

FUNERAL SERVICES GEN. JULIAN CARR WILL BE SUNDAY

Interment will be in Maplewood Cemetery, and His Body Will be Laid Beside That of His Wife Who Died Some Years

May 1. (AP)—General Julian Carr, former commander in the United Confederate Veterans, who died here Tuesday night, came to Chicago to thank Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick for her synthetic psychology treatments which the family credits with conquering the chronic illness of the general's daughter-in-law, Mrs. C. McD. Carr, of Durham, N. C.

This was disclosed today as the general's body, accompanied by his son-in-law and daughter, Mrs. Henry W. Peale, of Kansas City, was being taken to Durham where the funeral will be held Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick was the last to call at the Flowers apartment, where the general contracted pneumonia after an attack of influenza, and which developed on the journey to Chicago. Mrs. Peale has been here studying psycho-analysis under Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick.

Durham, N. C., May 1. (AP)—The funeral services of General Carr will be held from his home Sunday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock. The Rev. W. W. Peale of Trinity Methodist church, Rev. G. T. Adams and Rev. R. Hibberd will officiate.

It was the general's oft repeated request, that when he died he preferred that his friends would not send flowers, as in his opinion the expenditure of large sums of money for this purpose was not right. He expressed a desire that those who wished to pay him tribute, use the money for the purchase of books for the purchase of flowers in purchasing books for the Durham public library.

The hour of the arrival of the body from Chicago is not yet known, but it is expected that it will reach here some time Saturday.

OFFICIALS CONDUCT PARALLELED IN HISTORY

Tenn., May 1. (AP)—The investigations at Washington of the fire of Representative Will Taylor of Tennessee, delivered the keynote speech this afternoon at the Tennessee Republican Convention.

During the past three months, he said, a performance has been going on in the city of Washington that for downrightness and unadulterated ridiculousness and depravity does not find a parallel in all past history.

Referring to the investigation of former Attorney General Daugherty, Mr. Taylor said in general to be a "star witness" before the investigating committee, a headliner, a pinch hitter, if you please, you must have been a murder, a safe blower, a self-confessed hand or must have committed some other high crime or misdemeanor to give a melodramatic flavor to your testimony.

The first rules to govern the game of baseball were adopted at a meeting held in New York in 1857.

To Make Survey of Child Work in This State

To gather information on the results achieved by county organization for child care and protection, Miss Ida Curry, representative of the Childrens Bureau of the United States Department of Labor, will come to North Carolina about May 20, it has been announced by Mrs. Kate Burr Johnson, State Commissioner of Public Welfare.

Mrs. Johnson will co-operate with Miss Curry in gathering the information she wants, which is to be used along with similar information gathered in Minnesota to make up a pamphlet on child welfare work. This information is in much demand in other States which are contemplating instituting similar work, according to a letter to Mrs. Johnson from the director of social service of the Childrens Bureau.

Three counties, Guilford, Pitt and Vance have been selected by Mrs. Johnson as counties for Miss Curry to survey. Guilford was chosen because it is a typical county with large populated districts, Pitt, because it is typical of the smaller populated counties, and Vance because of the exceptional work done by Mrs. W. B. Waddill, its public welfare superintendent.

UNTOUCHED BY TORNADO

The tornado that struck Anderson, S. C., Wednesday morning, as well as sections of Georgia, doing considerable damage to life and property, was not severe in the city of Anderson as seen from a message received yesterday from Miss Annie Denmark, to her parents here.

"The storm this morning proved a cyclone in another part of town. Reports are coming in of deaths and damage. I want to go out and see the conditions when I have time.

"Hospitals are full of injured but we are untouched here. Just a physical demonstration of God's great power and we need such, no doubt."

TWO THOUSAND PEOPLE ATTEND THE DEDICATION OF THE FREMONT SCHOOL

REV. D. H. TUTTLE SUGGESTS NAME FOR NEW HOTEL

Writes a Very Interesting Life Story About the Name He Suggests as a Monument to a Notable Character.

