FIND NEGRO IN HOBBS' HOME AND IN FARLEY'S STORE CYCLONE MACK DECRIES LESSENSING OF PARENTAL AUTHORITY

HOBBS INCIDENT ABOUT 4:30 AND FARLEY AFFAIR AFTER SUPPER LAST NIGHT

Mrs. Hobbs Was Alone in House; Mr. Sasser and Intruder in Chase

At 4:30 yesterday afternoon Mrs. H. Hobbs of Vine street discovered a negro in her home, and at 8 o'clock last evening G. S. Sasser, manager of Farley's department store, who had returned to the store to do some extra work, found an unidentified negro concealed in the store. The description which Mrs. Hobbs gives of the negro who entered her home in some respects tallied with the description of the negro that Mr. Sasser found in the Farley store.

THE FARLEY INCIDENT

Mr. Sasser had gone back to the store after supper, and turned on a light near the front as he entered. He thought he heard something and started in the direction of the noise to investigate.

About the middle of the store he saw the dark form of a man stand behind a counter. Seizing a stapler stand he made in the direction of the form, and the two began to dodge about in the store.

According to the story told by Mr. Sasser, the man was colored, "yellow," he was described, and wore a cap—as had the negro seen by Mrs. Hobbs.

He had a hatchet and a pistol according to Mr. Sasser.

In the pursuit around the store the negro darted upstairs leading to the second floor.

About this time D. E. Spell and Enoch Malpass, who had been standing on the opposite side of the street, rushed over, attracted by the noises made in the chase which had been going on.

The three could hear the negro moving around upstairs, raising a window it sounded like.

"He can't get out if he gets on the roof," said Mr. Sasser, "for there is no way of getting down. A call for the police was put in and officers came in a moment.

Upon going to the second story they found an open window to the roof, but the negro had made good his escape. Crossing over the building of the Handley Stallings Hardware store he had let himself down by some wires which are on the side of the building.

Officers were last night searching for a negro man who was discovered in the home of H. H. Hobbs, at 311 East Vine street, at 4:30 yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Hobbs was alone in the house at the time the negro entered it.

Officers held one negro suspect, but Mrs. Hobbs declared that the man arrested was not the one who had entered the house and he was allowed to go free.

The negro is described as being about 5 feet and 6 inches tall, rather slender, and as wearing a striped shirt, gray trousers, and an old cap.

Mrs. Hobbs had just dressed after a bath and gone into the sitting room to take up her work again, Mr. Hobbs was in the room and in the room and even Mr. Hobbs said, looked out the door and window to see if she could discover a negro passing.

Returning to her work, she was again impressed with the odor and started to investigate. As she looked up Mr. Hobbs told The News, she saw the negro standing in the bathroom door. "You black devil, what are you doing in here," Mr. Hobbs quoted the intruder, and at the same time fled out of the back door of the house.

Mrs. Hobbs gave the alarm and the officers quickly responded but the intruder had made his escape. Mr. Hobbs was at his work and the child.

Expect 100,000 Tourists Through City This Winter

Goldsboro will see 100,000 automobile tourists pass through the city on the Coastal Highway going South this winter. Such is the prediction of Darden Allen, representative of the American Automobile Association, who spent yesterday in Goldsboro in the interest of the Coastal Highway.

"The Florida bound traffic is going to be greater this year than ever," said Mr. Darden, "and the Coastal Highway is going to be one of the favorite routes. Goldsboro can get prepared to have at least 100,000 south bound tourists pass through the city."

Mr. Allen, representative of the American Automobile Association, spent yesterday in the city gathering data for a special Atlantic Coastal Highway section in the October number of The American Motorist and the log book which is to be prepared for the Coastal highway, and a page in the A. A. A. guide. It is estimated that the trip across the state to him and

M'BRAYER WILL SUCCEED SMITH

Local Man Resigned As Grand Secretary of Odd Fellows

The position of grand secretary of the North Carolina Grand Lodge of Independent Order of Odd Fellows, left vacant through the resignation of Charles G. Smith, Goldsboro man, has been filled through the appointment of Dr. L. B. McBrayer, of Southern Pines. It is learned, Dr. McBrayer will carry on the duties of the office from Southern Pines and in connection with the position which he now holds. The appointment was made by Major R. L. Spaulding, grand master.

