DR. CRUMBINE IS WIDELY KNOWN

Recognition of the possibilities for extended service that would come from making the energies of voluntary public health organizations effective in the work of governmental departments of health is indicated in an initial step toward this end just taken by the Conference of State and Provincial Health Authorities of North America. This body, which is made up of the chiefs of all the State health bureaus in the United States, and of the health divisions of every province of Canada, has just appointed a field secretary to take charge of matters that affect the mutual interests and relationships of the non-official groups working in the health field on the one hand, and of the government agencies on the other. The man appointed is Dr. S. J. Crumline, Associate Director of Medical Service of the American National Health Association, a national organization working for the improvement of methods of health care for children with headquarters at 532 Seventeenth street, Washington, and administrative offices at 370 Seventh Ave., New York City.

Dr. Crumline has just ended a service of nineteen years as chief health officer of Kansas, where, out of a health bureau consisting of one man and a stenographer, he built up one of the most modern state health departments of the country, with unique co-operating relations with the universities and the industrial forces of the state. He is nationally known as the author of some of the most momentous health-safeguarding movements ever undertaken in this country, such as the fight against the common drinking cup and the roller towel, and the campaign against infantile paralysis.

The purpose of the meeting, which was also attended by Charlie Sloane, National representative of the Legion in the Fifth district and editor of the department newspaper, and Tom May, Legionaire and representative of a Greensboro film concern which is planning to make a moving picture of the convention and parade, was to discuss just what had been done towards handling the big convention here, have Legion officials tell what the gathering meant and what it would do here and line the civic organizations including the chautauque association, the Rotary Club, Chamber of Commerce, the Merant and the Kiwanis Club, up to cooperate with the post in handling entertainment plans for the 2,500 or 3,000 visitors expected to be attracted to the city by the convention.

The meeting was presided over by Ben H. Thomas, post commander, who gave some idea of the magnitude and scope of the convention and stated the purpose of the informal conference with Messrs. He told how the gathering was becoming too big for the post to handle by itself and how the various civic organizations were being asked to co-operate in carrying out entertainment plans.

Difficulties in Old Testament Subject Dr. Bland's Talk

Lake Junaluska, July 20.—The only real difficulties in the Old Testament occur where its moral teachings conflict with the teachings of Jesus Christ, declared Dr. S. G. Bland, Toronto, Canada, in the fifth of his lectures here on the subject of Biblical criticism before the leadership school of the Methodist Episcopal church, South. The subject of Mr. Bland's lecture was "Old Testament Difficulties in the Light of a Progressive Revelation."

It is to be frankly conceded that there are difficulties in the Old Testament," Dr. Bland asserted. "Scientific or historical errors need not trouble us. A moral revelation to be effective must conform in non-essential respects to the accepted ideas of the time as it must use the language of the time whatever its limitations. Doubtless God could have corrected the ideas of the Hebrews 2,000 years ago as to the nature of the universe, the geography and history of the world but that would have furthered their moral education not discernible.

Life Story of Singer Wolslagel Given In Absence of D. Wall

PREACHER FORCED TO REST HIS VOICE

Story of Choir Leader of Intense Interest and Filled With Adventure

Story of Mr. E. L. Wolslagel's life, as told by him at tabernacle last night.

I always enjoy telling people certain things about my life, but I hesitate to tell others. Tonight, however, since Dr. Wall is unable to be here, I take pleasure in stating the story and bringing it up to the present, having a necessity to leave out certain parts. I do this only to the glory of God.

You people look at me and say, "I wonder how old Mr. Wolslagel is." Naturally, as we think of each other, we wonder how old we are until we become acquainted, and I do not hesitate to tell you because I am not ashamed of my age. I was born in Bellevue, Ohio, on Oct. 5, 1889. Now that was not so long ago, was it? Less than 34 years. I was born of Dutch parents and being the youngest of five children. All the others of the hair and so I am bald headed tonight. I came, as I said, from Dutch parents and from a community where a great many Dutch families reside. I have some Swiss blood in my veins. One of my grandmothers having been born in Switzerland. I laugh frequently at the comments made by people about my name. But when I hear such names as Henschel, Hassebach, Eichenlaub, Strehbauer etc., I am glad I did not get such a name, and I would not exchange my name with a good many others if I could.

