Paul A. Wagner, who on August 1st relinquishes a top executive spot with the Bell and Howell Camera Company, a $22,000,000-corporation, to become president of Rollins College in Winter Park, Fla., has some ideas about naming children that should find favor with off-spring of well-meaning parents who inscribe on their children's birth certificates monikers that rise to plague and torment the child through his entire life. Mr. Wagner, who at 31 will have the distinction of being the youngest president of an accredited liberal arts college in the United States, gave his son a first name only and the boy will be allowed to choose a middle name when he is older. Those going through life with a middle name they dislike would relish the idea of picking their own. Until more parents like Mr. Wagner come along, however, those with names they don't like will find solace in the truthful words of the Bard of Avon that a rose by any other name would smell as sweet.

In an out-of-town church Sunday morning, I heard a very fine sermon on the current generation's disposition to rush through life at such a break-neck speed that many of the more worthwhile things are overlooked and a high percentage of the world's population is plunging into a maelstrom of confusion. To prove his point, the pastor showed how the youth, Saul, picked by God for the kingship of Israel, "waited awhile" with Samuel, from whom he received the astonishing news that he was destined to rule, before he went back to his father and people, those he had left a short while before as a simple, country lad. The huge increase in the number of mentally diseased warped personalities was attributed to "the big hurry" character of the world today. As is too often the case, however, the church failed to do as the preacher preached. Those in charge of the music were so anxious to get through the service that only three of the closing hymn's five stanzas were sung.

The government has set the 1949 government-support price of tobacco at between 42 and 43 cents, warehousemen have drafted rules and regulations, selling time has been increased a half-hour, and an air of pleasant anticipation hangs over the heads of merchants and prospective customers alike; all told, mechanics of the 1949 selling season have been arranged. But local growers aren't taking much notice of such things right now. They are too busy harvesting the crop, one of the finest this section has enjoyed in several years. Tobacco is "coming in" fast and farmers are having to hustle to keep from losing it. In one sense of the word, tobacco and a news story are alike. Tobacco isn't worth anything until it's harvested and cured. The best news story in the world isn't worth a cent until it's put into type.

The writer and composer of the current song hit, "Baby, It's Cold Outside," may have what it takes to get to the top of the "hit parade" but he's at the bottom of our list as a weather observer.

Like many others in Farmville, Frank Dupree greatly admires his mother's energy and activeness. He says he hopes that when he reaches her age, 78, he can be as active as she. Mrs. Dupree returned by plane last Friday from an extended visit with members of her family in Atlanta. It was the third time that Mrs. Dupree had made the Atlanta-Raleigh hop.

A triple play, made by the Baptists, and a 1-0 game were the features of the week's play in the Sunday School softball league.

The triple play came in the second inning of Thursday night's game between the Baptists and Presbyterians. Dupree, first man up, was safe on an error and advanced to third on Burgess' single. Jones caught a short fly by Burgess, Jr., tagged first to get Burgess and then threw to Lee to cut off Dupree who was trying to score.

The 1-0 game took place the same night, a contest between the Christians and MEC (Methodists, Catholics and Episcopalians). Only run of the game came in the fourth inning. Teel, MEC left fielder, gained base on an error and scored on Candler's two base hit.

At The Rotary Club

Complacency of American people will have to change into an attitude of cooperation and responsibility if world peace is to be effected, said Father Loyola O'Leary at the Rotary club Tuesday night, as he brought the club's attention to the problem of Displaced Persons.

To further their war program, the Germans brought in many people from the overrun countries of Western Europe. These people were made to operate the German farms and to work in the German factories. When hostilities were over, these people were free to return to their homeland but the greater majority preferred to stay in the D. P. Camps rather than return where there would be no personal freedom or happiness, under the hand of Communism.

At present the immigration law allows 200,000 to come into this country and the Catholic priest expressed the hope that the law will be amended to increase the total to about 300,000. Approximately 500 families per week will arrive and Eastern North Carolina will have an opportunity to do its part; however, it will take an individual effort to make the program work.

Due to congested housing conditions in cities, rural areas afford better possibilities. In conclusion, O'Leary made an appeal to the people of Farmville and adjacent areas to do their part, not only in a financial way but to help in a Christian way, so that homes might be provided for those representing, not the scum of Europe, but the higher classes of Europe who will arrive in North Carolina in December.

Paul Ewell held ticket number 1487 and was awarded the attendance prize. Joe Rasberry received the "Mystery Man Distinction."

Dick Elmore of Charlotte was the guest of Irvin Morgan and John E. Lewis had as his guest his brother, Jimmy Lewis, of Reseda, Calif. Arthur Tripp, president of the Greenville Kiwanis club, was presented by Dr. Paul Jones.

The club president, Charlie Fitzgerald, presided.
