GRAHAM AND THE RECORD

(The Greensboro Daily News)

Robert R. Reynolds bases his candidacy for the United States Senate largely on the belief that he can represent the people of North Carolina more in accordance with their wishes than can the present incumbent, Frank P. Graham. Willis Smith, a candidate, says that a contest would offer "a great opportunity for someone who wants to represent the real viewpoint of most of the people of the State."

This raises the question of how effectively Senator Graham has been representing Tar Heel sentiment and invites, as Al Smith used to say, a look at the record.

Since Senator Graham has been in Washington he has come out against FEPC. Do most North Carolinians favor it? "In his first speech he delivered an indictment of Communism in as strong a bill of particulars as we have ever seen. He made known his desire to see the foreign policy of the United States government slanted toward the evolution of the United Nations into a world government of limited powers as the answer to the peril in which the world finds itself; in this he followed by several years the action of the North Carolina Legislature on the Humber resolution. He is also on record as favoring Federal aid to education; much may be said on both sides as to the merits of such Federal aid, but it is certain that it would relieve the State of much financial strain in its problems of educating all the people on limited funds, and it may be doubted whether a majority of the people of this State are opposed to it.

No representative can please all the people all the time—and none should—but just where does the record show that Senator Graham so far has done any considerable amount of misrepresenting?

TRAINING CLASS

Women of the Farmville and Carraway Presbyterian churches have been invited by the women of the Greenville Presbyterian church to join them Monday for an officers' training class. The session opens at 11 o'clock with adjournment at noon for a covered dish luncheon.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. C. H. Walston, pianist, and Miss Gerry Lee Elrod, soloist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of white duchesse satin, designed with off-shoulder neck-line with yoke of nylon marquisette. The fitted bodice extended in a full skirt over a hoop, the front of which was caught up in several places with rose buds and extended in a short train. Her finger tip veil was of French illusion adorned with orange bosoms. She carried a prayer book topped with purple orchids.

Miss Ramona Rouse of Greenville, sister of the bride was maid of honor. She wore a lavender off-shoulder dress with fitted bodice and full skirt over a hoop, with matching Juliet hat and carried old fashioned nosegay. Little Miss Judy Payne Eason of Snow Hill, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Her dress was identical to that of the maid of honor, in pink. The bridesmaids' dresses were fashioned after the maid of honor with Miss Betsy Rouse wearing pink, Miss Peggy Reason wearing yellow, Miss Mary Ellen Fields wearing blue and Miss Jeanne Redick wearing green, all carrying old-fashioned nosegays. The honorary bridesmaids attending the bride were dressed in blue with pink carnations in their hair. They were Mrs. Carson Fields, Miss Ruth Gay, Miss Patsy Eason, Miss Betty Hobbs, Miss Janie Diky and Miss Frances Dixon.

Mr. Fields chose as his best man his father. Ushers were Carson Fields, brother of the bridegroom, and Bill Marlowe.

Immediately after the ceremony, the couple left for a wedding trip to unannounced points. The bride chose cocoa brown with egg shell and brown accessories and the orchids from her prayer-book.

Miss Joyce Rouse gave a luncheon Monday complimenting her attendants. The table was centered with an arrangement of white hydrangea, lace fern and snow drops. Each of her bridesmaids received ear rings.

On Monday evening following the wedding rehearsal, Mrs. George Eason of Snow Hill complimented the bridal party and relatives at a cake cutting. The house was decorated throughout with carnations and fern. The table was covered with a maderia cloth centered with an arrangement of snap dragon, baby breath and fern flanked by crystal candelabra hold-
