

Senator Felton Commissioned

Showing the presentation of her commission as senator from Georgia, Mrs. H. Felton, Georgia's "Grand Old Lady," was surrounded by hundreds of her townspeople at Carterville, Ga. She is shown here receiving the congratulations of Mrs. Corra Harris, noted writer and a neighbor of Mrs. Felton.

Bands on His Cigars.
Mr. Blake hesitated at the entrance of the cigar store for a few minutes, looked up and down the street carefully and then cautiously went inside and shook hands with the proprietor. "Well, Jim, old man, what'll it be today? Same old brand?" "That's just it," whispered Blake. "That's why I came to see you today. You see, this is my birthday and the wife is on the way here to buy me a box of cigars. Would it be too much trouble for you to put some of those pretty cigar bands on my favorite brand?"—New York Mail.

A Contradiction.
President Ethel Enders Ellison of the Housewives' league, said in an address in Denver: "Oh, these egg profiteers! That's all! They tell me the Chicago Egg exchange sells more eggs every hour than all the hens of America could lay in a year. And every time an egg is sold its price, of course, goes up a little, while its real value goes down. Eggs, in short, keep dear, but how liable you are at breakfast, to meet with one that turns out to be a little cheaper!"

Saving Our Gas.
It is reckoned by the bureau of mines that 50,000,000 gallons of gasoline were recovered at refineries in 1921 from uncondensed still vapors. Such an economy has a strong appeal for motorists, inasmuch as it has a bearing upon the price of the indispensable liquid fuel. But it is further estimated that if a like system were adopted by all refineries more than twice as much in addition might be saved, say 120,000,000 gallons altogether, which would thus be added yearly to the country's total output.

A RACIAL WEAKNESS.
"Hones, Judge, I wuzn't shootin' no nigger."
"What were you doing then?"
"I jus' lookin' on."
"How long had you been looking on?"
"Bout an hour, Judge."
"I guess you are guilty, then. There never was a Senegambian yet who could watch a dice game for an hour without trying his luck."

Formalities.
"Why do you always begin a speech 'Friends and fellow citizens?' You know a lot of them aren't your friends."
"For the reason," replied Senator Sorghum, "that in writing a letter I address a man as 'Dear Sir' when I have no affection for him whatever."

Understood Her Plight.
Widow Woodby-Young—No, Mr. Hardfax, I have no money. My entire inheritance was left in trust until I should attain the age of forty years.

NOT 'FINGER-PRINT' INVENTOR

Dr. Jacques Bertillon Has Been Given Credit Which Property Should Belong to Englishman.

Coupled with the announcement of the death of Dr. Jacques Bertillon in Paris was the erroneous statement that he was the inventor of the "Bertillon system" for finger-printing. In collaboration with his elder brother, the facts are that the system was invented by his younger brother, and that it had nothing whatever to do with finger-printing, which was introduced as a rival system of identification by the late Sir Francis Galton, the cousin of Charles Darwin, who also invented composite photography and the now familiar term "eugenics." Alphonse Bertillon, born in 1855 and died in 1914, for many years the head of the criminal investigation bureau of the city of Paris police department, was the inventor of the so-called "Bertillon system" of anthropometry for the identification of criminals. It had nothing to do with finger-prints, but consisted of an elaborate series of measurements of parts of the body with instruments of precision.

The making of these measurements required delicate and costly instruments and the work of skilled men, and it was, moreover, found that changes in even adult bodies made the system far from infallible. For these reasons the system, though still employed in France, has in America, Great Britain and elsewhere largely been supplanted by Galton's system of finger-printing or thumb-printing.

WAS BORN "IN THE PURPLE"

Known Now That John Wesley Was of the Same Descent as the Duke of Wellington.

A movement to restore the tomb of John Wesley, which is in an advanced stage of decay, and the re-erection of his chapel on the thoroughfare known as City road, London, is already under way in England, and an effort is being made to interest American Methodists.

The tomb, the chapel and Wesley's house occupy a site given to him in 1775 by the city of London, not far from the old cannon foundry on Pine-bury square, the first home of Methodism in London. Wesley's death occurred in 1791 in the house granted him by the city.

Notwithstanding the popular belief that Wesley was of humble origin it has been established that he was related to one Guy of Welswe, who was created an earl by King Athelstane in the Tenth century. Wesley is descended, according to these findings, from the same ancestor as the duke of Wellington.

In 1735 John Wesley came to America and settled in Georgia, and started the "Second Blue of Methodism," the movement having been founded at Oxford from which Wesley was a graduate ten years before.

COLONEL SHAW WILL DEMAND TO KNOW K. K. K.

KINSTON, N. C., Dec. 6.—Assumption that the Ku Klux Klan is in existence in this judicial district will cause him to adopt membership in the organization as a "cause for challenge." It was stated today by Col. Henry E. Shaw, one of the oldest members of the local bar with an extensive practice. He will establish a precedent in the local courts.

"We are led to understand that the organization is aimed at certain classes and institutions," Colonel Shaw said. "Henceforth I shall demand to know if a prospective juror is a member."

The Ku Klux Klan is understood to have an organization of some strength here, but to be comparatively little known in other parts of the district, the new judge of which, Henry A. Grady, who will take office at the end of the month, was recently asserted to be head of the Klan in North Carolina.