At the recent grand lodge meeting of Odd Fellows, Mr. Smith was selected secretary succeeding John D. Berry, of Raleigh, who had acted as the grand lodge secretary for over 20 years. Shortly after his election Mr. Smith announced his resignation.

Dr. McBrayer, it was learned, will devote only a part of his time to the office as he has other duties which he will continue to perform. It was also learned that Dr. McBrayer agreed to accept the appointment for the remainder of the year because of the emergency that existed, and in no case will he accept the office after the next session of the grand lodge, it was declared.

Dr. McBrayer's appointment, it was understood here today, will be effective on August 10 and on and after that date matters having to do with the secretary's office will be conducted from his Southern Pines office.

Under the auspices of the A. A. A. Mr. Allen is making a log and taking an official record of the entire highway. "The Coastal Highway is just coming into its own. Previously there has been a bad stretch of the route between Petersburg and Emporia, Va., but this particularly objectionable link is now under construction, and by early fall the entire route will be an all-the-year-round highway."

The two automobile association representatives conferred with the chamber of commerce yesterday afternoon. At that time Goldsboro decided to take a page advertisement in the feature edition of The American Motorist and the log book which is to be prepared for the Coastal highway, and a page in the A. A. MANIAC SON SLAYS MOTHER

Officers Find Gibbering Idiot Beside Mutilated Body

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Richard C. Bearse, a 26-year-old mechanical engineer, slew his mother by a gibbering idiot, sitting beside the mutilated body of his parent with whom he had lived alone for 14 years since she was divorced.

The police have been unable to learn what started the mutilations that brought death from shock, but the young man muttered rambling phrases about taking out his mother's eye because they did not look right and of sending her body to purify her soul.

Bearse, who was a graduate of Northwestern University and had been a star basketball player in high school, had not previously showed signs of mental lapse. He had called on a young woman last evening, returning home after midnight.

Whether he became enraged at his mother over a personal affair or was mentally unbalanced through worry over her health has not been learned. The police have not found the implement with which he tortured his mother, but they believe that he hardly could have used only his hand, even though a madman.

The murderous attack was disclosed this morning when a neighbor reported that she had heard screams of anguish.

A plea of not guilty to a charge of murder was entered for him in court today. Alibi witnesses will report on his condition.

A neighbor hearing screams from the Bearse house called the police early this morning, the police found the house dark and silent. An hour later the neighbor reported again that she had heard screams. The police hastened back to the house and broke in. Bearse sat on the kitchen floor beside the body.

WANTS TO DANGLE FROM ROPE

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Thomas Johnson, confessed murderer of fourteen persons, insists on being hanged, and declares he will resist efforts to take him back to Minnesota because that state hasn't capital punishment. He said he preferred to go to Iowa, where they execute him.

Johnson has confessed to that of Leonard Erdahl, of Minneapolis, December 19, last. Detectives from that city are here to get Johnson, who is in jail. He walked into the sheriff's office last Saturday night and made his confession and told of his escape from an insane asylum in Missouri. This has been verified, as have details of many of the murders he claims to have committed.

The Minneapolis detectives said Johnson's story checked with the murder and other crimes committed in their city. They are awaiting arrival of a complaint charging first degree murder to return Johnson to Minneapolis.

DEFER ACTION ON POULTRY EXPERT

Matter Referred Back to County Commissioners Yesterday

The matter of employing a full time poultry expert for Wayne County was referred back to the Board of County Commissioners for further consideration at a meeting called for August 13. This action was taken yesterday morning at a meeting between representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and between L. A. Hancy the board of commissioners. Two other members of a committee named to represent the commissioners for the meeting were unavoidably detained from attending the meeting.

County Agent A. K. Robertson was present to discuss the need for a full time specialist for the poultry raisers of the county. Secretary Denmark and Thomas Norwood were to represent the Chamber of Commerce.

County Agent Robertson is of the opinion that the employment of a specialist to devote his whole time to the poultry industry in the County would be the making of the undertaking in the County. "It could really be brought to the standing of an industry if we had a whole time expert," said Mr. Robertson.

D. W. Lewis, of the State Division of Markets, and E. W. Fisher of the State Department of Agriculture, were present to speak in favor of employment for the expert. They foresee a great development of the poultry industry in this section if it is backed as it should be.