(By Rev. D. H. Tuttle) The following article was received from Rev. D. H. Tuttle of Smithfield, N. C. in which he suggests the name for the new hotel, and sets forth some very interesting reasons for the suggestion: (1) I suggest "The Modie (or Mary's) Stocumb" for a name for Goldsboro's new hotel. The reasons: (1) For the part she played in a Revolutionary times—the part of a real heroine. (2) Because of woman's prominence in the world life of today. (3) It will be the first hotel to be named for a woman.

Ezekiel Stocumb was a member of the House of Commons in 1812, '14, '15, '16 and 1818. His wife was Mary Hooks and the sister of Hon. Charles Hooks, who was a member of Congress from the Wilmington District in 1816 and in 1819 to 1825, and who removed to Alabama and recently died there. She was born in Bertie county in 1760. When both were only eighteen years old she and Ezekiel Stocumb were married, whose mother, a widow Stocumb, had married her father.

Put their honeymoon was disturbed by the ravages of war, for the Revolution had broken out, and North Carolina for a time was the theatre of hostile and sanguinary scenes. Her boy husband joined a troop of light horse, and performed several days of keeping down the Tories. She took entire charge of the farm, and she used to say that she did as much and all the work a man ever did, except "hauling rails" and to do that exception away, she went out "one day and split a few." She was skilled in all the female accomplishments of sewing, spinning and weaving and washing, and perfect in horsemanship. The following circumstances will show her noble spirit and her more than feminine courage. Just before the battle of Morde's Creek, (1776) the men had all gone under Caswell to fight the Tories under Macdonald. Colonel Stocumb was in the battle which occurred on the 27th of February, 1776, and his recollection of the part he bore in that was too vivid ever to be forgotten. "And," he would say, "my wife was there! She was indeed!"

When the British marched from Wilmington to Virginia, under Lord Cornwallis in 1781, Colonel Stocumb's farm was, right in the rear of their march. One beautiful Spring morning, Colonel Tarleton, accompanied by two aides-de-camp, dashed up to the piazza. Colonel Stocumb (then Lieutenant) was away from home and a near female relative (afterwards wife of Major Williams) were sitting in the piazza. Colonel Tarleton informed her that he was under the necessity of taking quarters in her house, in a tone that admitted of no denial or controversy. His legion, consisting of nearly two hundred and fifty men, and many others, then filled the avenue. Their tents were pitched in the orchard and Tarleton and his officers occupied the house.

Mrs. Stocumb with cheerfulness now performed the duties of hospitality so unceremoniously forced upon her. She prepared them an excellent dinner and refreshments. While the British were there, the repeated and rapid report of fire arms was heard in the distance. A contest was going on between a party of the Americans and the Tories. This startled the British but in a few moments her husband, with Charles Hooks, her brother, then about thirteen, and others, returned bravely. They had been engaged in the skirmish with the Tories, and had nearly reached the house when a faithful slave (Big George) who had been posted by his mistress, warned them of their peril. Quick as thought they wheeled, at one bound cleared the fence, and leaped the next amid a shower of balls from the guard; and thus escaped.

J. B. Lane, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, in His Speech of Presentation of the Speaker Gave a Brief History of the Progress of the Graded School in Fremont.

A crowd estimated at over two thousand people attended the exercises dedicating the new hundred thousand dollar school building at Fremont yesterday. The address delivered by Hon. H. E. Stacy, of Lumberton, N. C., was appropriate to the occasion, and was enjoyed to the fullest by the great crowd which greeted him in the high school auditorium.

Mr. J. B. Lane, chairman of the board of trustees, in his speech of presentation, gave a brief history of the progress of the graded school in Fremont, and paid glowing tribute to the first board of trustees and to the consecrated teachers in the past who had made this present achievement possible.

Mr. J. A. Best, a member of the county board of education, accepted the building on behalf of the citizens of the community. Mr. Best said in part: "We are proud of this building and as we accept it, we assure you that we are ready to furnish you the funds necessary to maintain it a school equal to the best in the State. But with all this we do not want to be selfish. We long to see the day when every boy and girl in Wayne county, yea in North Carolina, may have the opportunity of going to this school if it is considered best situated for them or to some other school equal in every respect."

