Were Not Engaged in Lawful Strike

Chicago, Ill., July 12.—Ten members of a railroad shop craft union who went on strike in July, 1922, and who were shortly after found guilty of violating a temporary injunction were denied a jury trial under the Clayton act today.

The court held that the men were not engaged in a lawful strike and that their acts relative to the railroad company were the same as those of strangers and the men were not qualified to demand a jury trial.

The safe weighing about 400 pounds, was found several miles from the oil company's office Monday. The safe had been hammered open and the currency removed, but the checks and some valuable papers had been left undisturbed.

INJUNCTION KEEPS SHOP CRAFTSMEN FROM INTERFERING

Strikers Who Went Out Last Year Permanently Restrained From All Interference
MOST SWEEPING
EVER GRANTED

Chicago, July 12.—Four hundred thousand employees of the Railroad Shop Craft Unions who went on strike a year ago in protest against a United States Labor Board decision, today were permanently restrained from interfering in any way with the operation of railroads in what is considered the most sweeping permanent injunction ever granted.

The final decree which makes permanent a temporary injunction granted the federal government upon application of Attorney General Dougherty was granted by Judge Wilkerson today. The defendant unions which comprise the railway employees of the craftsmen were given 60 days to file an appeal.

In entering the decree Judge Wilkerson said the evidence showed that beyond a doubt that it was part of the purpose of those in this combination to carry on the strike by assaults, then cited numerous acts of violence and noted that the damage to the roads during the strike was more than $94,000,000.

Referring to the combination of the unions that the temporary injunction was an interference with free speech Judge Wilkerson declared it a "misdeed" to characterize any of the acts of the defendants as peaceful. The peaceful words of the strike leaders, taken by virtue of the atmosphere of lawlessness and violence in which they are spoken a forerunner adhering to the words themselves and therefore transcending the right of "free speech," he said.

GEORGE A NORWOOD SPEAKS AT MONROE BEFORE FARM AGENTS

Goldsboro Man Says Marketing Association Here To Stay Spite of Difficulties
THINKS LONG STRIDES
HAVE BEEN MADE

MONROE, N. C., July 12.—George A. Norwood, of Goldsboro, president of the Tri-State Tobacco Marketing Association, spoke here today before the central and piedmont farm demonstration agents who are holding a three days session. Mr. Norwood declared that the association had operated under difficulties, but that it is making progress and is here to stay. The Imperial is the company that has refused to purchase from the association. He is not certain whether another advance will be made to members before the auction markets open up or not, since such action might tend to lower the market at the beginning of the season. He is enthusiastic and thinks long strides have been made in co-operative marketing.

Merchants Put On Bus Line In Elizabeth City

Hauls Passengers From Distant
Depot To the Business
District

Elizabeth City, N. C., July 12.—The merchants of this city have gone into the bus line business. It all happened this way.

It is some little distance from the railway station to the business section of Elizabeth City, and the fares charged by drivers of public cars for transporting passengers were considered by the merchants to be keeping numerous shoppers away from the city. So, the merchants get together and formed a corporation to operate a bus line here. A charter was recently granted the corporation by the Secretary of State and the first bus has already arrived. The fare will be operated for the convenience of the public, it is explained, and not for profit.

South American Closes Door To Willard's Fistic Future With A Savage Blow On Giant's Chin

TYPHOID BREAKING OUT IN SECTIONS OF NORTH CAROLINA

Unless Precautions Are Taken
The Dreaded Disease
Will Spread
NOW IN TWO
CENTRAL COUNTIES

Raleigh, N. C., July 13.—Six cases of typhoid fever among the members of one family in Union county and five cases among the children of a Cleveland county family reported to the State Board of Health called forth today a warning from the board that the typhoid season is just beginning, and that every precaution against this preventable disease should be taken during July, August and September when illness from this cause reaches its peak.

