DAR Discusses Plans For Pianist's Concert

Mrs. E. B. Beasley gave a devotional on Easter at the Major Benjamin May chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, which met at the chapterhouse Saturday afternoon. The session, she reminded, when Christ was crucified and arose from the tomb signifies new hope and new life. After the Lord's prayer had been repeated by the group, Mrs. G. I. Alex Rouse led in repeating the allegiance to the flag.

Mrs. Henrietta M. Williamson, regent, presided and read a card stating that the chapter was on the honor roll for publicly. She also read the legislative program of the state society, which was discussed at length by the members.

The concert by George Perry of the ECTC music department was announced for Thursday by Mrs. Rouse, who distributed tickets for the members to sell. Mrs. M. V. Jones listed committees for the UDC luncheon, held Tuesday.

For the program, Miss Tabitha M. DeVisconti, conservation chairman, gave a summary of the conservation projects of the members. After quoting the conservation pledge, she closed by saying "our future as a nation depends on what we do today. All should work together in conservation to keep our country great and strong."

Assisted by Mrs. Louise Harris, Mrs. John B. Wright, Jr., and Mrs. Frank Davis, Jr., Mrs. Haywood Smith, hostess, served lime ice, cake and salted nuts.

Jimmie Bryant, Polio Victim, Regaining Strength In Legs

By Mrs. Herman Baker, Principal Fountain School

Jimmie Bryant, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Bryant, Jr., of Fountain was stricken with polio at the age of six months. For two weeks he was treated for a bad cold and at the end of two weeks he had lost the use of his right leg. He was carried to Tarboro and his case diagnosed as the dread disease, polio. Then, came the long and tedious work of trying to treat the leg and regain its use. Under the supervision of Duke hospital physicians, his mother administered the daily exercises prescribed. He was taken back to Duke for check-ups at frequent intervals. Finally they put a brace on him as soon as he was able to pull up but somehow or other he never could use the brace to advantage. Finally, one day he found that he could take a step and he cried out, "Mama, I can walk."

But Jimmie's joy was short-lived; as his walking developed, his foot turned outward and an operation was necessary, an operation which required a month's hospitalization and the wearing of a cast from his neck to his toes. The little fellow had the patience of Job. Finally, the cast was removed, braces were put on and the little fellow spent an additional week in the hospital, learning how to walk.

Thus, the March of Dimes helped another little fellow to walk. This year Jimmie collected $37.00 for the March of Dimes when we conducted our drive. The Fountain community expresses its appreciation for the benefits that this little boy has received from the March of Dimes. We, as a little community, tried very hard to do our part in obtaining our quota. We have 250 children in our school and we turned in $474.63 in the drive for this year.

May the good work continue, and on behalf of "Jimmie," his parents and the community, I wish to thank the Fund for the $517.52 that has been spent in Jimmie's behalf so that he could walk again.

Town and Country

(By James B. Hochaday)

The pattern of life in a small town is well illustrated by recent experiences of Mr. and Mrs. Lath Morris, who have been planning to build on North Barrett street between the homes of Pat Ruffin and Gus Roebuck. When a contractor placed on the proposed building site some surplus bricks for which he had no storage space, the townspeople were delighted and told the Morrises how glad they were that work on the new home was about to get underway. This necessitated an explanation by the Morrises that they weren't quite ready to begin, that the bricks belonged to someone else, and so on. A few days later, the contractor went, or sent someone, for some of the bricks, which prompted other Morris-wishers to call her and warn her, "someone is taking your bricks."

Such interest in neighbors' affairs would be termed meddling by some people, while others would say it is a sign of genuine interest in another's welfare. We prefer to call it the latter. But whatever it is, the small town trait is much to be preferred over the "let-aloneness" or totally ignored characteristic of big cities.

Jimmy Darden may well be on his way toward becoming Farmville's foremost good will ambassador. Several months ago his picture appeared in Chesterfield ads which appeared in various "slick-paper" magazines of nation-wide circulation. Later, the company invited him to New York and had him to appear on several radio and television shows. Now comes a big Chesterfield ad featuring Jimmy's picture at the top of three end-corners of the product. The ad is appearing in big daily papers throughout the country.

State Highway Patrolman Ernest Guthrie, whose interest in safer driving habits for the motoring public at large can be cited as one of the reasons for a comparatively small number of accidents in this section of the county, has been assigned one of the "sponged-up" Ford patrol cars in lieu of a Buick. The new car has a Mercury engine and a high speed rear end. Guthrie has little fear of speedsters pulling away from him.

Henry Belk of Charlotte, whose chain of stores in North Carolina and adjoining states has given him the reputation of being the South's foremost merchant, visited the Farmville Belk-Tyler store several days ago on a brief inspection trip. It was the first time Mr. Belk, now 80 years old, had visited the store in several years. His last visit was on the eve of Manager Ernest Petteway's departure for military service. Manager Petteway has a letter from Mr. Belk, who expressed at the appearance of the local store on his most recent visit.

An experimental street light, which Supt. W. A. McAdams hopes can be duplicated along the town's main thoroughfares and give Farmville a modern "white way," has been placed in front of the town hall. The light, of the mercury arc type, uses no more power than the other lights along Main street, yet gives several times as much illumination. If the one in use proves successful, the town fathers would do well to investigate the feasibility of procuring others.

Mr. Nicholson reports that the main points of the program discussed at the two-day conference were:

(1) Getting honest information to patrons about these films;

(2) Promotion of public service methods wherein the theatre can best serve the community in which it is situated.
