

Elizabeth Davis Will Direct Red Cross Campaign

Miss Elizabeth Davis has accepted the appointment as chairman of the annual Red Cross drive for the Farmville school district. Miss Davis' decision to accept the task of directing the fund-raising campaign was announced by Dr. Leo Jenkins of East Carolina College, who is serving as county-wide chairman. Dr. Jenkins expressed gratification that a person as capable and efficient as Miss Davis had been secured to serve as administrative head and expressed confidence that citizens of the community will assist her in every possible way. Farmville's quota for this year has been set at $2,904. This compares with a quota of $2,000 for last year, more than $1,800 of which was raised, and a quota of $1,800 two years ago, which was met. The county-wide quota for this year is $16,900, considerably higher than in recent years by virtue of the increased demands on the Red Cross which are developing from a stepped-up defense program, and as a result of such projects as the bloodmobile. Officials of the Red Cross are anxious to have the campaign completed by March 15. Details of the local drive will be announced in future issues of The Enterprise.

Former Fountain Student Awarded Medal For Bravery

Floyd J. Causey, Jr., hospital corpsman third class, U.S.N., son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd J. Cause, Route 1, Pinetops, was awarded a Bronze Star Medal in ceremonies held at Camp Lejeune, February 9. The 26-year-old Corpsman's decoration was ordered by Major General G. C. Thomas, USMC, Assistant Commandant of the Marine Corps, for "heroic achievement in connection with operations against the enemy while serving with a Marine Infantry company in Korea on April 23, 1951." Colonel John A. White, commanding officer of the Headquarters and Service Battalion, Camp Lejeune, made the award before a contingent of 500 troops drawn up on the lawn of the Marine Barracks. The citation, read by Col. White, stated that Causey, seeing "... that a comrade lay wounded forward of friendly lines, ... unhesitatingly dashed forward to aid him, and although he himself was painfully wounded, succeeded in carrying (the Marine) to safety."

A former basketball and baseball letterman at Fountain School, Causey was the only Corpsman still in action in his company. Ordered behind a hill by his commanding officer with the words, "You stay here, we can't afford to lose you too, we'll bring the wounded here." Causey heard the cry "Corpsman ... Corpsman!" from somewhere out in front of the Marines' line, evidently from a man badly hit. Causey looked at his officer, the officer looked away, and Causey dashed from his cover to the aid of the wounded man. Wounded himself when half-way there, he struggled on, reached the wounded Marine and carried him back to friendly lines. Causey's action typifies the service and work done by Navy Corpsmen serving with Marine units. Many of these men have given their lives while treating wounded Marines on battlefronts throughout the world. They are all picked men, chosen from the ranks of regular naval corpsmen, and given special training with Marine infantry units. These men wear regular Marine Corps uniforms, different only by the fact that naval, instead of Marine insignia indicating rank are worn on the sleeves.

Jackie Willis On Service Champion Basketball Team

Jackie Willis, son of Mrs. W. M. Willis and the late Dr. Willis, played the past season on the championship basketball team of the Armed Services Y.M.C.A. League. Willis is a player on the Lackland Air Base Medical corpsman team, at San Antonio, Texas.

Cpl. Willis was a star on one of the best teams ever to represent the local high school, of which he is a 1948 graduate. In his final year at the school the Farmville team won the Pitt County Championship and was invited to play in other state-wide tournaments. He played varsity ball while a student at Wake Forest College. He entered the service in December, 1950, and has been stationed at Lackland Air Base the entire time.

Willis' service team this season chalked up an impressive 30-3 record, including nine straight wins in the Armed Services Y.M.C.A. League. Coached by 2nd Lt. Bitter, hospital lab officer and former University of Maryland cage star, the hardwood medics showed up well against Texas colleges and inter-service teams.

Team members do all their practicing during off duty hours and Lt. Bitter is well pleased with the results his boys have been showing.

The World Day of Prayer Service is sent to 104 countries.

PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN ELECT OFFICERS

Officers were elected at the Presbyterian Women of the Church meeting Monday night. The meeting was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The president, Mrs. C. F. Baucum, Sr., presided. The election results were as follows: vice president, Mrs. Allen Drake; secretary, Mrs. James Bennett; treasurer, Mrs. W. C. Holston.

The following committee chairmen were also elected at this meeting: Church Extension, Mrs. G. P. Bergeron; Annuities and Relief, Mrs. Frank Dupree, Jr.; Stewardship, Mrs. Cherry Easley; Home Circle, Mrs. Edward May; Circle 1, Mrs. L. T. Pierce; Circle 2, Mrs. Glenn Newton; Circle 3, Mrs. Emerson Smith.

Mrs. Cherry Easley forcefully discussed "The Christian, the Community and the Kingdom." She stressed the fact that women can do much to Christianize the methods and purposes of churches, civic and governmental organizations. Mrs. Easley pointed out ways in which the church can influence the administration of mental hospitals, charitable homes, courts and jails. She made clear the evil that can be done to the young by encouraging them in money-making projects that are not Christian, such as raffles, which tend to teach that easy money can be had without work. Mrs. Easley referred to the work done by Jane Adams of Hull House and Carrie Nation who used her energies to bring about Prohibition.

College Dean To Be Guest Speaker On Laymen's Day

Dean Leo W. Jenkins of East Carolina College will deliver the sermon on Laymen's Day at the Farmville Methodist Church, Sunday morning. His topic will be "The Layman's Role in the Church." The service is scheduled for 11 o'clock.

Since joining the East Carolina administrative staff in 1947, Dean Jenkins has become a popular speaker in North Carolina and has filled engagements before various civic, religious, and educational organizations of the state. Through his authorship of numerous articles published in leading educational journals, he has gained national recognition.

Dean Jenkins is a graduate of Rutgers University, of Columbia University, from which he holds the master's degree; and of New York University, from which he received the doctor's degree in 1941. Before coming to East Carolina, he taught at Montclair State Teachers College in New Jersey and was assistant in higher education with the New Jersey State Department of Education.

During World War II he served as an officer in the United States Marine Corps as personal advisor to Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine and wrote for the Marine Corps the educational program used in the South Pacific Islands.

During 1950 Dean Jenkins participated in the annual inspection sponsored by the Southern Association of Colleges and Universities, and visited and evaluated several Georgia colleges. In 1951 he was named to the Advisory Committee of the Division of Special Education of the State Department of Public Instruction. He has served as chairman of the Pitt County Polo Drive and has been active in other civic projects.
