, at established feeding places will save hundreds of birds during a severe winter.

Jesse and Edward Bradley were welcomed as new members. Cake and crackers were served.
