The supper, which was held at the church, was a covered dish meal with Brunswick stew. There were 85 members in attendance.

In addition to her talk, Miss Cox, a missionary who returned to the United States in 1950 from China, showed a film taken of the schools in which she taught and showed parts of the famed Burma Road. A color film of the home she occupied and the Chinese girl she adopted while in that country were also shown. Miss Cox made interesting comments about the subjects of the pictures as they were being shown.

The missionary taught in Haichow and Wuchang, both in Central China on the Yangtze river. While at Wuchang she was head of the music department of the University. RED SUBS. NOW 300 STRONG. WORRY U. S. NAVY OFFICERS

By Stanley James
Washington Correspondent for the Farmville Enterprise

Top Navy officers say the Russians have a submarine fleet which is six times larger than the German submarine fleet at the beginning of World War II. The Russian subs are said to be as modern and efficient as the latest-type Nazi snorkels at the end of the war.

This would give the Reds a sub fleet of about 300 or 400 under-seas raiders, since the German navy had only about 50 or 60 subs in 1939. Admiral William M. Fechteler, Chief of Naval Operations, recently told a group of National Geographic Society members that the Red sub fleet could seriously challenge U. S. supremacy in case of war.

American don't have to look back very far to remember when some 20 or 30 German U-boats caused a carnage off the Southeastern coast in 1942 and 1943. The Germans were sinking oil tankers at a rapid pace and on some days as many as six or eight ships went down. What the Russians could do with six times as many subs can be imagined.

Some military observers have accused the Navy—which is vastly superior to the Russian Navy in size—of dragging out the submarine threat every time its case for a large share of armed forces appropriations is endangered. The Army and the Air Force—both vastly smaller than their Russian counterparts—are sometimes inclined to minimize the Red naval threat.

While there may be something to both arguments, it is nonetheless true that the Red subs pose a direct threat to huge U. S. aircraft carriers, one of which is now under construction. They also threaten world lines of supply which the Allies will have to depend on in any war with Russia. If an enemy sub is able to sink a super carrier which is designed to carry naval airpower within striking distance of Russian cities, it will be able to deal U. S. forces a major blow. It will also be dealing the strategic planners a blow, since Air Force officials have sometimes argued that huge floating airstrips were too vulnerable, considering the vast expenditure involved, to justify the tremendous cost in money and material necessary to build them.

The Navy is working hard to find an answer to the sub threat, and Admiral Fechteler says good progress has been made in this direction, on anti-submarine devices. Naval officers are confident that enemy subs will not be able to nullify the super-carrier threats in time of war, not strangle our lines of supply. The Red sub fleet, though, is getting ominously large.

Make sure you gets do NATCHEL kind!

—because NATURAL Chilean Nitrate contains beneficial sodium PLUS minor plant food elements

- Nitrate Nitrogen: All the nitrogen in Natural Chilean Nitrate is fast-acting nitrate. Dissolves in normal soil moisture... is completely available to the crop. Nitrogen increases yield and improves quality of food and feed crops. Nitrate of soda furnishes more nitrate nitrogen than any other alkaline nitrate.
- Sodium — Improves crop health and vigor.
- Applied phosphate... tends to have a "sweetening" effect on the soil.
- Rich in minor plant food elements.

Natural traces of other elements are found in Chilean Nitrate. These include iodine, manganese, copper, zinc, boron, magnesium, calcium, iron and sulphur. In small quantities, these elements are essential to proper plant or animal nutrition.

• Free-floating pellet form. Chilean Nitrate can be applied in any standard distributor. For larger yields and top-quality crops, order Natural Chilean Nitrate of Soda—proved by more than 100 years of experience.

• "PLUG OUT"—If an animal has a "plug" in its nose, why not a horse? Sun Shine takes a few minutes from intensive training at Hialeah Park in Miami to demonstrate the "plug out" suitably topped with a stunning chop. The caution-conscious thoroughbred belongs to Miss Isabel Dodge.