To both instances of family epidemics the disease has attacked children. The Union county family is one of negroes with the youngest of the sick children a boy of three years, and the eldest a boy of sixteen. The Cleveland county family is a white one with the youngest victim six years of age and the eldest seventeen years.

Experiences of the health officials, it was stated, has demonstrated that annually the typhoid rate, both cases and death rises with high warm weather and the increase of house flies, considered the greatest factor in the transmission of the germs of typhoid and other intestinal diseases. Each year for the past ten years the typhoid rate has been consistently lowered in North Carolina. It was stated, until last year the total number of deaths for the first time since accurate statistics have been kept dropped under three hundred, being 298.

That this total may be decreased this year the State Board of Health is advising three things: inoculation against typhoid by taking three doses of antityphoid vaccine at intervals of one week; the cleaning up of breeding places of flies and the destruction of these dangerous and deadly insects by traps, poison, and the screening of houses to keep them out; sanitary disposal of wastes from the body.

While the reports of eleven cases of typhoid in two families is unusual, it was said, figures for the whole state as gathered through the one hundred local quarantine officers and reported to the State Board of Health indicate a better condition than at this time last year. A total of 494 cases have been reported to date as against 495 cases the first six months of 1922. The deaths reported for the first six months of 1922 were 39 as against 32 for the same period this year.

LOCAL FIGHT FANS WERE MOSTLY FOR RIG JESS WILLARD

In spite of the rain a large crowd gathered last night to hear the return from the Firpo-Willard fight.

The sympathy of the Goldsboro crowd was with Willard, and in the seventh when he appeared to have a slight advantage there was considerable cheering on the part of the Goldsboro fight fans. Only a minute later the A. P. flashed the fact that Firpo had floored Willard for the count, and with the announcement the crowd broke up in silence.

PRIME MINISTER BALDWIN POLITELY WARNS FRANCE

Plainly Tells France She Cannot Much Longer Remain
Passive Witness
HIS SPEECH IS VERY SHORT

(By the Associated Press.)
London, July 12.—The Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin in the House of Commons and Marquis Curzon in the House of Lords to eager audiences today made identical pronouncements on the government's policy on the reparations problem in contrast to such statements by his physician, Mr. Lloyd George which were very long. Mr. Baldwin's pronouncements were particularly brief, taking about sixteen minutes for delivery and as in neither house did the opposition offer criticism of any consequence the momentous proceedings were quickly ended.

The question on everybody's lips "How far the British government's open disapproval of the French Ruhr policy and its holding aloof therefrom were to be converted into an active policy separate from France" was to a great extent unanswered. Premier Baldwin eventually moved quite perceptibly from Mr. Bonar Law's attitude of non-involvement inasmuch as he announced the government's decision to submit to Germany a separate reply to Germany's latest offer that he did not give the slightest indication of the nature of the proposed reply.

This was the only important point in the pronouncement which was warning couched in the most polite language, but plainly telling France that the British government could not much longer remain a passive spectator to a policy that threatened the economic collapse of Germany and with disaster to all Europe.

MOTHER RECOVERS HER YOUNG BABY

"I Just Went To Philadelphia
And Took Baby. That's All
There Is To It," Says Mrs.
Rees.

HAD BEEN STOLEN
BY HIS FATHER

Mrs. Arthur Rees, whose three-year-old baby was taken away from Chapel Hill Sunday and carried North by its father, from whom Mr. Rees is living apart, arrived here tonight from Norfolk with the child, on the way back to Chapel Hill.

"I just went to Philadelphia and took my baby—that's all there is to it," said Mrs. Rees.

"Of course I intend to take care that he is not taken away from me again." I offered to provide all possible opportunities for his father to visit him, but I have legal advice that my claim to the care of him while he is very young is entirely sound."

