Court Supporting Law Which Claims Rights Of Buyers

Recent Decisions Make it Clear That The Tobacco Cooperatives Will Maintain Policy.

(Special to The News.)
Raleigh, Sept. 29.—The continuance of injunctions restraining members of the Tobacco Association from deliveries outside of the Association by Judge J. Lloyd Horton at Greenville this week and by Judge Frank Daniels at Smithfield last Monday and Thursday make it clear that the Tobacco Cooperatives continue with the policy and the power to protect their marketing contract and punish those who break their agreements. Judge Horton last Wednesday granted the Association orders restraining two members of the Association from further deliveries of tobacco until the hearing in court and on Monday and Thursday Judge Daniels at Smithfield continued injunctions in the case of six members restraining them from deliveries of their tobacco to the auction markets. Nineteen cent tobacco on the open markets of the Eastern belt is helping the organized growers of that section even more than the courts from the reports of members and Association warehousemen which have reached Raleigh headquarters this week. The Association continue to maintain its high first advances on all grades and individual members on several markets this week averages well over twenty dollars a hundred at first cash advance for their entire loads, new members are coming to the Association, notably at Warsaw, Wallace, Washington and Hickory.

WHO SAID CORPORATIONS HERE HAVE NO SOULS

Capt. Nathan O'Berry of Goldsboro last night made public the announcement that he was just in receipt of a check from the Carolina Light and Power Company in the sum of $250 to be devoted to the Goldsboro Community Service Building. Capt. O'Berry was deeply appreciative of the check, as will be the citizens of the city as a whole when they learn of it. "Who said that corporations had no souls?" said Capt. O'Berry, when he was asked last night by a reporter for The Goldsboro News relative to the contribution. "I think it was a mighty fine thing for the company to do, and I am confident that the public of the city and county will appreciate it," said Capt. O'Berry in concluding his remarks to the newspaper man.

Tar Heels Running True to the Form

(By the Associated Press.)
Chapel Hill, N. C., Sept. 29.—True to the advance forecast, North Carolina this afternoon scored a victory by a score of 22 to 0 over her opponent eleven, Wake Forest making her counts in the second and third quarters, most of the points being on forward passes and end runs. Wake Forest depended very little upon forward passes although several of these attempts were good for successful gains.

ANCIENT HUPP WINS HILL CLIMB EVENT

1918 Model Conquers Big Field in Annual Contest Near Syracuse.

Spectators who witnessed the annual Chittenango Hill Climb, near Syracuse, N. Y., recently, were furnished an unusual thrill when a 1918 model Hupmobile, driven by its owner, P. C. Schwartz, an amateur driver, ran away with opening event against a large field of new cars, several of them piloted by professional experts. Despite treacherous going, Schwartz made the long, steep climb in two minutes and five seconds, demonstrating that the ancient, long-lived car still retains its power and climbing ability after thousands of miles of service.

Impressive Service Marked Orphanage Exercises

Music furnished by the Band Constituted One of the Outstanding Features of the Splendid Program Rendered Yesterday Afternoon in Goldsboro.

While the University band played here yesterday afternoon exercises equaling those of any previous occasion and probably surpassing those of recent weeks were carried out at the local Odd Fellows Home and were witnessed by scores of interested spectators. The ceremonies began at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon with Sergeant Warren presiding and every feature was filled with interest.

The exercises were opened with a prayer by the Rev. Mr. Overton of Durham, N. C., and a song followed, "All Hail Noble Old Fellows" by the children of the Home. At this point a letter was read from Mrs. Jones, (daughter of Mr. Woodell) by Grand Secretary J. D. Berry of Raleigh.

At this point Estelle Roberts and Minnie Westmoreland, two girls of the orphanage, unveiled the fountain, following which the presentation address was delivered by Mayor F. B. Eldridge of Raleigh. The address of the visiting officer was filled with food for thought and it is not probable that a single member escaped the significance of his remarks.

The address of acceptance was then delivered by the grand master of the order for North Carolina. Aside from the actual program itself, was the band concert which immediately followed the conclusion of the program. The band concert was one of the outstanding features of the entire day and the people who heard it felt that they had been repaid for the time they had expended in visiting the orphanage.

DIDN'T THINK THE QUARANTINE NEEDED

Called at Department of Health Here to Get Information on Whooping Cough

A caller from one of the rural sections of the county at the office yesterday of the County Health Department stated that several of his children were suffering from whooping cough and that he had called at the office merely to find out something about the disease.

In connection with the discussion, Dr. Corbett remarked that more important than anything else in the "North Carolina" just at present is a health educational campaign and that the public of the State particularly in the rural sections, must be educated to preventive measures before very much can be accomplished in the way of disease control. Doubtless this opinion is shared by the other public health workers of the State.

All Community Service Activities will begin next week.

Dr. Wall Discusses Interesting Subjects

The Rev. Zeno Wall, D.D., pastor of the First Baptist Church of Goldsboro, last night announced his two subjects for the sermons to be delivered today and indications are that both sermons will attract large congregations. The subject for the morning service, beginning at 11 o'clock, will be, "Paul's Passionate Appeal" and at the evening hour the third of the series will be heard on "What's the Matter With the Church?" Last Sunday night the largest audience in the history of the church heard the second of these sermons, and there is no reason to believe that fewer will hear tonight's message.

Notice to Women's Christian Federation
The Women's Christian Federation will meet and have charge of the service Monday night in Elm Street Methodist Church. The revival going on in that church conducted by the laymen continues to grow in interest and attendance. The women have been given the service for Monday night so every member is urged to attend if possible.