In this community of six thousand souls were churches of every denomination. I had never been to an evangelistic meeting in my life until I was seventeen years old. Churches did not have revival meetings in my community. I am glad to say that many do today. It was quite a circus whenever we heard of any evangelistic meeting in any community and people would go on ways to hear, but I was never able to get near them. The first preacher I ever heard in an evangelistic service was Dr. R. A. Torrey, the world renowned evangelist, and our own Southern Baptist boy had charge of the singing, Charlie Butler. Mr. Butler was suffering with hoarseness such as Dr. Wall tonight. When I saw the man who took his place, leading the music and singing a special number, I wondered if I might some day be able to do the same.

We had good schools, splendid ed- and lyceum courses in the summer and winter. Everybody there loved music and every family owned a piano or an organ. We had much of melody, instrumental and vocal music in our home.

Henry Gibbons has said that in every community you will find three classes of people—workers, shirkers, and jerkers. My parents were not shirkers, nor were they jerkers. We all went forward together. They were workers. You are either a shirker, a worker, or a jerker tonight.

In her letter to the Governor, Mrs. Cary said she had been told by friends that they had read an advertisement in a newspaper stating that her son had left her an estate in this state. The friends, she said, could not remember the newspaper. Mrs. Cary asked the Governor to help her find the newspaper which published the notice of the lawyer who is handling the case.

ALABAMA STATE FEELS OPTIMISTIC

They Think the Football Team Will Be Another Wonder This Year

Montgomery, Ala., July 20.—The Alabama State College will have a football gridiron this fall in a matter of speculation at present, despite the fact King Baseball reigns supreme.

The University of Alabama alumnus takes this attitude: "The Crimson Tide will be better this fall than that of 1922. It will be a more consistent team with more seasoned crew of men to pick the squad from. Coach Scott has been building for the past few years, and despite the fact that ill health forced him to retire before this date, his shoes are to be filled with a worthy successor. Anyway, I'd like to be in Syracuse, N. Y., when the Tide starts into Northern invasion.

The line will lose several veterans, it is true, but with Van de Graff and Wade as coaches for the line-men, we should worry. Remember the line Vanderbilt had last year under Wade. Watch Alabama." Auburn's alumni are far from pessimistic.

BARRETT FAILURE NOT SERIOUS IS VIEW OF EXCHANGE

New York, July 20.—Recent commitment of Frank Barrett, cotton factor of Augusta, Ga., and one of the leading cotton brokers of the south who was suspended from trading in the New York cotton exchange today when he notified the exchange he was unable to meet his obligations were relatively small New York cotton men said and his failure will have little effect on the local market.

Reports from Augusta to the effect that he had large loans with New York banks could not be confirmed in the banking district, where it was said his bank obligations here were small and amply secured by marketable collateral.

ATTACKS ON THE CHARACTER OF MRS PURVIS ARE MADE

Arguments Before Jury Are Made After All Testimony Is In

CHILDREN HEAR GRUESOME STORY

Lumberton, N. C., July 20.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Lumberton fogging case which the state contends involved the supremacy of law above mob violence in the taking of testimony in the trial of Mike Lawson, John Hedgepeth and Jule Brogden alleged members of the Ku Klux Klan near Proctorville on April 14 was completed today. Solicitor McNeill made the opening argument for this state after Judge Slaughter had announced that each side would be allowed to address the jury for three hours. Closing argument will be allowed to be made tomorrow morning and the jury will decide the outcome of the trial Tuesday morning.

The defense today launched an attack on the character of Mrs. Purvis after she had sworn that Lawson was one of the assailants.

