Semi-finals will be played Thursday night and the finals will be run-off on Saturday. Play will be suspended on Friday night so the teams can carry out their schedules.

In the girls' bracket, Farmville and Maury play at 6:30 Wednesday, with the winner of this contest to meet Vanceboro girls Thursday night at 7:30. At 8:30 Wednesday night, the Snow Hill girls play Stantonburg, with the winner meeting Bethel at 8:30 Thursday night.

Last year's tournament was a tremendous success and the Jaycees are seeking to make the 1950 event an even more popular tournament. The trophies for winners and runners-up are donated by Mrs. D. R. Morgan of Farmville. In addition, trophies will go to the individual players on each of the winning teams. An award will also go to the most valuable player and to the players who display the best sportsmanship.

Winner of first place will also take home a $25 bond for their school. These bonds are donated by the Jaycees.

With a Steinway grand piano now available for use to the public, Farmville will be privileged to have many musicians of note appear here in recitals and concerts from time to time, and the DAE chapter house will thus further serve its purpose as a cultural center in the community.

At The Kiwanis Club

Kiwanis International is observing the 35th anniversary of its founding this week.

Established in Detroit January 21, 1915, the community service organization has grown from a single unit to a vast network involving more than 3,000 clubs and 200,000 members throughout the United States, Canada, Alaska, Hawaii and the Yukon Territory.

President Frank Allen of the local club states that he has received a significant report covering Kiwanis International's accomplishments during the past year.

Nearly $18,000,000 was raised by various Kiwanis clubs to support the Community Fund and polio, heart and cancer campaigns in 1949. At the same time Kiwanians were purchasing government savings bonds valued at more than $14,000,000. They also provided recreational opportunities to 1,650,000 young people and gave vocational guidance to 265,000 others.

The report also revealed that 11,000 Kiwanians held public office in 1949 and that 42,000 served on school, hospital and other public affairs boards. To strengthen the American and Canadian systems of government, Kiwanis International issued 16,000,000 patriotic pamphlets last year and won a gold medal and an award for $1,500 from Freedoms Foundation, Inc.

Sam Bundy gave a splendid talk at the club Monday night.

Lewis Allen will have charge of the program Monday night.

May-Haps

(By Elizabeth May)

While their classmates have a brief vacation after semester exams this week end, the 60-voice Flora Macdonald college glee club, of which Evelyn Fields of Walstonburg is a member, will tour. Leaving Saturday, the group will be away 10 days. They will go as far north as Washington where they will appear at the Central Presbyterian church and before the St. Andrews society which is celebrating the 191st birthday anniversary of Robert Burns, the poet. Scotsman Robert Smith, dean of the conservatory and glee club director, made his first appearance at the college last fall in kilts.

The club will sing in Wilson Sunday morning and in Tarboro Sunday afternoon.

Evelyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Fields, is in two of the group pictures which appeared in the color folders of the college which were sent out last week for the first time.

Warm days with a hint of spring on and off for the past month have brought out the spring-blooming shrubs. Two hedges of eye-filling beauty are the hawthorn at the homes of the C. F. Baucums and the Manly Liles. Camellias have also made their appearance early. Spirea is opening and many of the first breath of spring and forsythia bushes have shed their flowers and are putting out the leaves.

One of the largest camellia bushes in this section is at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Turnage. It was set out by Mr. Turnage's mother about 50 years ago.

For the first time this club year, which began in September, all 18 members were present for the Wednesday Afternoon club meeting in the home of Mrs. Robert Lee Smith last week. It is a rare occasion for a bridge club of that size to have perfect attendance more than twice in a nine-month period.

Carolina Dairy Takes Over Pecan Grove Milk Route

E. S. Webb of the Carolina Dairy Products company in Greenville announces that his company has purchased the retail milk equipment of the Pecan Grove Dairy and will begin serving the Farmville community with a complete line of dairy products tomorrow.

Mr. Webb stated that the Carolina Dairy will purchase the raw milk from the Pecan Grove Dairy and will then distribute the milk after it has been processed at the plant in Greenville.

The Carolina Dairy now serves Greenville, Washington, Winterville, Ayden and Grifton and wholesales milk to the Bethel distributor.

Mr. Webb expressed pleasure at the opportunity to serve the people of Farmville and expressed confidence that his company could continue giving excellent service that they have become accustomed to receiving.

Webb also stated that from Feb. 1 to Sept. 1 all the milk distributed by the company is produced right in this section and he stated that by the time another winter rolls around, the company will be able to get its entire supply in this locale.

The company has cooperated with several farmers in Pitt and surrounding counties, encouraging them to enlarge and improve their herds as a means of increasing farm income and at the same time eliminate the necessity of forcing his company to buy any part of its milk in other sections of the state or country.

