The Senate has passed Senate Hill 120 which, as anded would give the cities %c of the present gas tax and place at forming links in the state primary and secondary road systems under the Highway Commission. This action, the governor charges, is false economy. will weaken the primary highway sys-tem, might undermine the rating of North Carolina securities, and will not provide a permanent solution of the street problem. While the governor does not advocate submitting a tax increase to the neople, with the 1949 secondary road bond issue as a precedent, he has said he is not afraid to carry it to the people. With SB 120 on its way to the House, the strength of the governor's position is due for a positive test. The House finance committee has already voted to report unfavorably House Bill 262 which would place exclusive responsibility for all city streets in the Highway Commission if a lc gas tax increase were approved by the voters. It now has before it HB 331 which would allocate the proceeds from it of highway taxes to cities. sayed each and would give the Highway
