

What Louvain's Pride Will Look Like

This is what the grand library of Louvain, Belgium, will look like when the work of restoration, carried on by Americans largely, is completed. The sketch is by William Warren and C. D. Wetmore, New York architects, who are in charge of the work.

The boiler, on exploding, threw a big chunk of iron through two windows and hit the girl on the other side. The distance was said to have been 400 yards and no one else was hurt, according to information received in Kinston yesterday and Sunday. The explosion result is not only heart rending but extraordinary.

FINDS UNFINDABLE WATER WORKS STILL FIXED IN

CONCRETE FOR ALL TIME
Sheriff Grant has at last located the delicately polished still over near the water works after searching twice for it, and after elaborate plans had been made to drag the river. It was in an out of the way place, put down with concrete, as if it had been put there for all time, but so delicate camouflaged that it was almost imperceptible to the naked eye. The sheriff, though he discovered in recent years so many supposedly undisturbed stills that he capped this one and removed it from the concrete base with a little dynamite as if it were buried in two feet of beach mud.

NEW BERN FIRE HURTS KINSTON ENGINES

KINSTON, N. C. Dec. 5.—The pumper of the City Hall fire company here was damaged in fighting the fire at New Bern Friday. Department mechanics today were busy with the repairing of the machine. Members of the company said their work at the lower Neuse city was difficult. The water supply dwindled. From a plug the Kinston firemen were able to get only one stream. This ceased to flow. They dumped a suction hose into a swamp and pumped that dry. Finally the Kinston contingent, "free lunging" in a big area assigned it, started for one of the rivers. At this point a brake was smashed and other damage done. The damage to the big truck was estimated at several hundred dollars. It returned here dust covered and grimy. Firemen said the work of the inadequate force coping with the blaze was "heroic."

BEGIN CONSTRUCTION OF AYDEN GRIFTON ROAD SOON

KINSTON, N. C. Dec. 5.—Construction of the paved road between Ayden and Grifton will be started during the next few days. This will be an important link in the main highway between Greenville and Kinston traversing one of the richest agricultural districts in Pitt county. Thousands of farmers and travelers will be served by the road. The cost has not been officially announced. At Haccasin River the new link will connect with an asphalted highway to Kinston. Caisways and a bridge will be necessary parts of the road at the stream, owing to adjacent lowgrounds being subjected to frequent flooding. Two smaller bridges are now being built near Littlefield.

ALL OLDEST NEGROES IN TOWN VERIFY IN COURT

All the oldest negroes in Goldsboro were in Superior court yesterday in the case of Everett against William Sneed, colored. Their memories reached back to the death of old Cicero Everett who died two or three years following the Civil War. Some of the witnesses were deaf and nearly blind, but they could remember just the same. Those testifying were Isaac Pate, Sarah Ausburg, Ben Drew, Lorenza Jordan, Tom Phillips, all witnesses for the defendant. Witnesses for the plaintiff were Fannie Dertch, Matilda Everett, Needham

Cobb, W. T. Brodgen, Tizie Goodman, William Highsmith, Bryant Kennedy, Charity Evans. Matilda Everett, ne of Philadelphia, and is claimed to be the wife of George Cicero Everett, alleged son of Old Cicero. She and her husband are after an estate of $3500 said by the second wife and widow of Old Cicero to William Sneed. The case occupied an all-day session in court in the examination of witnesses, and will occupy a large part of today in arguments before it gets to the jury.

BOILER BLOWS IRON THROUGH TWO HOMES AND KILLS 400 YARDS AWAY

KINSTON, Dec. 5.—As a result of an explosion in a boiler of a saw mill in 9 year old white girl, was so fatally injured that she hardly lived to reach the Parrott Memorial Hospital here that evening. She died soon after being brought to this city, as a result of a mangled body and legs.

Sir Thomas Lipton's Advertising

A gentleman from Trinidad, British West Indies, who was in Philadelphia last week, had to have his tea, of course, and it was Lipton's. Sir Thomas Lipton knew exactly what he was doing when he discovered a good many years ago that tea could be grown successfully in Ceylon, not as a haphazard product, but on great plantations, which he established. He also knew that to make these great plantations profitable he must sell his tea to the world; that he must come to the United States and make his market here.

At the Columbian Exposition in 1893 Ceylon tea was introduced as a novelty. It appealed to the American taste and it was sold at a reasonable price. It had to be advertised in order to bring it to the notice of the consuming public, and advertising was an important part of the canny Sir Thomas' program.

Sir Thomas Lipton was born in Glasgow, of Irish parentage. He came to America as a boy, got to know and like Americans and he has been in America many times, often as a distinguished yachtsman, always as Sir Thomas Lipton, whose name is back of his Ceylon tea, his name title and all. Advertising in the daily newspapers has been profitable in the sale of all of the Lipton food products, an indispensable part of great productive and commercial transactions linking the East with the West.