Deliveries will be made daily, except Sunday, but a double delivery will be made on Saturday.

Sam D. Walston, who has been driving for the Pecan Grove Dairy, will continue in the employ of the Carolina Dairy.

The new purchaser will submit bills on February 1st covering both the amount due it and the Pecan Grove Dairy.

At The Rotary Club

Rev. H. L. Davis, pastor of the Methodist church, was guest speaker at the Rotary club Tuesday night, at the regular weekly meeting which was held at the Lang's Crossroads Home Demonstration club.

Rev. Davis chose as his topic, "The Book," and generally reviewed the Bible, the greatest of all books. Said Mr. Davis, "One would not have to be familiar with the doctrines of Rotary to know that the ideals of Rotary are encompassed in the Bible. 'Service above Self,' for which Rotary really stands, was truly the teaching of the Master." O. G. Spell, program director, introduced Rev. Davis.

Milton Eason and Haywood Smith were presented pins-in recognition of 25 years of continuous, faithful service with the Farmville fire department. In April of this year Fire Chief Smith will have been a member of the department for 36 years. Story of 'Possum Hunt In Reverse

From Fountain comes a story of a 'possum hunt in reverse. Instead of trying "hard to get" and forcing hunters to come out and get them, two 'possums went to the home of Mrs. Mack Smith and literally begged to be captured.

For several nights, the animals had been going to Mrs. Smith's home, getting on top of the house and walking about and scratching on the doors.

Friday night Rev. Philip Cory killed one of them; a few hours later, Mrs. Smith was disturbed by the other 'possum. Chief of Police J. A. Wheeler and the minister found him in a tree near the home and nabbed their second 'possum.

March Of Dimes Led Locally By School

The March of Dimes campaign for funds got underway in Farmville and Pitt county this week. The Farmville school is directing the drive locally, and it is hoped that the response will be good. It is estimated that it will take $20,000,000 to complete treatment on cases now existing even if there should be no new cases in 1950. However, it is necessary to be prepared for an epidemic and to continue research. The goal of the 1950 drive is $52 million.

Pitt's quota is $12,500. Last year about $1500 was raised in Farmville.

The school has been divided into departments this year and students are working on that basis.

Self-addressed envelopes have been placed at the doors of 500 homes in Farmville and contributions can be mailed. The point is to give through some child or mail contributions to Sam D. Bundy, Farmville School, Farmville, N. C.

The campaign will close Jan. 31.

CONGRESSMAN BONNER PLEDGES SUPPORT OF PROGRAM TO REDUCE FEDERAL EXPENDITURES & WASTE

Town and Country

(By James B. McCaskey)

Most Farmville citizens will receive with regret the decision of the Pecan Grove Dairy to withdraw entirely from the retail milk business. This feeling of regret is not caused by an unusually deep affection for the dairy, as such; nor is it rooted in opposition to the Carolina Dairy Products Company taking over the route. Rather, it is a feeling of regret that any local business finds it advisable to curtail operations, regardless of whether the factors influencing the decision are a direct result of the firm's policies or whether they develop from sources over which the operators have no control.

People of the town are still talking about, and marveling at, the maneuvers of Oscar P. Hoffman, who served as secretary of the local Chamber of Commerce for a short time in the closing days of 1947. Hoffman's far-flung operations back-fired as he tangled with the law on bad check charges, and lost. From The Pathfinder comes this "Tale of Hoffman":

"Oscar Hoffman, a mental patient at East Louisiana State Hospital in Jackson, and his ward psychiatrist, Dr. Edwin C. McGowan, member of Alcoholics Anonymous, shared a little friendly drink to celebrate Christmas.

"At the end of five days and a long trail of empty bottles, the two appeared at Hotel Dieu, a New Orleans hospital. Hoffman told the attendant he was a 'psychiatrist' and wanted 'his patient,' McGowan, admitted as an 'alcoholic.'

"Hoffman continued the spree alone, with the help of $320 of McGowan's money and $60 he got for McGowan's automobile. After McGowan sobered up enough to tell his story and set police on Hoffman's trail, Hoffman walked into New Orleans' De Paul Sanatorium and turned himself in."

The story has another chapter. Loyola O'Leary of the local Catholic church was in New Orleans during the New Year holidays and was told about the incident by a friend who serves on the staff of one of the hospitals involved in the story. The friend told O'Leary that it took three days for Dr. McGowan to convince hospital authorities that he really was a psychiatrist, not a patient. At the time he heard all this, O'Leary, who came to Farmville since Hoffman's time, did not know that the community he now served was in any way connected with The Tale.