LARGEST CROWD IN HISTORY OF RINGSIDE FIGHT

Big Kansas Unable To Rise After Being Downed

RINGSIDE, JERSEY CITY, July 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Jess Willard, the mountain man from Kansas went back into fistic combat tonight but he staged a last though futile act of his comeback before a throng of more than 10,000, the greatest crowd in ring history, that filled Boyles Acres to overflowing. Lewis Angel Firpo, the dark haired boxer from Argentina, closed the door to Willard's fame by knocking out the giant former champion in the eighth round of a blistering battle, one of the greatest in recent heavyweight history. Incidentally he reached the goal at which he has been aimed for the past year of his meteoric rise to prominence—a victory for the title with Jack Dempsey. There was no question of the superiority of the young Argentine in the night.

Willard's superior weight, height, and reach enabled the big champion to check the rushes in the early part of the fight, but the tide of swung inevitably to the more rugged fighter.

The final round opened with Willard on top, but he was unable to check the rushes in the early part of the fight, but the tide of swung inevitably to the more rugged fighter.

They sparred at long range, but Willard was unable to check the rushes in the early part of the fight, but the tide of swung inevitably to the more rugged fighter.

Step by step Willard was coming trying almost blindly to get into the volleys of jabs to his head and body. Backed up against the ropes his head sank then a right shot to the head sent him in his corner. He knelt as referee Harry Lewis started counting, and tried to rise, but the great bulk was unsteady to the task and he sank into the arms of his handlers at the end of the fight. Four years ago Willard came off better being knocked down seven times in the first round of the fight in which he lost his title to Jack Dempsey, but while the same language remained today he could not manage the strength to rise after that devastating attack of Firpo.

Firpo's great speed and his ability to attack his big target from both angles gave him early superiority. But the bad judgment of the South American and Willard's blocking made for but little fighting. Willard stayed on the defensive waiting for a chance to step in an uppercut, but Firpo's strategy object was never in danger.

Large Crowd At Wall Revival In Spite Of Weather

Delegation From Rosewood Attends Meeting in a Body

Subject: Three of the greatest Tragedies:
1st: The tragedy of sin.
2nd: The tragedy of the Saviour.
3rd: The tragedy of the indifferent saved.

Tragedy first of all is sin. Sin has been and is the most perplexing problem that the redeemed ones have to do with. Expel sin from the world and we will remove of all our troubles, we will remove all of our heartaches, all of our sickness, all of our sorrows, all of our troubles and all of our deaths.

What is sin? It will be interesting if you will take the different books and different dictionaries, and different persons in the world and ask each what sin is and hear the many answers. I have just finished a new book called "The Religion of Science," and it is amazing what some so-called scholars of the world think about sin. What is sin? The answer will depend all together upon whom you ask.

Suppose I ask Mrs. Eddie, of Christian Science, what she considers sin is, and she says sin is more of a fancy than a fact; that sin is more of imagination than anything else, but when I see her followers in the toils of the laws and falling at each other's throats over the millions of wealth which has been accumulated I reach very quickly the conclusion that sin is more than fancy and is more than imagination.

I ask Matthew Arnold, that brilliant English essayist, poet, and critic and he says sin is not the big monster in the human life and human society that most of the preachers would have you think; that sin is more of an affliction than anything else, something that can be more or less easily removed. But when I see people suffering and know that they are not affected physically I know at once there is a great deal of trouble within somewhere.

I am going now in my thinking into a home which I visited on one of my vacations some summers ago. A woman had had typhoid fever and was about over the disease but she could not get well, and her aunt came over to me and said "Nell's trouble, isn't the typhoid fever, but she has gone into sin and there in she has committed haunts her by day and night and if you will relieve her of her sin you will relieve her of nine-tenths of her trouble," and when she found her Saviour she began to get well.

I ask a group of scholars what they think sin is, and they say sin is a sort of inherited temperament, that we are born with certain unfavorable bias; that if we are able to remove this temperament or bias by process of education we have removed all the trouble. But this does not satisfy me, for I cannot retain my self respect as a thinking citizen when I try to lay all the responsibility
