State Health Officer Warns Against Over-Exposure To Sun

Precautions against over-heating and excessive sunburn were urged by Dr. J. W. R. Norton, North Carolina State Health officer. "Regardless of what may be the daily weather forecasts," he said, "we have entered the summer season and may expect many excessively hot days from now until fall. Moreover, we have come to the time of the year when many of us engage in pastimes and practices which expose us to the hazards of heat."

"There are a few simple rules the observance of which might spare us much discomfort, perhaps illness and, in some cases, even death," Dr. Norton continued. "At the first sign of becoming overheated, we should stop what we are doing and rest, and if certain symptoms manifest themselves, we should seek not only first aid, but medical assistance, as well. It is even better to avoid reaching the point of feeling that overheating or overexposure to the sun is being experienced."

"It is also well to remember that exposure to the sun's rays may cause burns with serious effects. Serious burns may come from overexposure to the sun. The result is the same, regardless of the inflicting agent. There are three degrees of burns: first, which reddens the skin, without blistering; second, which result in blisters, and third degree burns, which seriously injure, and sometimes destroy, the deeper tissues. Overexposure to the sun may result in burns of any of these three degrees. It is, therefore, best to avoid overexposure and let discretion be a better part of valour. While brunettes can stand more hot sunshine than blonds, it is well for both to avoid the causes of severe skin, perhaps tissue, burns."

Billy Smith First To Bring Television Set To Farmville

Anxious to pave the way for television business to find his store, whether the perfection of video be a few months away or several years, W. T. (Billy) Smith of the Southern Supply company, brought a set to Farmville as an experiment, but the experiment proved so satisfactory that he has already disposed of the set and is preparing to get some others.

Richmond's television station is the one nearest Farmville but it is so far away that Billy and a co-worker, Red Styres, who installed and engineered the set here, had their doubts about the results of their experimentation.

Billy reports that they managed to get the Richmond program better than they had anticipated.

Edwards Triplets Center Of Interest But Don't Know It

Writers of advertising copy and high-pressure promoters were the first to realize that a charming girl is the best "attention compeller" of all. The power of attracting attention is magnified more than three times when triplets are involved.

That Farmville residents are certain this is true is evidenced by the groups which quickly congregate around the carriage of the Edwards triplets—Veronica, Claudia and Rebecca—charming young ladies of only seven months who nonchalantly accept the attention accorded them and apparently are more interested in what their baby sisters are doing than they are in what is going on around their carriage. The triplets, their mother, one brother and an elder sister (Gilbert and Jo Ann), are now visiting Mrs. Edwards' parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Wheelers. Mrs. Edwards, an employee of the Pullman company in Jacksonville, Florida, accompanied his family to North Carolina but has returned to his position. The rest of the Edwards family will be here for two or three weeks.

The problem of raising triplets, the ratio of whose birth is one to 4,000, seems "so big that the mere thought of such a thing staggers the average mother or prospective mother. But Mrs. Edwards, the former Miss Mary Wheelers, and her husband seem to have the procedure down-pat and go about the job as unperturbed as if they had been raising triplets for years. The answer may be that one baby requires all of a mother's time—three can do little more.

Mrs. Edwards' job has been made easier by an efficient nurse, Alice, who was employed several months before the triplets were born. Mrs. Edwards feared that the efficient Alice would give up the job when she found that triplets were expected. Alice, however, has taken the greatest amount of pride in the babies and rules with an iron hand.

How to keep the triplets from becoming "spoiled" looms as a problem. They are charming little girls—just as cute as they can be. If you see an unusually large baby carriage on the street, with an unusually large number of people gathered around it, and three little heads bobbing up and down, you'll know the Edwards triplets are having their outing.

Holidays Drivers Urged To Practice Caution

More than 900,000 motor vehicles are expected to be on the highways of North Carolina sometime during the long Fourth of July week end, the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles estimates.

Pointing out that 10 persons were killed on the highways over the three-day holiday last year and that highway fatalities are on the upgrade this year, the Department offered four suggestions for a safe and sane Fourth:

1. Start that holiday trip a little earlier to avoid temptation to speed.
2. Don't drink and drive.
3. Don't cut in and out of heavy traffic.
4. Exercise caution, common sense and courtesy in driving.

If all drivers will follow these suggestions on the Fourth, they can expect to be alive on the Fifth.

At The Rotary Club

At the Rotary club Tuesday night, Plato Bass had his son, Bob, as his guest and Walter Jones had his son, Walter, as his guest.

Ed Nash Warren, scoutmaster, presented five members of Boy Scout Troop 25 who gave a very interesting program. The boys were: Jess Spencer, Wilbur Rollins, Eddie Bass, Harold Flanagan and Bert Warren. The boys told of their experiences at Camp Charles, near Bailey. They gave in detail how the camp was operated and their studies each day. They stated that there were plenty of red bugs around. They sang songs which were enjoyed by all present.

John Lewis gave a short talk to the club and delivered troop charter to Curtis Flanagan which he presented to Jess Spencer of the Boy Scouts.

Curtis Flanagan told of the trip to the International Rotary convention at New York City. He was able to give an account of all Rotarians except nearly 100. He was the only member who did not take his wife to the convention. Manly, called upon for a report, stated that he would not be able to testify against himself but that he thought he was in good company all the time.

Paul Ewell won the attendance prize.

Outstanding Scenes From 'Lost Colony'

These are scenes from the play 'The Lost Colony', a new production by the Farmville Enterprise. The play is a historical drama about the first English colony in North Carolina. It is being performed at the Farmville Theatre.

A few changes have been made in the script. A new scene has been added in Act II, one which shows relatives of the colonists praying for their safety on the high seas while they are sailing across to establish a settlement in the New World.

A dramatic innovation this year will be the 'Lost Colony' chorus, under the direction of Thores Crook, leaving their chairs to become singing actors in certain scenes.
