DAR Establishes Scholarship In Music At ECTC

The establishment of a scholarship in the ECTC music department in honor of Mrs. Serene Moore of Lumberton was voted Saturday afternoon at the meeting of the Major Benjamin May chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Vance Perkins, Mrs. Earl Forbes and Mrs. Margaret Farley entertained the chapter at the Perkins home in Greenville.

Mrs. T. E. Hooker of Greenville suggested that the scholarship b established.

Mrs. Moore, who died last year was a talented pianist and singer She was the mother of Mrs. T. C. Turnage, former regent of the chap-

Conducting the devotional, Mrs. Farley read from the fourth chapter of Exodus and developed her talk on talents around the verse. "What is in thy hand?"

Mrs. Perkins introduced Mrs. J. H. Rose, who spoke on John Charles Mc-Neill and read more than 20 of his poems. McNeill, who is often called the poet laureate of North Caro-Riverton on the Lumber river and died in 1907. The three special interests in his home community were the church, the school and the temperance lodge. Of Scottish descent, he was the youngest of five children, His teachers and college professors recognized early his talent for writing poetry. In October, 1905, he was awarded the Patterson cup for outstanding literary talent. That was the first time the cup was given.

"The dominant note throughout his poems," Mrs. Rose told her listeners, "was simplicity, sincerity and tenderness." He published two volumes, "Songs, Merry and Sad," and Lyrics in Cottonland.

Mrs. Henrietta M. Williamson presided over the business session and appointed the following couples to care for the chapterhouse grounds for two weeks each: Mrs. Frank Davis. Jr., and Mrs. Williamson: Mrs. Ellen Carroll and Mrs. Jack Lewis: Mrs. Haywood Smith and Miss Tabitha DeVisconti; Mrs. W. H. Whitmore of Wilson and Mrs. Augustus Rogers of Lake Alfred, Fla.

The regent expressed her appreciation for the donation, made by Monk family, to the maintenance fund. After adjournment the hostesse invited the members to the dining room, where Mrs. Forbes poured punch. Sandwiches, nuts, cookies and cakes were served. The table was centered with spring flowers flanked by pink tapers. Throughout the house, orses, potted plants and mixed bouquets were used.

At The Kiwanis Club

Dr. Amos Abrams, associate editor of the North Carolina Education Association, made a strong plea for continued support of public schools, in his talk Monday night to the Kiwanis club, and made a convincing argument in favor of Federal aid for the public educational program. Dr. Abrams, a native of Edge combe county, was the guest of J. R. Peeler, Walstonburg school principal, program chairman for the evening. The speaker was introduced by Sam Bendy, who, along with Seth Barrow, was a student at old Trinity college when Abrams was an instruc tor there. The guest speaker is a cousin of Charles Edwards. The speaker stated that the school novement is progressing and cited some of the gains that have been nade by schools in recent genera tions. He warned, however, that the need for support is greater now than ever before. He said that the State will need about 1100 new elementary school teachers but that ony 260-odd qualified teachers are being graduated this year. Other graduates are seeking more lucrative fields of employment.

Major Dave T. Lambert, executive officer of the State Highway Patrol, in an impressive and informative way, Tuesday night outlined some of the duties and activities of the paby Patrolman Ernest Guthrie. He stated that the majority of highway accidents are caused by careless violations of the law, laws based on common sense and designed for our own protection. The patrol, consisting of 423 men, finds no fun in making arrests, but over 9,000 people are cited for violations per month.

People must want safety, must teach children safety principles, practice courtesy on the highway, know that other people have certain rights, and realize that the patrol is out for protection and help; and then and only then can they continterior lots on the canting the state of the site on North Main street adjacent to the Williams-Smith clinic which was offered for $24,000 ($200 a front foot), a choice of corner or interior lots on the cast of the corner or interior lots on the cast of the cas scientiously say that they have con-tributed to accident prevention. Since less than $10,000 of the 200,000 ear-marked for Farmville's new post office can be used as the purchase price of a building site. ture, long over-due from the point of need, will be erected in a residential section, at least several blocks from the business district.

Making his second visit to Farm ville since seeled bids on proposed sites were asked for and received by the government several weeks ago, Inspector A. E. Helmick said Tues-day that the sites originally offered had virtually been eliminated either because they were out of the price range or because they did not meet specifications as to size. The lots in the first group of proposals includinterior lots on the east side of South Main street between Church and Pine for $20,000, and the Horton hotel site, which was offered for $18,000 but which did not meet the required width of 120 feet for an interior lot. Since these proposals were recevied, the lot on the southwest corner of East Church and Contentnea streets has been offered Monday night, at 6:45, at which time but at a figure in excess of $10,000. The inspector stated that satisfactory price tags had been placed on two lots which measure up to requirements as to dimensions. These are the Turnage lot on the northwest corner of Belcher and Barrett streets, and the Winstead property in the 300-block of East Wilson street.

Helmick also explained that under the new building program, the first extensive work the government has undertaken since before the war, each of the 585 Congressional dis-tricts in the United States had been allotted funds for one new building innually and that regulations placed a ceiling on the amount that could be expended for a building site. He stated that the price asked for some of the Farmville property was as much as the cost of property on which buildings costing two and a half million dollars were to be erect-

d. . Although the government could condemn any of the property offered by the owners, Helmick stated that Uncle Sam looks with disdain on conan election year, and added that the Public Buildings Administration tried at all times to negoiate on a friendly