The chairman, Mr. Lane, then called upon Mr. M. T. Edgerton, a former superintendent of the Fremont schools, Mr. J. T. Jerome, county superintendent of schools, Mr. J. E. Kelly, member of the Board of Education and Mr. John Davis, a former member of the board of trustees who each in turn offered felicitations to the community and board of trustees for this splendid enterprise so successfully carried to completion.

Mr. B. F. Aycock in presenting the speaker of the occasion paid splendid tribute to the distinguished four sons of a Methodist minister who have contributed so much to the progress of the State.

The address delivered by Mr. Stacy was pronounced by all who heard him as one of the finest ever heard in Wayne county. He chose as his subject, "Education," and all present felt that they had a new and broader conception of what education really means when he had finished.

The picnic dinner served on the grounds was all that could be desired from every standpoint. To say that it was prepared and served in the usual style of the people of Fremont is ample guarantee of its success.

The May Day exercises by the grammar grades held in the school auditorium and by the primary grades on the school grounds at sunset were beautiful and highly entertaining. The pupils evidenced the splendid training that had been given them by the corps of teachers of the Fremont graded school.

Fremont is to be congratulated upon the success of the undertaking which culminated in the exercises of yesterday. A modern high school and graded school building thoroughly equipped to meet every need of the present generation is an achievement of which the community has a right to be proud.

THE BUG IS HERE ACCORDING TO THE EXPERIMENT STATION

The Time for the Growers to Get Busy in the Extermination of the Weevil is as Early as the Bug Appears.

Raleigh, April 28.—The first boll weevils of the year have been found according to Franklin Sherman, Chief in Entomology for the Experiment Station and Extension Service, who is in receipt of two specimens, one from a correspondent near Fayetteville the other from the Field Station at Aberdeen. The first was said to have been taken from the man's back while he was in the field supervising the planting of cotton, the latter was reported to have been found by the workers of the Experiment Station while they were jarring insects from a peach tree. Fourteen other specimens, thought to have been boll weevils, have been previously received this year. It was stated, but so far these last two were the first real boll weevils.

During the last two years, explained Mr. Sherman, the Division of Entomology of the State College of Agriculture and Department of Agriculture, has requested that farmers and others interested send in first living boll weevil specimens which might be found under any conditions and later to send in specimens found on young cotton. Those facts, he said, are desired from all parts of the cotton growing area of the state, in order to determine the seasonal activities of the insect. Each year there are many responses, it was explained, but in most cases of winter or early spring findings, they prove to be insects entirely different from the boll weevil and not harmful to cotton.

These early spring records are closely in accord with similar findings of last year's says Professor Sherman, and indicates that the very earliest boll weevils emerge even when there is no cotton. Presumably many of these die before there are cotton enough for them to feed upon, and still more before there are squares in which to lay their eggs, they are probably ones which warmed up early, became hungry and were searching for their only known regular food—cotton.

"We think these findings show the soundness of our position is not advocating the use of poison from the first time the weevils are found. It is probable that a few boll weevils are on young cotton from the time the first leaves are expanded, and if one were to start poisoning then he would make several applications before there were squares to be protected to hurt by the weevil. This would be a needless expense and we do not advise. It is a safer and more profitable not to poison until the squares begin to form. By that time many of the weevils will be dead without having done harm and without any expense. When squares begin to form, if there be as many as 20 weevils to the acre, use the dust poison or the poisoned molasses mixture. Repeat this a week later if many weevils appear to be still present. After many squares are well formed, it is best to use the dust poison."

"This advice is not only in accord with indications from our own tests of last year, but is in accord with the advice now being generally given by Experiment Stations in all cotton States."

SEARCH FOR U. N. C. STUDENT

Chapel Hill, May 1. (AP)—A statewide search for Charlie Pritchard is said to now be in operation by the friends and relatives of the young man who students say has been missing from the University where he was a student, for two weeks. It has been reported that students heard from him in Durham less than a week ago but at the University it was stated that he had not attended classes since the Easter holidays. "The weevil only produces eggs once in its lifetime."