There's quite a story connected with the sporty cap L. S. Johnson was wearing around town the other day. Mr. Johnson, who has duties that take him into many sections of the United States, lost his chapeau one Saturday night recently when he was attending a conference at a Chicago hotel. When the meeting disbanded, Mr. Johnson's hat had disappeared. One of the bellhops in the hotel stole, begged or borrowed a hat from somewhere for Mr. Johnson to wear during Sunday. On Monday morning, Mr. Johnson went down and bought himself not only a hat but a cap, as well. Now, he says, he can stuff his cap in his pocket and proceed with the business at hand without worrying about whether his hat will be waiting for him when he gets ready to leave.

Chief of Police Lloyd Lucas, whose work with the Farmville police department has earned him the reputation of being a detective of no mean ability, believes that Raymond Hair, 24-year-old former Wake Forest student, charged with the murder of Ray Coble, another student, is linked with the murder of a soldier who was found in a dying condition in an automobile on a Farmville street early one morning in September, 1945. No clue as to the identity of the murderer has ever been established, although state and federal officers as well as the military services, have gone over the case thoroughly. Lucas bases his belief on the fact that there was in Farmville early on the morning of the murder a service man, wearing either a navy or merchant marine uniform, about 18 years old. Hair was in the merchant marine and was less than 20 years old at the time. The victim, whose home was in New York, was known to have been with a service man who had registered at the USO center in Wilson as "Bart Martin" of Boston, member of the merchant marine. Official records disclosed no one of that name was connected with the service. It is known

(Special to The Enterprise)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19—First Congressional District economy-conscious far reaches who raised to the support of the Hoover Commission recommendations are being assured of continued legislative efforts to effect greater economy and increased efficiency in the executive branch of the government.

The assurance of continued support of the Hoover Commission (actually the Committee on the Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government) comes from Congressman Herbert C. Bonner in letters to various enthusiasts in the First District who have written, requesting his support of the program.

Mr. Bonner, chairman of a subcommittee of the Expenditures Committee to which the Hoover Report was referred, explains, however, that outright enactment of the recommendations is impossible. They cannot be legislated directly.

"There has been a popular misconception that these findings embody specific legislative drafts and proposals," the Congressman asserted. "The reports," he explained, "do not take the form of a blue print. They are more in the nature of generalized recommendations dealing with the diverse phases of government operations."

To Congress has fallen the task of formulating legislation to achieve the results desired and recommended by the Commission. Mr. Bonner stated that he hoped that the anticipated economies would come from the program. "But it cannot be achieved in a short space of time," he pointed out.

The First District Representative declared that there are only two ways in which a balanced budget and economy can be accomplished. "They are reduction in authorization and appropriations by Congress, both of which I stand for," Mr. Bonner said. "That Congress is attempting and is so far successful in its attempts to reorganize the executive branch is evidenced by legislation already passed."

The Expenditures Committee drafted and guided through Congress the Reorganization Act of 1949, a landmark of importance in following the Hoover Commission Recommendations.

The Act gave the President power to recommend specific reorganization plans and submit them to Congress for approval.

By August 14, 1949, six of President Truman's plans had been enacted into law. They corrected the situation in the National Military Establishment, Civil Service Commission, Procurement and Supply Activity, and the Post Office Department.

One of the most important works was the passage of the Federal Property and Administration Services Act of 1949 which stresses simplification of buying practices and the utilization and disposal of government property.

Drafted by the Expenditures Committee and hailed as one of the greatest consolidations in the history of government, the act can save the government over one billion dollars during the next decade.

Now the Expenditures Committee is expanding into the areas of record management and traffic management and in addition, it is contemplated that President Truman will submit a number of new reorganization plans to Congress in the near future.

Mr. Bonner, who also chairs the Intergovernmental Relations Subcommittee of the Expenditures Committee, reports that the Hoover Commission study on government regulatory bodies has been referred to his group.

"It is my intent to hold hearings and set upon this task at once for every possible enactment of worthwhile legislation in this complicated field of work," he said.

The Commission, named the Hoover Commission because of its chairman, the former President, made its report last June after sending the numerous "task forces" it included into all branches of the government.

The Hoover Commission was organized back in 1947. It included over 300 outstanding citizens chosen to study the federal government for possible improvements in efficiency.

that the victim had taken his room (training in Fort Bragg; Hair lived in Fayetteville and the two may have known each other. The Wake Forest and Farmville victims were found under similar circumstances. Both had been shot (not with the same pistol, however). Lucas may not have anything in his deductions; then, again, he might. The FBI didn't believe they had anything when they received a tip that Hair was in Los Angeles, under an alias in a certain hotel. But they have their man.