Nathalie Watson, twelve years old heard Mrs. W. Johnson Walters, wife of the Proctorville merchant say she was not the daughter of Sam Watson her mother's husband. She broke into tears hiding her face in a handkerchief as the witness told the neighborhood gossip. She and her elder sister Naline a young woman 18 years heard the same witness swear that her mother was accused by general report of having let an illegitimate child starve to death more than 20 years ago and that she had given it a laudanum to stave it from crying. The state hammered away a title alibi offered in behalf of Mike Lawson and retaliated for the attacks upon the characters of the principal state's witnesses by seeking to discredit it up by the defense. In rebuttal more witnesses were offered by the defense to establish the character of its earlier witnesses. Lawson's alibi was attacked by the testimony of Gar, Bullock Tuberville, a night watchman and John Purvis who testifying to the state told of seeing on the street at 11:15 o'clock the night of the fogging. Lawson and Mrs. Lawson had sworn that he had gone home at 11 o'clock.

LUMBERTON, July 20.—O. G. Mitchell testified he saw Lawson, Smith, and a number of persons unknown to him leave Fairmont in the direction of Proctorville early in the night the fogging occurred.

During the day Ricks Purvis, ten year old son of Mrs. Purvis testified how the hooded raiders had invaded his mother's home. He swore he recognized Hedgepeth and Brogden in the crowd of disguised men. Hedgepeth was identified the boy testified by his shoes and trousers Brogden by his yellow eyes and greasy hands.

BOND BRINGS A RESPONSE FROM UNCONSCIENCE BOY

At the I. O. O. F. Orphan Home which is just across the street from The Goldsboro Hospital, and adjoining Herman Park, there is a very good cornet band, composed of boys of the home, and their open air concerts are greatly enjoyed by the entire neighborhood.

As previously announced in these columns Mr. Fred Hakeen, of Mr. Neil Joseph's store, a member of the local artillery and recently back with his company from Fort Bragg, Ala., is a patient in the above hospital, now recuperating nicely from an operation for his malady, and it is told of Fred that while he was yet under the influence of ether, but slowly reacting, the I. O. O. F. band across the way giving one of their afternoon concerts struck up "The Star Spangled Banner," and as the strains floated in upon the soldier boy's ears he lay barely semiconscious, his hand slowly rose to attention.

KU KLUX KLAN VISITS TABERNACLE WITH $50 GIFT

Knights of White Robe Present Baptist Pastor With Purse

AS CHOIR SINGS NATIONAL HYMN

The invisible and imperial order of the Ku Klux Klan made a spectacular visit last night. Ten of them, hooded to the nth degree, marched single file into the warehouse tabernacle where Dr. Zeno Wall was preaching and presented the preacher with a check for $50.

The people sat and started with open mouths. The singer, Mr. Wolslagel, seeing the dramatic situation in this choir singing "America" in a few seconds, and the imperial knights of the white night marched to the tune of the nation's anthem, down the saw dust trail of a Christian meeting, and presented a gospel preacher with a gift of $50.

The meeting last night was the best of the series, according to the singer, Mr. Wolslagel. The pastor of the First Baptist church had regained his voice and was at his best. The men's prayer meeting the afternoon will be held at the Williams Drug Company at 8:00 o'clock. The one this morning will be held in the vacant building adjoining the Brown Drug Company, at 8:30 o'clock.

FIND RATTLER IN GALLON OF

Burke County Man "It Would Cure" Disease

Statesville, July 19.—Some of Burke county put a skinned rattlesnake in a gallon of medicinal liquor, and the theory is that the liquor was to be used by some one afflicted with tuberculosis, according to Prohibition Officer T. H. Hallyburton, who with a party of other officers made the discovery while hunting wildcat still in the Burke mountains, says the Statesville Sentinel.

"We found the booze by the side of the road about fifteen miles southeast of Morganton. Mr. Hallyburton said while here Monday, "We found it by accident, but I don't find any one near it. The booze was fine and clear. We were unable to tell exactly just why the snake had been placed in the booze, but we have been told that it is the popular belief y mountain people that liquor in which has been placed a skinned rattlesnake for several hours will cure tuberculosis."

The officer indicated that none of the raiding party were willing to volunteer to make any experiments with the supposed cure.