Many Farmers in Saskatchewan

Regina, Sask., Aug. 5.—(AP)—Saskatchewan is the biggest farm in the world in the belief of Hon. J. G. Gardiner, "farmer premier." "There are 118,426 farms in Saskatchewan with an aggregate acreage of 37,896,320 acres," said Mr. Gardiner. "Average size farms are 320 acres, and average area under crop is 200 acres per farm. Gross agricultural wealth of the province is $1,682,473,000. While Saskatchewan produces about seventy-five per cent of Canada's wheat crop, the farmers also go in extensively for diversified agriculture."

TO LAY CORNER STONE TUESDAY

Mr. Dees will discuss the history of the public school system in Goldsboro and explain the significance of certain items which will be enclosed in the corner stones. Those in charge of arrangements plan that materials which are enclosed in the stone shall give in themselves a history of the school system of the city.

"We are going to make the ceremony simple and dignified," said a school official yesterday, "but we do want to invite every citizen of Goldsboro to be present at the laying. It is the city's school that is being dedicated and every citizen should be interested in the services."

Progress on the building is going forward satisfactorily, it was said yesterday by Superintendent Rouse of the Stout Construction Company, contractors. It will be ready by January 1, Mr. Rouse said.

There is still another class of homes that have neither poverty nor riches, where peace and joy and love and satisfaction and contentment dwell. Where industry, frugality, sun-browned hands, healthy appetites all at the board of plenty. But whether the structure be a palace or garret, it is home.

Authority of Home Is Shifted From Parents to Children, He Said

Cyclone Mack reached New York in his services at Mount Olive last night. Before a crowd of three thousand people, he tossed napkins to the winds and told the mothers and fathers just wherein the responsibility for the future of America depends upon them.

"There was a time when the authority of the home was in the parents, but now it has come too much to be in the hands of the children," Mack shouted, and there was a shiver of "anxiety" from over the gallery seats.

"There was a time when the authority of the home was in the parents, but now it has come too much to be in the hands of the children," Mack shouted, and there was a shiver of "anxiety" from over the gallery seats.

Toward the end of his sermon, which ran more than 100 minutes, he left the evangelist stand to tell the dramatic story of his life.

Rev. Mr. McLendon, in two strong sermons, the first sermon at 5 o'clock and the second at 8 o'clock.

At 11:30 p. m. a "box-cars" service was given.

Our homes are the foundation upon which is constructed the percentage of our country's future. We are few human beings, but we are multiplied thousands of people, charge and discharge, the streets of our great cities, the up of individual souls, each of tonight will reach some place in its home.

There are those who, through the streets in costly, elegant, magnificent, palaces, brilliant lights, gorgeous, costly, costly divans, works of art, retinue of servants, await their fate. Then there are those who, in the frosty pavements of the dark streets, hungry, ragged with bleeding feet and aching heads, whose home are in the damp and dreary slums or in rickety hovels of wood and wretched hovels. No light, no music, no smiles, no faintest hope. Nothing but misery, a crust of bread and a bed of straw, and yet these places in all their trashiness are the home of human beings.

"There is still another class of homes that have neither poverty nor riches, where peace and joy and love and satisfaction and contentment dwell. Where industry, frugality, sun-browned hands, healthy appetites all at the board of plenty. But whether the structure be a palace or garret, it is home."

There's quite a difference between a home and a house. Love builds a home, gold builds houses. The home has a cur dog which they call "Lucky" and all the family loves him. The house has a pedigreed air and he is kept in the barn. In houses you find broken hearts, hurry, nervous prostration, idleness, artificiality, selfishness. In homes you find sunlight, flowers growing, warm hearts, happiness, love. The house is cold, reserved, carping, biting, stringing, irritating, cutting, clashing remarks and it is not that you find a state of habitual dumbness and selfishness. In the home the wife is smiling and satisfaction and usefulness and thoughtfulness and love in activity. In the home, meal time is a get-together party of smiling, smiling, loving faces. In the home the breakfast table is just a lunch station between the bedroom, office, factory. I have gone to homes and have been conventional furniture, conventional rooms, forced smiles, Klondike looks, cold staves, idly, frosty, languid handshakes and conventionalism.

In the home the wife is smiling, the children are playing, and you get a good old-time welcome written with box-car letters all over the home. (Continued On Page Three)
