Rotarians Hear AA Speaker

Plato Bass was in charge of the program at the Rotary Club, Tuesday night of last week. He presented the Rev. Frank M. Ross, who introduced a member of Rocky Mount Alcoholics Anonymous who gave a very enlightening and graphic picture of a problem that has become paramount in the United States.

The speaker asserted that alcoholism is a physical allergy coupled with a mental obsession and is the 4th ranking disease in the nation. He estimated that there are between 67-70 million users of alcohol and that 4 to 6 million of that figure are confirmed alcoholics.

Giving some history on the AA organization he pointed out that it was begun 17 years ago and there are now 145,000 members in the U. S. compared with 200,000 in the world.

Persons desiring contact with a member of Alcoholics Anonymous can do so through their local minister.

The attendance prize was given by O. G. Spell and won by Miss Margaret Lewis.

Jaycees Cancel Plans For Gold Medal Tourney

A vote by the Jaycees at their regular meeting, Thursday night of last week, eliminated the possibility of the Gold Medal Basketball tournament, which has been annually sponsored by the group, being held this year. The action was the result of a report by R. D. Rouse, Jr., given for Albert C. Moye, committee chairman, stating that the staging of the tournament this year would not be feasible due to the new rules that govern high school athletics.

Rev. L. C. Vereen, Methodist minister, speaker of the evening, was introduced by Ed Davenport. His talk stressed the point that we are living in better days, in spite of the wars and current misunderstanding among nations, than these often reported by some people as "the good old days."

At The Kiwanis Club

Dr. Denton Ray Lindley, president of Atlantic Christian College, addressed the Kiwanis Club, Monday, at the invitation of Lewis Allen who had charge of the program.

Dr. Lindley made a powerful appeal for the preservation of individual rights asking each of his listeners to imagine himself engaging in a personal conversation and to cast aside the illusion that by remaining one of an anonymous group, he could escape his personal responsibilities as an individual.

If one loses himself in the crowd, Dr. Lindley continued, he is limited by the majority of people who likewise wish to remain in the background, then the operating unit of society becomes the group or mass and rights and liabilities are thought of and expressed only in terms of the mass and the individual as such no longer has any rights.

The mass theory prevails in those nations where the rights of the state, representing the mass, are everything and the individual exists at the will of the state and only for its benefit, Dr. Lindley asserted.

The power of the individual is very great, Dr. Lindley stated, reminding his listeners that atomic fission is no more nor less than the splitting of a single atom that starts a chain reaction but the full power and potentialities of a society composed of individuals will not be realized unless each individual is willing to isolate himself from the crowd long enough to assert his convictions, perform his individual responsibilities as a citizen and identify himself with the organizations of his choice in the community.

Local Christmas Parade Draws Many Compliments

About 6,000 people were in Farmville, Saturday morning, to see what many felt away saying was the best parade ever staged by the Farmville Merchants Association. Certainly it was the most impressive parade that has been staged here in recent years, most of the floats were symbolic of the sacredness of the Christmas season. In addition to the many beautiful floats, the Farmville High School Band, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, kindergarten children, choral groups from churches, the school and civic organizations, children riding ponies and bicycles and showing pets, took part in the parade.

Santa Claus from his headquarters in front of the theatre greeted the little folks until well past noon and judging from the long lines of children, blocks long, that passed in front of him, told what they wanted for Christmas and received candy and a favor, he must have greeted every child that came to the parade.

Two boys and one girl received $5 each for their participation in the parade. Linda Mowhorn and Johnny Dixon were judged to have the most attractive pony entries and Bill Hathaway, dressed in a Santa Claus suit, was winner of the boy's bicycle entry. Since there wasn't a girl bicycle entry no prize was given.
